SCIENCE FORUM PAINTS FUTURE A BLAZE OF HOPE

Find New Deal Casts Defeatist Shadow.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

The real brain trust of America, men whose attainments have won them leadership in science and industry and education in the nation, gave a word of advice last night to the brain trusters of Washington.

Called together by Alfred P. Sloan, president of the General Motors corporation, to give a preview of industrial progress in the next century at the General Motors building at the World's Fair, they voiced a glorious prediction and a solemn warning.

A Warning for New Deal.

The prediction was that the world has seen but a small beginning of what science can do for the welfare of mankind. The warning was that New Deal attempts to regiment the nation and reduce its affairs to a static condition are the one sure way of preventing the scientists in university laboratories and industries experimental workshops from accomplishing that advance.

Two speakers aroused the audience —itself a gathering of leaders in business and science—past applause to cheers. One was Dr. Glenn Frank, the scholar who is president of the University of Wisconsin, when he concluded an attack upon what he termed the defeatism of lowering production and raising prices by saying:

"The machine has not betrayed us. We have betrayed the machine. Science and technology have given us the means by which we may emancipate the race from poverty, drudgery, and insecurity. If we now prove incapable of using these means to the full, the verdict of history upon us will be that we were a people strangled by our own success."

Pay Tribute to Nash.

Again the cheers arose in tribute to Charles W. Nash, who was a workman before he was a works manager and a general manager of a great industry before he became the millionaire owner of the Nash Motors company.

Mr. Nash was not a scheduled speaker. One of his old employés, Charles F. Kettering, known to his men in the great research laboratories of General Motors and to the motor industry generally as "Boss" Kettering, spied him in the audience and called upon him. He spoke from the floor with a fervor which recalled to listeners the fact that his plant was one of the first in the industry visited by the wave of NRA strikes.

"I don't want to criticize the government," said Mr. Nash, "but I think it is unfortunate that there is growing up in the country a class of people who are trying to build up hatred between the laboring man and the man who meets the pay roll.

"I believe men think that 'Boss' Kettering should be listened to rather than some young men who never earned a dollar in business in their lives. Theory does not always win. I have great confidence in the future. I believe that if the present trend goes too far in the wrong direction the people will rise up in their might and stop it."

KETTERING VISIONS CHANGE.

Mr. Kettering, who has long been known as a "common sense" scientist, remarked during the course of a speech, which was somewhat disjointed by the fact that he was displaced for part of the program from his scheduled post as toastmaster by a professional announcer, that he had heard numerous predictions at automobile banquets of the future of the motor industry, yet he had never heard a man who was able to forecast what was going to happen in the industry in the next five years. His predictions, accordingly, were more or less general.

"It is my impression," he said, "that we are on the eve of things of an entirely different nature than the mere extension, refinement, and development of the things we already know. I feel that we have upon us in the immediate future a great change in mental attitudes toward the physical world which would bring into existence new pieces of information which will completely change our scientific viewpoint.

"We get absorbed in environment to the extent that we lose the main objective. I don't believe we should look upon the future unless we pay due regard to what we know and what we don't know.

"So much of our information today does not consist of basic understand-

FINE WEATHER PROMISED FOR FIRST PROGRAM

Parade to Start at 1 P.M.

BY EARL MULLIN.

The new Century of Progress Exposition, inaugurating the next hundred years of advance in science, industry, and art as the 1933 Exposition marked the end of a hundred years of progress, will open its gates at 9 o'clock this morning. All is in readiness, even the weather man promising fair skies and warm breezes, to greet the first day's visitors.

All departments of the city government, other than police, fire, health, and other essential services, will be closed today for the opening of the Fair under a proclamation by Mayor Kelly. The mayor's proclamation also called upon all citizens to fly flags wherever possible. State street between Lake and Van Buren streets will be decorated with 418 flags.

Visions Future Progress.

"A Century of Progress Exposition is ready," said Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair, last night. "The gates will open in the morning and the Exposition invites the world to be its guest. A Century of Progress Exposition last year marked the end of one era of progress. We now step into the second hundred years. It is this period the Exposition honors.

"None of us can visualize just what the progress in the next century will be. We have been given an impressive insight, a striking indication of what this will be, by the developments of the last year. Typical of this indication and insight is the nonstop run of the Burlington Zephyr [new streamlined train] from Denver to Chicago, ending at the Fair grounds on the opening night. The 1,017 mile run is an early indication of the continuation of the influences which brought about such progress in the century just closed."

Gates Open at 9 A. M.

When the time ball drops over the main entrance gate at 9 a. m. visitors may enter the Exposition grounds. The Fair will be ready, the result of night and day work by thousands of men during the last month. But little or none of this will be apparent to the visitors. Profiting by the mistakes and lessons of last year the new Exposition is prepared to be a better host. From the time the gates open until the last merrymaker is leaving the grounds tonight every visitor is a guest and is to be so treated.

"We have worked and worked hard to prepare the Exposition," said Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager. "It is up to our guests to discover whether or not we have labored well. There is one thing I wish to stress. That is, that in our capacity of host we can this year handle our guests better. It is impossible to estimate a capacity crowd.

Better Facilities for Guests.

"We have 60 acres of new construction in which to care for visitors. Twenty thousand additional visitors can be accommodated in the old army grounds. Northerly Island is being used to much more advantage. There 14 acres of new construction will care for 30,000 visitors. The new theaters, restaurants and exhibit buildings will accommodate thousands more. We invite the world and can accommodate the world at this combination university and entertainment park."

First day guests will find free entertainment never surpassed since the circus days of Rome, and on a much more variegated scale. Orchestras, seven permanent stages for free theatrical performances, the wild animal show of Roman days, but without the cruelty, some 80 corridor miles of free exhibits, and a startling new color and landscaping scene will provide entertainment and education.

Dedicate Villages Today.

With only a few minor exceptions the Fair will be completely open to the public today and tonight. All of the 15 villages will hold dedicatory ceremonies, with special shows and dinners. With the exception of the Streets of Paris, where the public is barred because of a society charity ball, all entertainment is unreserved.

The formal ceremonies of the day, which have been reduced as far as is compatible with the importance of the occasion, will start at 1 p. m. These ceremonies are divided into four principal parts, so spaced that every visitor may witness them all. All of the opening day ceremony is open to the general public. The major events are the parade, the afternoon speeches by public leaders, the motion picture appearance of President and Mrs.

NEW LANDSLIDE BURIES VILLAGE; 250 ARE KILLED

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

HONGKONG, May 25.—An entire village was buried, 250 persons killed, and scores injured today in the second disastrous landslide of Kaicheung mountain within eight days in the Lokchong district of Kwangtung province.

A landslide on the opposite side of the mountain killed at least 250 and injured hundreds exactly a week ago. The mountain apparently is crumbling under torrential rains. Twelve hamlets were heavily damaged by the new avalanche.

More than 130 junks were sunk when the whole side of the mountain toppled into the river. Relief is being rushed from Canton.

Chicago Clan Woos Nature; Denies Nudism

Valparaiso, Ind., has an "unsensational, common sense back to nature group," consisting of seventy Chicago and north shore families, it became known here yesterday. The members say they are "people who like to live a simple life but who do not use the word 'nudist' to describe themselves."

The colony has incorporated as the Lake o' the Woods club, and has leased 160 acres of wooded land around Sager's lake, two miles south of Valparaiso. A sheet steel fence, nine feet high, has been erected around the area, and a number of the families have moved into tent quarters for summer. Others spend each week-end at the club.

Vow They're Not Nudists.

Although the members say they are not nudists, they say that if they choose to take sun baths or bathe in their lake without clothing, it is the business of no one but themselves. They insist they are "not a cult, not a sect, not vegetarians," and add that they like to smoke and "eat the same kind of food that any one else eats."

In Valparaiso the sentiment concerning the colonists is divided. One group of business men who have been selling groceries to the encampment say that they are "nice, quiet people who bother nobody." Another group, which includes the authorities of Valparaiso university, a co-educational institution, and the Valparaiso Women's club, say:

"As far as nudist colonies are concerned, we feel the same as all decent people do. We are, of course, opposed to them. If this should turn out to be a nudist colony, the attorney general of the state, or the state legislature, will, no doubt, make short shrift of it."

Chicagoans Are Directors.

When the club was incorporated C. E. Terns, R. A. Mischke, and L. Bolling Weller, all Chicagoans, named themselves as directors. The incorporation papers were signed last Jan. 18.

Last evening Weller and Terns were interviewed by a reporter in a small office kept by the club in the 32 North State building. Mr. Weller, a blond young man with glasses and a mild coat of sunburn, is a salesman for a land company. Mr. Terns, well set up and well dressed, is an official of a trust company.

There was no embarrassment displayed by either man when they were informed that certain Valparaiso dwellers had objected to the club because of "scandal" which would develop there.

Expect to Spend $25,000.

"Why, Valparaiso ought to be glad we are there," declared Terns. "We've got the land on lease for five years but without question we are going to buy it. We expect to spend from $25,000 to $30,000 out there. We are a very select group. Every one of the members has to be married; it's all a family affair.

"I've got a wife and a thirteen year old daughter. We want to get away from the city for the summer and this place of ours is ideal. I wear shorts around the place and most of the others wear something. I won't say, however, that all of them do. And if my daughter wants to jump in the lake without a bathing suit, it's perfectly all right. It's the same way with me.

"I don't think many people in Valparaiso object to us. We heard that most of the objection had been raised because the owner of the lake, which was used as if it was a public park for many years, had leased it to people who put up a fence and intended to make it private."

FORD BUYS 25C BOOK; LACKS LIQUID ASSETS TO FINANCE THE DEAL

Gettysburg, Pa., May 25.—(AP)—The chuckles in this historic community today are at Henry Ford's expense. Stepping from a Pittsburgh-to-Philadelphia train to stretch his legs, the motor manufacturer was approached by T. J. Hardy, book salesman, who inquired: "Like to buy a history of the battle of Gettysburg? Only a quarter."

"Well, I know a great deal about that battle," said the gray haired traveler, "but I'll take one."

The quarter, however, was not forthcoming.

"We'll have to wait for my secretary," Mr. Ford explained with a smile. "I haven't any money."

The secretary paid.

Man Eating Lions Raid Villages and Devour Natives

LISBON, May 25.—(AP)—Man-eating lions are raiding villages and spreading terror in the interior of Portuguese East Africa, it was reported to the government here today. One white woman and several natives are known to have been killed, communications stated. The government has offered large prizes for each lion slain, and a number of hunting parties have been organized.

Arms Parley to Bring Forth Ticklish Tasks

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—Developments of great moment in world politics are expected to be the result of the initiation by Great Britain of preliminary informal conversations among the naval powers on the questions to be dealt with in the 1935 naval arms conference.

Into these diplomatic feelers will be projected all the elements of the delicate posture of affairs in the Pacific region and the far east produced by the military and industrial aggressiveness of Japan in the last two or three years.

Japan Demands Naval Parity.

There will be the demand of Japan for naval parity with Great Britain and the United States and the countering suggestion of Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson that if the Washington treaty naval ratio is to be scrapped, America will need to strengthen its defenses in the Pacific. There will be Japan's territorial encroachment on China, which the other powers have pronounced a violation of the nine power treaty, and the Kellogg anti-war pact, and the announced determination of Japan to dominate China and regulate China's relations with other countries.

There will be England's row with Japan over Japanese invasion of British markets with low cost goods and there will be the smoldering issue of America's exclusion of Japanese immigrants.

Britain Has Vital Interest.

Great Britain appears to be moving for negotiations on the problems of the Pacific region in which the empire has vital interests in the same manner that it moved in 1921 to effect a solution of the problems then embarrassing British statesman. The British dominions were then clamoring for abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance while British sea supremacy was being threatened by the American navy in the making.

British statesmanship succeeded in inducing President Harding to call the Washington conference which scrapped the new American navy and to include the consideration of Pacific problems as a result of which the British got rid of the alliance with Japan in a new deal without being compelled to slap Japan in the face.

U. S. Agrees to Conference.

In the present instance Great Britain has asked each of the signatories to the naval arms treaties if it were willing to discuss plans for the 1935 conference. Secretary of State Cordell Hull has assented. Japan has also assented. Apparently there are to be a series of bilateral conversations between Great Britain and the United States, between London and Tokio, and between Britain and other signatories. The conversations will center in London.

Up to date there is no sign of conversations between Washington and Tokio. Japanese Ambassador Saito, however, called on Mr. Hull today and was informed of our acceptance of the British overtures.

The London naval arms treaty of 1930 terminates in 1936 and provides for another conference in 1935. The Washington treaty, which limited capital ships, can be terminated on two years' notice, and at London it was

UNION REJECTS PEACE PLAN AS OWNERS AGREE

Violence Continues; Fears Grow.

A serious strike with wide import and marked by violence was virtually settled last night, while another of equal significance grew to more threatening proportions. In both state troops had been mobilzed.

In Toledo the United Auto Workers rejected a peace plan accepted by their employers, and it was announced that 90 other unions were ready to go out in a general strike to back the auto group's demand for recognition.

Since Wednesday 500 strikers and several times that many sympathizers have besieged the big Auto-Lite plant. Two men have been killed and scores injured. The militiamen have repeatedly resorted to rifle fire.

In Minneapolis the truck drivers' strike continued, with 100 casualties, one fatal, for ten days. It tied up the city's business almost completely.

A reluctant governor finally mobilized three regiments of troops, but the 3,700 soldiers were not called into action.

The union ratified last night a compromise peace pact and the operators are expected to sign it today, returning the city trafic to normal.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Toledo, O., May 26.—[Special.]—A National Guardsmen was shot in the thigh and another man had his lower jaw almost torn away by a bullet early this morning as disorder continued at the Electric Auto-Lite plant here, where a strike is in progress.

This followed rejection by the United Automobile Workers last night of a plan to submit their dispute with the Auto-Lite company to a special three-man board. This action brought on the possibility of a general strike in Toledo. There are 1,400 National Guardsmen now in the city.

The men wounded in the newest sniping are Vern Salibaugh, guardsman, and Payton Cass, a civilian.

The proposal designed to end the Auto-Lite strike and prevent its threatened spread to other industries was turned down by 500 members of the union when a secret ballot was taken at Memorial hall late last night.

Charles P. Taft, special mediator for the department of labor, outlined the plan, which called for arbitration by a board consisting of a member of the national labor board, a representative of the employés, and Mr. Taft, himself.

Reject New Proposal.

After the membership had rejected Mr. Taft's plan their business agent, Thomas J. Ramsey, called for a standing vote on the question of submitting the controversy to President Roosevelt's Detroit automobile board, provided that Auto-Lite and its subsidiaries, Bingham Stamping and Tool and Logan Gear, remained closed pending the outcome.

The members wanted to know whether the troops would be removed if they agreed to such a proposition.

Mediator Taft told that only Gen. Anderson could decide when to remove the troops. The standing vote then was taken and the members rejected this proposition by at least two or one.

Employers Accept Plan.

It was submitted to the members of the union after all day conferences conducted by Mr. Taft with officials of the Auto-Lite company, with the executive committee of the union, and with Adjt. Gen. Frank D. Henderson of the Ohio National Guard.

The company officials are said to have agreed to Mr. Taft's proposal, without representation on the arbitration board, but the union, which came into existence shortly after the NRA, turned it down.

The failure to reach a settlement left no hope of an immediate reopening of the Auto-Lite plant, closed

Wednesday night after the rioters had damaged it to the extent of $150,000, or for an early removal of the troops from Toledo.

Violence such as resulted in the firing upon civilians, the killing of two men and the wounding of many others Thursday was expected to be renewed. It was serious enough yesterday, with a constant exchange of bricks and tear bombs between troops and rioters.

General Walkout Ready.

But the real menace to Toledo now is the threatened general walkout strike. Lawrence Aubrey, chairman of the labor committee of 23, organized at the outbreak of the Auto-Lite strike six weeks ago, said today that of the 103 American Federation of Labor unions in Toledo, 90 are ready for the general strike. Fifty-one have already voted 100 per cent for it, he declared.

The committee of 23 was formed by the Central Labor union and its membership includes the heads of all the strongest unions.

Aubrey, its chairman, is business agent of the Motion Picture Operators' union, which is as powerful in Toledo as Tom Malloy is in Chicago.

A general strike in Toledo would shut down the street railway lines and virtually all the industries and plunge the city into darkness, for it would involve the Toledo Edison company, source of 90 per cent of the city's electric power. The electrical workers have been threatening a strike for a month, and E. H. Dunnigan is here as a special mediator on behalf of the labor department.

Boy, 12, Is Injured.

John Paren, a 12 year old boy, was injured yesterday when a tear gas shell, fired at long distance, hit him in the back of the head.

The rioters seized Stephen Kardox, an Auto-Lite worker who spurned the strike, from a taxicab, stripped him, and beat him severely. Driven through the streets with sticks and stones, he was finally rescued by police half a mile away.

The union has receded from its original demands of 20 per cent increase in wages, recognition on a closed shop basis, and seniority rights. Now they are pressing for a 10 per cent boost, recognition without a closed shop, and seniority.

All demands except recognition, with a contract, are regarded here as mere window trimming, since the company is admittedly abiding by the NRA code for the automotive parts industry with respect to hours and wages. It is pointed out that if the union obtained recognition and a contract a closed shop would not matter, since the other workers, now members of various organizations outside the A. F. of L., would come in.

May Affect Auto Industry .

The strike is of national significance, since a prolonged shutdown of the Auto-Lite factory would seriously curtail automobile production. It is one of the largest manufacturers of automobile starting and lighting equipment and has contracts with 38 automobile manufacturers. The plant has been closed since the rioting began Wednesday night.

Of equal significance to labor and industry is the effect that unionization of the automobile parts concern might have upon the automobile business generally. The Auto-Lite concern is a key to the whole trade, and the unions are determined to make this a test of their strength.

They are encouraged by two factors—the famous section 7A of the national recovery act and by a great influx of communists from Detroit, New York and other cities. Only some 300 members of the United Automobile Workers were employed by the Auto-Lite company, but more than 3,000 persons are participating in the rioting. The others are believed to be communist agitators, together with a sprinkling of union men from the other trades who are clamoring for a general strike.

Enjoins Outside Pickets.

The presence of the communists received judicial notice when Judge Roy Stuart of the Court of Common Pleas issued his injunction restraining all picketing with the exception of 25 members of the United Automobile Workers at each of the plant's two main entrances. The injunction was directed against the American Workers' party, the Communist Party of America, the Unemployed council, and the Young Communists' league.

Fifty-one were arrested by the militia yesterday and last night.

UNION RATIFIES TRUCKMAN PACT IN MINNEAPOLIS

Owners to Sign Today to End Bitter War.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., May 25.—[Special.]—Striking truck drivers who have held up motor deliveries here for ten days voted tonight to accept a compromise peace pact drawn by their leaders and the truck operators. The vote was ten to one. Approval by the operators is expected tomorrow.

The truce which put an end to violence Tuesday night will be continued until the signatures of individual operators can be obtained tomorrow. Then the strike will officially be over and trucks carrying sorely needed supplies to citizens and retailers will be free to move without molestation.

Early this evening the chances for such a quick agreement were remote. But the conciliatory spirit struck both parties at about the same time and each side agreed to a "trade."

Both Sides Yield.

The strikers did not insist upon a provision which the employers feared would lead to "closed shop" in the trucking industry here, while the employers, in turn, agreed to the union's request that truck helpers, as well as drivers, be included in the union membership.

The strikers did not press their previous demands that all agreements between the union and the operators be put in contract form and signed. Fear that the "closed shop" would follow such an agreement led the employers to deny this request in the early negotiations. Minneapolis is more of an "open shop" than a "closed shop" city.

The wage demands were compromised early in the negotiations at 50 cents an hour.

About 3,000 of the strikers met to ratify the proposed peace in their headquarters—a large garage. There was much confusion concerning the manner by which the vote should be taken. A viva voce test puzzled the chairman, so the distribution of ballots began. But this proved a herculean task, requiring more paper and pencils than the facilities afforded.

See Deluge of Freight.

Finally the vote was taken by a counting of raised hands and the results announced as ten to one in favor of the compromise.

It was difficult to obtain an estimate of the amount of goods which will be released to retailers and citizens when the peace becomes an actuality tomorrow. Some persons believed that as many as 500 freight cars of merchandise, produce, and food will flood the stores when the trucks finally move.

Shelves have been barren in many establishments for several days; a shortage of gasoline threatened, and green vegetables were hard to obtain

Among them was the creation of an arbitration board of seven members—three from labor, three from the employers, and a seventh to be chosen by the other six. This board would mediate any difficulties arising between drivers and their employers.

Although the pact would allow workers to choose their own representatives, there is nothing in the tentative draft prohibiting employers from hiring help outside the union if they choose.

While the arbitration went into what most interested persons believed was the final stage, 3,700 National Guardsmen were still held under arms in the event of a reopening of the violence which marked the early days of the strike. It was climaxed last Monday by a pitched battle in the market place, where one citizen was beaten to death by strikers and a number were seriously injured. Gov. Olson finally called out the militia at the request of local authorities.

How much a part politics played in the prolongation of the strike became a matter of investigation today. An answer was sought to the question of who, besides the strikers, could benefit by the continued throttling of essential business.

Some business men feel that they were being "starved out." They have been unable to get goods and business is falling off.

Since the strike began Gov. Olson has been active in negotiations between the strikers and the employers.

He is seeking renomination in June for his third term. Like most of the public officials in Minnesota, he carries the Farmer-Labor banner. He is only 42 years old and before being elected governor in 1930 served eight years as prosecutor for Hennepin county, of which Minneapolis is the county seat.

Olson was reëlected in 1932. Many political observers here believe he has his eyes on the United States senate and will run against Senator Thomas D. Schall, a blind man, in 1936. Schall will then have completed his first term, having defeated the picturesque Magnus Johnson, who is now in the house at Washington.

Officials Encourage Union.

When the truck drivers organized their union, earlier this year, the governor sent word by a representative, commending their action. This caused some eye lifting, for Minneapolis is largely an open shop town, and gave Olson a hearty vote while prosecutor and on both his elections to the governorship.

K. K. Solberg, the lieutenant governor, has gone even farther than Olson in espousal of the truckers' cause. He spoke at the strikers' mass meeting Wednesday night and gave words of encouragement.

Another headliner was Congressman F. B. Shoemaker of Redwing, the ex-convict, who has managed to keep in close touch with the police recently both in Washington and Minneapolis. He was one of the combatants in last Monday's riot in the market place where a substantial citizen was killed and dozens injured. Shoemaker drew a fine of $50 in the Municipal court for that escapade.

Cite Executive's "Radical" Speech.

Since the strike began and the governor became a major figure in ventures toward its settlement, many sober minded citizens have been musing over Olson's address before the Farmer-Labor convention at St. Paul in March.

This was the widely quoted "radical" speech. When the governor declared for a "coöperative commonwealth," with such built-up phrases as these: "Now I am frank to say that I am not a Liberal. I enjoy working on a common basis with Liberals for their platforms, etc., but I am not a Liberal. I am just what I want to be—I am a radical. I am a radical in the sense that I want a definite change in the system. I am not satisfied with tinkering. I am not satisfied with patching; I am not satisfied with hanging a laurel wreath upon burglars and thieves and pirates and calling them code authorities or something else."

A little farther on in his flamboyant credo Olson declared that "When the final clash comes between Americanism and Fascism, we will find a so-called Red as the defender of democracy and the super patriot and captain of industry on the side of mass slavery."

New Deal Foresees Warlike Summer on the Labor Front

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—Already torn by strikes and bloodshed, the nation must look forward to a summer in which capital and labor "fight it out" for dominance in industry.

This, it was understood today, is the view of President Roosevelt and Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson. Neither the chief executive nor his NRA administrator would comment directly on the industrial warfare now flaming across the country, but reports are that they both foresee an increase in labor troubles as a necessary phase of recovery.

Although the Wagner labor disputes bill, reported in the senate today, may do something to smooth out crises by providing means of arbitration, the measure will not prevent the coming conflict between labor and its employers, according to the belief attributed to the President and to Johnson. The government at best can only umpire the fight.

The White House and the NRA are both keeping in close touch by long distance telephone with labor strife in a half dozen cities. The most serious situation is that in Toledo.

The President is believed to be particularly interested in the Toledo situation and to be receiving from the labor department all news that its agents in Toledo send in. Reports received here and presumably forwarded to the White House are said to indicate that the Toledo flare-up is due to unrest over discredited political and business leader s as well as over labor conditions.

The Toledo strike has been termed in high administration circles a "discriminating" one, aimed at certain persons who have attracted popular disfavor.

Added significance is given to the present opening skirmishes in Toledo and elsewhere by the fact that all of the strikes and strike threats concern union recognition rather than wages and hours, according to views expressed by the NRA.

The threat of the steel union to strike unless recognized and the defiance of the steel executives is cited as a case in point. Lines are being drawn for a showdown battle to determine the relative positions of capital and labor in industry, according to the official view.

"Either the labor unions march in and stay this summer or they will be pushed back again?" a high NRA official was asked during a discussion of the strike situation. His answer was yes.

Both the President and Johnson are reported to regard the increase in strikes as inevitably a part of recovery. In the past, they reputedly hold, periods of rising wages, employment, prices, and profits have always been marked by industrial warfare.

Although the President is said to regard strikes as inevitable and the government as essentially helpless, he is said also to be incensed at industrial and labor leaders' actions to aggravate the situation by being "autocratic." The recent haughty exchange of words between the steel companies and their workers is reported to have irritated the White House.

LABOR MEASURE ABOUT TO FACE TEST IN SENATE

Text of Wagner Bill Is Not Yet Revealed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—The country's latest and most violent outbreak of labor trouble brought a report on the long awaited, much debated Wagner "labor disputes bill" out of the senate labor committee today.

The measure itself is to be started on a seemingly uncertain route to passage when it is introduced in the senate tomorrow. The text of the bill itself was not made public tonight because, Chairman David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.] explained, two committee members were still unprepared to say whether they were for or against some of its provisions.

Roosevelt Favors Passage.

President Roosevelt and Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson have both said they hoped the bill might pass. But senate leaders have yet to promise that they would give it the preferred position which would assure its adoption before adjournment.

On the basis of the committee's report, the bill which will emerge from the labor committee is considerably different in several respects from the bill originally introduced by Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of the present national labor board. The pulling and hauling which have taken place over the bill appear to have altered numerous provisions.

These provisions, as they are explained in the report, may be roughly divided into three groups: The definition of "unfair labor practices"; the creation of a new board to be known as the national industrial adjustment board, and the setting up of a new formula for employé representation.

Four Unfair Practices.

There are to be four unfair labor practices:

1. Employers are not "to attempt, by interference or coercion, to impair the exercise by employés of the right to form or join labor organizations."

2. Employés are not to interfere with the freedom of employers to unite and coöperate within the limitations of the anti-trust laws.

3. Employers are not to dictate concerning the formation on conduct of employés' organizations, but may advise and coöperate. "The object of the third unfair labor practice is to remove from the industrial scene unfair pressure, not fair discussion," the committee report stated. Employers may in certain cases contribute financially to the organizations of their employés.

4. Employers are not to hire or discharge or in any way discriminate against an employé because of his membership or nonmembership in any labor organization. But employers may voluntarily agree with their employés that new workers shall be required to join an employés' organization.

Limitation Is Explained.

This last provision, with its tendency to encourage the closed shop, is to be limited, the report explains, saying:

"The committee is of the opinion that if employers and employés, of their own accord, in a voluntary spirit of coöperation, want to require persons thereafter seeking employment to belong to an organization, they ought generally to be allowed to do so. This always has been the law, and in many industries and plants it has worked remarkably well. But the committee, recognizing the danger of abuse, has inserted two restrictions:

"First, such an agreement can be made only as to 'a person seeking employment.' If a worker already has a position the employer cannot agree with a majority of his employés that the worker will be discharged unless he joins an organization.

"A second restriction is that an employer cannot make a contract conditioning employment upon membership in a labor organization unless that organization is one that was established without the employer's interference or coercion, has been maintained without his dominance or financial support, and is not controled by him. Unless this restriction were written into the bill it would be possible for an employer to defeat one of its primary objectives."

President Names Members.

The new national industrial adjustment board is to be composed of three members, appointed by the President. Likewise appointed by the President are to be panels of representatives of employers and employés, who shall be called on in rotation, so that in its deliberations the board shall have always on it one representative of each group. The board is to be nominally in the department of labor, but its decisions shall not be subject to review by the secretary of labor.

Asserting that much misunderstanding has arisen concerning the scope of the board's authority, the report states:

"Nothing in the bill allows the board or any other branch or agency of the government to fix wages, to regulate rates of pay, to limit hours of work, or to affect or govern sanitary or similar working conditions in any establishment or place of employment. In such matters the board (like any nongovernmental group of persons) is available for voluntary arbitration if, and only if, all the parties invoke its aid.

Local Settlements Sought.

"There is nothing in the bill which makes it impossible for grievances or disputes to be settled locally or through the aid of appropriate machinery in the several states, and every effort has been made to avoid the embarrassment and inconvenience to both employers and employés of being called to settle in Washington a dispute which might be adjusted locally.

"The board is not going to be empowered to settle all labor grievances."

RIOTERS, TROOPS HOLD FIRE TO LET A BUXOM WOMAN CROSS STREET

Toledo, O., May 25.—(AP)—Hostilities at the Electric Autolite riot area were suspended for a few minutes late today when a buxom woman with her arms piled high with clothing started across the intersection of Elm and Michigan streets.

"Hold your fire, boys," shouted a rioter, while a similar command was given guardsmen as the woman, her nose tilted skywards, appeared.

The air, which had been filled with missiles and gas projectiles, suddenly became clear. The woman calmly crossed the intersection. Then they began again.

FATHER SLAYS 2 BANK BANDITS TO AVENGE SON

Foils Bold Holdup in South Holland.

Jacob De Young, a mild mannered father whose son, Peter, was slain by robbers last Feb. 10, yesterday shot and killed two bank bandits and wounded a third when they sought to hold up the South Holland Trust and Savings bank at 159th street and South Park avenue, near Harvey. Three other members of the gang fled without loot, carrying their wounded companion with them, while vigilantes from nearby buildings poured bullets into the rear of their car.

De Young later expressed the belief that the bandits were the same gunmen who killed his son in a previous raid on the same bank. Peter De Young met his death while taking his father's place as guard in the bank.

"I only wish I'd shot more of them," the father declared.

Members of 42 Gang.

The dead bandits were identified as John Cozzi, 21 years old, 1106 Taylor street, and Ben Toccio, 22 years old, 725 Sholto street. Cozzi was slain outright and Toccio died later at the Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey. The wounded man is Isadore Pincus, 20 years old, 1140 South Whipple street. He was found by the police in the Jefferson Park hospital. All three robbers were said by police to be members of the "42" gang of Chicago.

Last night Toccio's body was identified as that of one of four bandits who shot and killed Policeman Patrick J. Redmond of the Kensington station on May 8. Redmond was slain during an attempted holdup of the High Step inn, 644 East 113th street.

Walk Into a Trap.

The South Holland robbers walked into a trap which had been carefully set for them earlier in the morning. Chief of Police Leonard Lagestee had observed a Ford V-8 sedan containing six men enter the town and cruise slowly past the bank a few minutes after the institution had opened.

The chief rushed to the bank and warned De Young, who retreated with a high powered rifle to a steel, curtain shrouded cage on the balcony of the institution. Then Lagestee went across the street and told Neal Van Kanegan, garage owner and vigilante, of his suspicions. Following a plan devised some time ago, other vigilantes were notified.

In a few minutes the bandits drove up and parked their car in front of the bank. Leaving one companion at the wheel, the other five started toward the bank. One remained at the door while the other four went into the institution, brandishing their weapons and shouting that it was a holdup.

Bank President at Desk.

Inside the bank, besides De Young, were Charles E. Waterman, president; his son, Milton H. Waterman, cashier; Herman Dykema, assistant cashier, and two stenographers, Miss Alita Dykema and Miss Cornelia De Young. The latter is not related to the guard.

One of the bandits, later identified as Cozzi, poked the muzzle of his shotgun through the younger Waterman's cage just as the latter dived beneath the counter, warning his father to follow suit. A second bandit, Toccio, who was scaling a six foot partition which incloses the teller's offices, fired a shot at the cashier.

At this point De Young went into action from his cage in the balcony. A bullet from his rifle crashed through Cozzi's body. Cozzi dropped his shotgun and fell to the floor dead. De Young's next bullet brought Toccio tumbling from his perch on the partition. His next bullet stuck Pincus as the remainder of the bandit gang, bewildered and frightened by the savage attack, fled to the door.

Pincus Hit Four Times.

Outside another hail of bullets greeted the bandits. Chief Lagestee and Van Kanegan both opened fire and three of their bullets are believed to have struck Pincus, who was wounded four times. The village postmaster, in his excitement, fired through the plate glass window in his office.

The man believed to be Pincus was hauled into the car by his companions. The bandits sped toward Chicago while the townspeople continued to fire at their car.

A short time later Pincus staggered into the Jefferson Park hospital, weak from loss of blood. He declared he had been shot by a man during a quarrel. Chief Lagestee and Van Kanegan later viewed Pincus at the hospital and declared he was one of the robbers.

Peter "a Good Kid."

"My son was a good kid," De Young said in discussing the holdup. "He was brave, but the bandits didn't give him a chance even to surrender, let alone fight. I made up my mind that if I ever met up with them it would be me or them. I got my chance this morning.

"It's not very comfortable to think about killing a man. But there's a lot in the state of your conscience. If that's clean you can take these fellows when you have to. It was my duty to protect the bank. I wasn't thinking so much of revenge."

Toccio, before he died at the hospital, had refused to talk. Police declared he was once tried for the murder of Harold Cochrane, manager of a chain grocery store, who was killed during a holdup in 1932. He was freed because of insufficient evidence.

Among the vigilantes who seized weapons when the bank's alarm bell rang were Postmaster Russell Gibson and Jay Douwens, a rural mail carrier.

Five States Offer $5,000 Reward for John Dillinger

Following the ruthless slaying of two policemen in East Chicago, governors of five states yesterday joined to offer a common reward of $5,000 for the capture of Desperado John Dillinger.

A proclamation signed by the five chief executives was on file in the office of Gov. Horner in Springfield, offering the reward to the "person or persons who apprehend and deliver the said John Dillinger into the custody of any sherif of any of the above mentioned states, or his duly authorized agents."

Five Sign Proclamation.

The governors signing the proclamation are Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, George White of Ohio, Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota, William A. Comstock of Michigan, and Governor Horner. Each state has contributed $1,000. Besides the $5,000 the federal government has offered a reward of $25,000 for the outlaw's capture.

In the meantime three men were reported in custody in East Chicago as police and deputy sherifs in the entire region at the foot of Lake Michigan combined to seek the murderers of Policemen Martin O'Brien and Lloyd Mulvihill.

While there was no direct evidence that the Dillinger gang was responsible for the killings, which occurred Thursday night, circumstantial evidence, and the manner in which the victims were machine-gunned without warning, and without a chance to draw their weapons, smacked of the methods of America's most notorious outlaw.

Three Taken in Raid.

The prisoners at East Chicago were said to have been taken in a raid on a saloon in the outskirts of Gary, which police have been watching for some time as a rendezvous for hoodlums. Whether the men in custody are suspected of being Dillinger allies, or members of a local gang responsible for recent bank holdups, the police refused to say.

In Chicago, police of the city, suburbs, and the county highway, maintained a constant vigil, on information that the car containing the slayers of Policemen O'Brien and Mulvihill had sped in this direction after the shooting.

The bodies of the two policemen were found in their squad car on a lonely road in the southeast section of East Chicago. Both bodies were riddled with bullets, and the revolvers of both, unfired, were still in the holsters, indicating that the bluecoats "didn't have a chance."

Story of the Shooting.

The story of just what took place had to be pieced together by bits of information gathered here and there.

O'Brien and Mulvihill had been assigned to guard a highway along which Dillinger might be expected to pass, if he were on the way from Indianapolis, as had been reported earlier in the night.

A watchman who passed the spot where the killing took place said that about 11 o'clock he saw a large sedan, containing four men, standing by the side of the road. Twenty-five minutes later, when he repassed the place, the sedan was gone. In the middle of the road was the police car and the two dead men.

The double killing made nine children fatherless. Both officers were married, O'Brien had three children, and Mulvihill six. They must be cared for—if at all—by the funds of the Fraternal Order of Police. Plans for the funerals have not been announced.

Hunt Dillinger in London.

LONDON, May 25.—(AP)—Scotland Yard tonight joined the hunt for John Dillinger, Indiana bad man, it was stated by the Daily Mail. The newspaper said detectives were making careful investigations in London's underworld after Scotland Yard received a report that Dillinger had crossed the Atlantic. Several days ago police were unperturbed by reports that Dillinger had come to England, but today's information, the newspaper said, came from so many sources authorities were impressed.

Shot to Death by 2 Men While Putting Car Away

James Madia, 28 years old, 3018 Princeton avenue, was shot to death late last night as he was putting his car into the garage in the rear of his home. Two men apparently had lain in wait for him. One shot Madia in the head with a shotgun charge. The other shot him with a revolver. Madia's body was found by his 12 year old brother, Frank. Police said Madia was known to them as a petty character who had been arrested for questioning several times, once in connection with the murder of a policeman. He was a tailor by occupation.

SHIP IS RACING ROBINSON BACK TO CANAL ZONE

His condition serious but "as good as could be expected" after an emergency operation for appendicitis, William Albert Robinson, husband of Florence Crane Robinson, Chicago heiress, was on the high seas last night, being returned to the Canal Zone by the United States destroyer Hale.

According to radio messages received at the naval base at Colon, the destroyer left lonely Tagus Cove, in the Galapagos ilands, at 7:30 yesterday morning. It was expected to reach the Canal Zone by tomorrow night. The Hale is making a speed of about 15 knots.

The operation on Robinson, who was stricken with acute appendicitis while on a 4,200 mile honeymoon journey in his 32 foot boat with his wife, was performed by two naval surgeons who made a thrilling 1,000 mile dash to the desolate cove by seaplane.

When they arrived, in response to Mrs. Robinson's radio plea for help, they found that the appendix had burst and peritonitis set in. His condition was so grave they waited for the destroyer to arrive and provide them more complete hospital facilities. Robinson was on the operating table for five hours.

In the meantime Mrs. Robinson's mother, Mrs. Richard T. Crane, was nearing Miami. She is making a train and plane dash to the Canal Zone to meet her daughter and son-in-law. Mrs. Crane, who lives at 1550 Lake Shore drive, left Chicago Thursday.

MERRY FAHRNEY WINS ANNULMENT OF 2D MARRIAGE

Los Angeles, Cal., May 25.—[Special.]—Merry Fahrney Pickering Van Eiszner, Chicago patent medicine heiress, was tonight granted an annulment of her marriage to Frank Van Eiszner, advertising man.

"It appears there was a greater degree of intoxication than was admitted by Mr. Van Eiszner or any of his witnesses," said Superior Judge Leon Yankwich in granting the annulment at an overtime court session.

The Chicago girl, who is wooing a film career, testified she had taken a drink of brandy and half of a whisky highball in a Chicago speakeasy last fall and awakened in a hospital some hours later to learn she was a bride.

"I never knew a thing about the ceremony that made me the wife of Mr. Van Eiszner," the heiress said. "I didn't want to marry him and he never proposed to me. I wanted to marry another man, an Italian, Count Gorgi de Gorgio."

She testified that she had been married once before, to Hugh Pickering, from whom she obtained a divorce Sept. 27, 1933. Asked why she obtained the divorce she said: "I was going to marry Count de Gorgio."

THREE DILLINGER WOMEN PLACED ON PROBATION

Seized in Wisconsin Trap Set for Desperado.

Madison, Wis., May 25.—[Special.]—Three young women who were seized a month ago at the Little Bohemia resort near Mercer, Wis., after John Dillinger escaped from a trap set by federal agents, were put on probation today.

Arraigned before Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone, the women technically pleaded guilty to charges of harboring Dillinger. The court imposed a sentence of one year and a day in each case, then suspended sentence and placed the defendants on probation for 18 months.

Captured on April 22.

The women are Jean Crompton, 22, who left her husband six months ago and became a pal of Tommy Carroll, one of Dillinger's gangsters; Helen Gillis, anemic young wife of George [Baby Face] Nelson, and Mariam Conforti, 21, a salesgirl who became the sweetheart of Homer Van Meter, Dillinger's ace machine gunner, after he confided to her that he was a traveling salesman.

Following their capture on April 22 at the Little Bohemia lodge, they were brought here and had been held incommunicado ever since. A week ago they were indicted by a federal grand jury along with other members of the Dillinger gang.

"Saw Little of Dillinger."

Only Mrs. Gillis showed the effects of the time she had spent in jail. She was too weak to stand when she was arraigned and her attorney had to bring her a chair.

The defendants testified that they drove to the Wisconsin resort on the morning of April 30 in the company of their respective boy friends. Some time after their arrival at the lodge they observed "a man with red hair, wearing glasses." They were informed later that the man was Dillinger but they saw little of him, they said.

Judge Stone commented that they had "got into bad company." He advised them to go back home and be good and observe the conditions of their probation. Each of the women indicated her intention of returning to Chicago.

KENTUCKY MINE STRIKE SETTLED, BOARD REPORTS

Cincinnati, O., May 25.—(AP)—Settlement of a strike of United Mine Workers adherents in the Hazard, Ky., coal field because of alleged undercutting of coal code rates was revealed today by Charles B. Barnes, chairman of the bituminous coal labor board for the area.

But, though revealing that the controversy affecting, union leaders claimed, 1,640 men, had been settled, Barnes said he was not in a position to give any details of the settlement.

Meantime Irvin Davis, president of the Hatfield-Campbell Creek Coal company here, and chairman of the coal code authority for the Appalachian region, said he could not say anything "one way or the other" for the time being.

The controversy was precipitated, it was asserted, by action of several coal mining companies in contracting to deliver coal to the railroad at 15 cents a ton below coal code rates of $1.80 for four inch and $1.90 for run of mine coal.

80 U. S. MEN-OF-WAR SAIL FOR PRESIDENTIAL REVIEW OFF NEW YORK

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. PENNSYLVANIA, May 25.—More than eighty ships of the United States fleet were headed north for New York tonight.

The fleet got under way from Gulf of Gonaives, Haiti, early this afternoon. While still inside the gulf the ships and planes and the 35,000 officers and men who man them went through an impressive rehersal for the presidential review which is to be held off New York, two miles south of Ambrose lightship, next Thursday.

The men-of-war, cruising in formation, will pass through the Windward and Crooked Island passage and will steam past San Salvador Island on their 1,312 mile trip from Haiti to New York. The ships have been maneuvering in Caribbean waters since May 5.

ACTOR GILBERT IS DIVORCED BY HIS FOURTH WIFE

Decree Is Won After 3 Minute Hearing.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 25.—(AP)—It took just three minutes today for a court to sever the marriage bonds of John Gilbert, exponent of burning love on the screen, and Virginia Bruce, former Follies beauty.

In her suit Virginia Bruce described the screen's great lover as an "arrogant, violent, and abusive" husband.

By answering "Yes" a few times to the questions of her attorneys the bride of a year and eight months became the fourth ex-mate of the actor. She was given custody of their 9 months old daughter, Susan Ann Gilbert.

Jean Bray, secretary to Miss Bruce, provided the corroborating testimony, asserting the actor was intoxicated most of the time during a trip to New York via the Panama canal just before their baby was born, and that he was abusive to Mrs. Gilbert on the voyage.

Property Settlement Made.

"Is the property settlement you made with Mr. Gilbert satisfactory?" was the first question asked of Miss Bruce by her attorney.

He held up a document by which she is to receive $42,500 worth of property, $150 a month for the support of their baby, and $92.31 for herself monthly for three years.

"Yes," she replied.

"Is everything you charge in your complaint true?" was the second question.

"Yes," she replied quietly.

Thus ended the fourth comparatively brief real life romance of Gilbert.

Extra When First Married.

He was an extra in March, 1917, when he married Olivia Burwell, a Mississippi girl. It was not many months before the bride left him. A divorce resulted in 1922.

In March, 1923, the actor, who by this time had won attention as a screen lover, married Leatrice Joy of the films. A daughter was born to them. They were divorced in 1924.

For four years Hollywood gossip frequently linked Gilbert's name with romances, and in May, 1929, Ina Claire, stage and screen actress, became his third wife. Final divorce papers in this romance were recorded in August, 1932.

In the same month Virginia Helen Briggs, who came to the screen from the Follies as Virginia Bruce, became the fourth Mrs. John Gilbert.

FAIR WELCOMES THE WORLD AT ITS GATES TODAY

Fine Weather Is Promised for Opening.

Parade Begins at 1 p. m.

The parade will form at 1 p. m. at Ohio street and Michigan boulevard with 10,000 persons participating. It will require an hour to pass a given point. The parade will move south in Michigan avenue to 7th street, east in 7th street to Columbus drive, south to 14th street, through the Court of Honor to the Avenue of Flags, south past the reviewing stand in front of the Illinois Host house, and then will disband at 16th street.

The parade will be divided into five divisions and will be met in the Fair grounds by national groups in costume. The first division is to be composed of motorcycle police, mounted police and Fair police, the Chicago Black Horse troop and the Musicians' post band of the American Legion as escort to the official party.

The official party will be composed of Maj. Gen. of Militia Roy D. Keehn, grand marshal of the parade; President Dawes of the Fair, Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, Maj. Lohr, Edward F. Dunne, appointed yesterday by President Roosevelt to replace Harry S. New as federal commissioner to the Fair; Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, commander of the Sixth corps area, and Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius.

The remainder of the first division is to be composed of veterans of the civil war, federal, county, and state officials, a United States army contingent, a navy contingent, and Illinois National Guardsmen.

Second Division of Parade.

The second division is composed of veterans' organizations, both American and foreign, and musical groups of these organizations.

The third division will include a float carrying the queen of A Century of Progress, Miss Lillian Anderson, of Racine, Wis., and her ladies in waiting Mrs. Robert Reed Jones, formerly Ruth Joyce Hardy of Chicago, and Miss Lorraine Nevens of Evanston, and 15 of the 48 members of the Court of Honor. The float will be escorted by more than 200 cadets in uniform from St. John's Military academy at Delafield, Wis. Miss Anderson was chosen as queen of the World's Fair last year in a $20,000 international contest sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and associated newspapers.

The fourth division is to be composed of R. O. T. C. units from Chicago and Evanston schools, under the command of Maj. John D. von Holtzendorff of the field artillery. The fifth group, to be made up of twenty-seven foreign nationalities, will join the parade as it reaches the Fair grounds through the Court of Honor.

The Afternoon Ceremonies.

Immediately after the review by visiting dignitaries the groups will reassemble in front of the Lagoon theater at 16th street, where the afternoon ceremonies will be held. Brief talks of welcome will be made by Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, and President Dawes. The afternoon ceremonies will begin at 3 o'clock.

The remainder of the afternoon and early evening will be left to visitors to inspect the grounds. The formal ceremonies will be resumed at 9 p. m. at the Lagoon theater. The first of the evening ceremonies will be the Admiral Byrd fireworks display. Speaking into a microphone in his lonely hut in the antarctic, the explorer will start a wave of energy which will be relayed to Chicago to throw a switch starting the pyrotechnic display.

Roosevelt to Turn On Lights.

At 9:45 p. m. President Dawes will introduce this ceremony. First President Roosevelt, speaking through the medium of a talking picture taken in Washington two weeks ago, will welcome Fair visitors and officially open the Exposition for the summer. During the presentation he will press a button turning on the giant lights, and revealing, for the first time, the intricacies of the new lighting system. Mrs. Roosevelt, also by talking picture, will inaugurate the giant Lagoon fountain,

At the conclusion of the Roosevelt ceremony massed choruses and guest soloists will join in the singing of "America" and the new Exposition will be opened and dedicated.

The opening day evening is to be turned over to social activities. The opening night events will last until dawn tomorrow if the demand warants.

An invitation to attend the Fair was broadcast through more than eighty stations of the Columbia network last night. W-G-N picked up the broadcast in Chicago and the program was carried through outlets in every large city in the country. With Ted Husing as master of ceremonies, Mayor Kelly opened the show and President Dawes of the Fair made the closing address.

$75,000,000 FAIR ART EXHIBIT TO OPEN NEXT WEEK

Half of Works Those of Americans.

Ceremonies opening the 75 million dollar World's Fair art exhibition will be held in the Art institute at 2:45 o'clock next Thursday, according to an announcement made yesterday by Robert B. Harshe, superintendent of the institute. Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress, will deliver an address before city officials, foreign consuls, and institute trustees and members who have been invited to a pre-view of the exhibition.

The exhibition, a part of A Century of Progress and presenting one of the largest collections of American art ever assembled, will be formally opened to the public on the following day, June 1.

Art institute experts have searched the world for more than six months to obtain the most notable works of painting and sculpture by American artists. The show will occupy forty-three galleries, Mr. Harshe said. The transportation of the World's Fair collection and its insurance will cost $100,000.

50 Per Cent by Americans.

Slightly more than 50 per cent of the works collected for the exhibition are by American artists. They include an entire room of Whistlers, featuring his famous "The White Girl," and representative paintings by Eakins, Mary Cassett, Sargent, and Ryder.

George Bellows' "Dempsey and Firpo" is expected to be especially popular. Many pictures of the Kansas scene by John Steuart Curry and Grant Wood's Iowa canvases will be shown. John Singleton Copley, the famous American colonial artist, will be represented by his portrait, "Lady Frances Wentworth," and other works.

A recent addition to the foreign galleries in the exhibit, which are said to surpass those of last year, is "Madonna and Child with Two Angels," declared to be one of the finest examples of early Italian art. Five paintings from Russia, three once in the collections of Catherine the Great, have also been added. They include Rembrandt's "Joseph and Potiphar's Wife," "The Music Lesson," by the Dutch painter, Terborch, and Watteau's sprightly "Le Mezzetin." Two moderns are in the group, Cezanne's portrait of his wife, and "Le Café du Nuit," by Vincent van Gogh.

"One of Finest Exhibits."

"We consider the exhibit one of the finest collected," Mr. Harshe said yesterday. "We think the American collection will please the public and the foreign galleries are as distinguished as last year. We see an opportunity to equal or surpass the 1,700,000 attendance mark of the 1933 exhibition."

An admission charge is being made for attendance at the special art exhibit, but other galleries in the institute will be open free throughout the Fair.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

There will be three performances of Wings of A Century at the Fair today, the first at 2:30 p. m. and the others at 7 and 9 p. m. The performance at 7 o'clock will be attended by state and civic leaders, who will join World's Fair officials in welcoming the Zephyr, streamlined Diesel powered train, as it finished its run from Denver, on the stage where the pageant is given.

The Mexican village on Northerly Island will be officially opened on June 2, according to an announcement made yesterday. More than 300 men are working day and night to complete it. Ground was broken for the village on May 2.

The oldest concessionaire at A Century of Progress, 88 year old Henry C. Lytton, head of The Hub, will not be present at the opening of the Fair today. He was called to New York on business. Ernest Gluck, vice president and general manager of the Hub's "Store of Tomorrow" will officiate at the opening of the store's exhibit.

Three Western Union officials visited the Fair yesterday and inspected the Western Union exhibit and branches on the grounds. They were Newcomb Carlton, chairman of the board, and F. E. d'Humy, vice president, both from New York, and A. C. Cronkhite, general manager of the Lake division, who lives in Chicago.

Mayor Kelly will be guest of honor at the official opening of the Irish village tonight. Admission tonight is by invitation only. The activities will center in the Irish Sponsors' club in Tara hall.

The Martha Washington ball at the Colonial village tonight will include a colonial supper, a floor show presented by Pierre Nuyttens with a cast of 45, and the launching of the D. A. R. drive to raise funds for the purchase of the Nellie V. Walker Lincoln monument for Illinois.

Col. Roscoe Turner, aviator who will try to set a flying record between Pittsburgh and Chicago this morning, will be received at the Administration building at 11 a. m. by President Rufus C. Dawes of A Century of Progress. From there he will go to Enchanted Island, where he will speak to children at a reception. If weather conditions are suitable, he will take off for Indianapolis at 5 p. m. in an effort to establish a speed record between Chicago and Indianapolis.

The W-G-N studio in the building next to the Lagoon theater will be dedicated tonight at 6:45 p. m. Those taking part in the ceremonies will be President Rufus C. Dawes, Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Exposition; Edward F. Dunne, new United States commissioner to the Fair; Mayor Kelly, John R. Thompson Jr., and W-G-N officials.

SPECIAL TRAINS BEGIN BRINGING IN FAIR VISITORS

Transportation agencies will begin feeling an upward surge of business coincident with the opening of the 1934 World's Fair today.

The Nickel Plate railroad announced that four special trains, three from New York and one from Cleveland and Buffalo, carrying a total of 1,000 passengers, will arrive tomorrow afternoon for a three day stay. The Baltimore and Ohio road will bring 500 visitors on two specials from West Virginia and Cincinnati, arriving tomorrow morning and leaving that night.

Five hundred visitors from eastern Canada began arriving last night over the Grand Trunk line for the opening day. Others will arrive today and all will depart tomorrow. A heavier influx is anticipated this year from Canada, according to A. B. Chown, passenger trafic manager for the Grand Trunk, because of currency adjustments.

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois road will bring a special party from St. Louis this morning. The group will depart tomorrow night. The Burlington road will add about 20 cars to its regular trains today and tomorrow, and later will conduct special tours. Other railroads which will add special equipment include the Santa Fé, Erie, Chicago and Great Western, and Rock Island.

The Chicago and North Western will bring about 200 visitors from points between Clinton, Ia., and Chicago this morning, and the New York Central announced that the Commodore Vanderbilt would run in three sections tomorrow. The Michigan Central's Exposition Flyer will have two sections.

Motor bus companies also plan to bring in special parties.

HOW THE FAIR'S COLOR SYMPHONY CAME INTO BEING

Artist Tells the Story of Great Work.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Shepard Vogelsang has just finished painting the world's greatest canvas—the color symphony of A Century of Progress. His masterpiece will be unveiled today when the World's Fair opens its gates to the public.

He was called back in January from a study tour in the far east to step into the shoes of the great Joseph Urban, who designed the exterior color scheme for the buildings of the 1933 Fair. Urban died soon after the Fair opened last year.

Not only Fair officials, but such eminent designers at Walter Dorman Teague, whose interiors in the great Ford building are one of the masterpieces of the new Fair, will tell you that in this year's brilliant color scheme, Vogelsang has outdone his former teacher, Urban.

All Carefully Planned.

First of all, get the idea out of your head that this great painting is the work of any gay young fellow in a smock, splashing color about with gay abandon. Every detail, every smashing surface of red or restful expanse of green, has been meticulously planned for its effect on the whole picture, as the musician writes individual notes to attain the majesty of a symphony.

As Shepard Vogelsang tells you how he worked, you see behind his words that here was a job for an architect, a first class painting contractor, a showman, and a psychologist. And, first and last, for an artist.

His primary problem, in his own words, was this:

"The 1893 fair was one of long vistas—the White City. The commission which planned A Century of Progress Exposition said: 'The day of that is past. Those vistas were a background for the march of armies and royalty. We want our scheme to break up into buildings, themselves huge, but identified as groups with various sciences.'

Turn to Use of Color.

"The buildings were designed with the idea of using artificial light alone inside, for a mixture of natural and artificial lights is unsatisfactory. That left great flat spaces on the exterior, with no windows or colonnades to make them interesting. So we turned to color for interest.

"Some of the early designs provided color patterns for individual buildings. But Urban said, 'Make a symphony of the whole thing.' Buildings became notes. We carried a motif through them to certain points of emphasis, and then tailed it off through neighboring structures to prepare the way for a fresh climax."

If this seems a bit bewildering to the laymen, description of the application of the theme to individual buildings and groups of buildings may make it clear. The main entrance of the Fair is at 12th street. There the color note, first to greet the eye of the visitor, is red, because red is exciting. It draws you on. This red note is carried in the Administration and the Avenue of Flags down to the north side of the Hall of Science for a smashing color finale which under its lights at night seems to glow like a great waterfall of fire.

At the Hall of Science.

But the court of the Hall of Science requires new treatment. There, behind the rostrum for public gatherings, is a great wall which audiences must sit and watch for some periods at a time. So it is green, because green is restful. Across the lagoon this note of green is picked up again by the great architectural "trees" adjoining the Electrical group.

The Electrical building, with its high circular court, is principally a problem in form, Mr. Vogelsang went on. Its terraced circular court produces interesting shadows and to get the maximum effect from the shadows the court is painted white. The rear of the building is blank, uninteresting in itself.

It cries for color, and rich blue was chosen. The two colors have to be welded together as they meet at the ends of the semicircular building. The blue is carried around the corner until it finds a natural terminal in architectural details, where a lighter blue blends it with the shining white.

Emphasize Effect of Dome.

Again, the Travel and Transport building seems like a great machine. White and silver with black trimmings are needed to emphasize this effect on the great dome. But to keep the long shed of the building from bulking too large, it is painted in deep red with a black band. The rest of the buildings in the group carry on the motif.

Last year 26 different colors were used on the buildings. This year there are only ten, deliberately restricted for better recognition. There are two reds, one a brilliant, pure red, and the other deeper, with a note of blue. There are one orange, one yellow, one blue, and one green, with turquoise between them, black, used sparingly because it is a light robber, and white. The tenth color is a gray violet used principally for practical purposes to avoid glare or on the inside of parapets, where it must stand heavy wear.

MIDWAY A BUSY SPOT ON WORLD FAIR GROUNDS

Most of Concessions Open Today.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

One of the busiest spots in A Century of Progress Exposition yesterday was the Midway, at the north end of Northerly iland. Fifteen hundred men working in three shifts of eight hours were employed in this area alone in the concessionaires' efforts to complete the Midway for the Fair's opening today.

A tour of the boardwalk which winds through the amusement center along the lake front, most of the way within a short distance of Lake Michigan's waves, revealed a Midway nearly completed.

Rush Completion of Work.

Trucks rumbled to and from the iland. Workmen putting up the neat little white plaster houses and blue and green clapboard houses in the Dutch village shouted loudly in Italian. In the Streets of Shanghai a head protruded from one of the two 60 foot towers at the entrance and delivered a message in Swedish to a workman below. Architects stood about in front of other structures biting their fingernails. All declared that their concessions would be open today. A Fair official predicted that the 22 attractions of the Midway would be at least 80 per cent complete and operating.

Painters wielding small brushes sat on ladders and painted 18 scenes on the white walls and six pylons inclosing the 25,000 square foot area where Frank Buck's "Bring 'Em Back Alive" show will be seen. The originals of the paintings were designed by Borris Riddel. They show various jungle scenes in which Buck and his animals figure.

Within the inclosure the mountain 72 feet in height stood completed and ready for occupancy by 500 Rhessus monkeys. These monkeys will frolic over the mountain with nothing between them and the visitors save a moat filled with water.

Merry-Go-Round for 250.

Near by a merry-go-round which will seat about 250 children on one ride was virtually completed, the horses stacked at one side with their manes flying. It is to be a more elaborate merry-go-round than any ordinary one, an architect said, but the horses are the usual merry-go-round horses.

The motordrome, one of last year's Midway standbys, will be open without the lions which formerly rode with the woman racing driver. It is situated on the lake's edge, across the boardwalk from Streets of Shanghai. The gate to Shanghai will be free. This concession probably will be running today.

Canals which wind in and out among the quaint buildings of the Dutch village were dry, but will be filled with water for the Fair opening, it was indicated. Poplars nodded alongside some of the canals.

Twin Ferris Wheels.

Some of the other Midway features include the huge twin Ferris wheels, which will be turning today; a coaster which extends over the lake; a conical slide in the shape of an inverted ice cream cone; "Down the Lost River Through the World a Million Years Ago," and a ride called the Catapult.

"The Midway will be above criticism this year so far as morality is concerned," said J. N. Stewart, who is in charge. "It is going to be good fun and clean throughout."

Australia Rejects Jap Bid to Exchange Ambassadors

HONGKONG, May 25.—(AP)—Reports that Japan had expressed a desire to exchange ambassadors with Australia were confirmed here today by J. G. Latham, Australian minister of external affairs, upon his return from Japan. Australia rejected the proposal, Latham said, and Japan eventually agreed that an exchange of trade commissioners would meet all requirements.

KILLS SELF IN HOME.

Victor Nelson, 55 years old, a painter, ended his life yesterday by inhaling gas from the stove in the kitchen of his home at 1459 Foster avenue.

MUSIC GALORE AWAITS VISITORS AT FAIR TODAY

Operatic Singers Included on Program.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

If you estimate that there will be about ten times as much music on the grounds of A Century of Progress this summer as there was last you probably will not be far wrong. From all accounts there will be the joyous swell of instruments, the flashing dance, the peal of bells, and singing on the streets morning, afternoon, and night. It is a gay prospect that is being opened.

It is true that for symphonic music, which is being taken up this year in a big way, one must wait a little longer. The Woman's Symphony orchestra, directed by Ebba Sundstrom, will be at the Ford gardens for the week beginning June 7, to be followed by the Detroit Symphony orchestra under the direction of Victor Kolar for twelve weeks beginning June 16, and Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra will come to the Swift Bridge of Service for ten weeks beginning July 1.

Much to Hear Today.

But before that there will be much to see and hear. Even today—the opening of the exposition—in order to get a comprehensive view of the proceedings it would be desirable to be, in Mrs. Malaprop's phrase, like Cerberus, three gentlemen at once.

The drums will crash and the trumpets blare as the inaugural parade passes down Michigan avenue and sweeps through the Avenue of Flags early this afternoon. There is nothing more stirring than a colorful parade and its accompanying bands, and this will set the mood for the exposition.

Once inside the grounds the chief question will be what to hear first. Perhaps as good a place to start as any will be the Swift Bridge of Service. Here a huge pipe organ has been placed in the open air theater, and Arthur Dunham, noted virtuoso of the console, will give recitals at 11, 12, and 5:45 o'clock. It is to be a busy day for Mr. Dunham, since in addition to his solo appearances he is to take up the baton and conduct the Chicago Chamber of Commerce Glee club in two concerts at 2 and 6:30 o'clock.

Orchestra at 3:30 P. M.

At 3:30 o'clock Palmer Clarke and his orchestra are to present a program from the stage, the first of a series that will continue until the stage is taken over by Mr. Stock and the Chicago Symphony. Mr. Clarke will also conduct at 8 and 9 o'clock.

The dedication ceremonies at the Lagoon theater are to be in two parts, afternoon and evening. One hears that the popular Chicago tenor, John Pane-Gasser, will sing "The Star Spangled Banner" this afternoon when Mrs. Rufus Dawes pulls the halyards to raise the American flag at the climax of the afternoon ceremonies.

In the evening George Lee Tenney will conduct for the Choral Directors' guild a massed chorus of 1,500, with the celebrated baritone, Reinald Werrenrath, as soloist, in "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." The choral numbers will be "The Heavens Are Telling," from "The Creation," the Hallelujah chorus from Handel's "The Messiah," and later, in that part of the program devoted to an exchange of broadcasts with Admiral Byrd, Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory."

If you go to the ball for the benefit of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society at the Streets of Paris you will hear the solo singing of Giuseppe Bentonelli, an American tenor who answers here to the name of Joseph Benton, and who has just returned after a season at the Royal opera in Rome. He is a brilliant artist and well worth hearing.

Or if you go to the Canadian hostelry, the Doodle Bug, you will hear Coe Glade, and Frankie Masters' orchestra.

As for the Irish village, it would seem to be promising one of the most elaborate programs of all.

SCHOOL MUSICAL GROUPS TO GIVE FAIR CONCERTS

School officials yesterday completed plans for presenting bands, orchestras, and choruses from the city's 34 high schools in a series of 41 concerts at the Fair. Concerts will be played in the court of the Hall of States at 3 o'clock each afternoon, beginning tomorrow, and continuing through June 15. A series of evening programs is also being arranged.

Both James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, and James C. Petrillo, head of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, yesterday denied reports that the federation had barred the appearance of school bands at the Fair. "We are in thorough accord with the school project," said Mr. Petrillo, speaking for the union. "The children have every right to appear at the Fair, and we want them to play. We encouraged such concerts last year, and we will always approve them."

"We have an agreement with Mr. Petrillo that the bands shall play and there is no difficulty about it," McCahey declared. "The concerts will be held as planned."

The Tilden Technical High school band is scheduled to start the concert series tomorrow afternoon. The Marshall High school band and orchestra will appear Monday. Hobart Sommers, school supervisor of music, is arranging the programs.

ROB BANK MESSENGER OF $7,000.

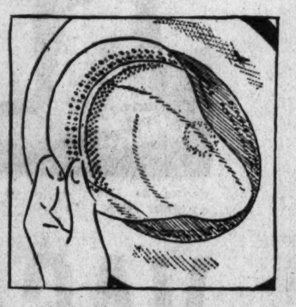
There's nothing cooler than a Panama—except

A VENTILATED PANAMA

Most Panama hats weigh around 3½ ounces and as such are just about the coolest things you can wear during the hot weather. But with the insistence for air-cooling everything from dining cars to sport shoes it was felt that something had to be done about the Panama hat to make it even more wearable than it had been. So weavers in Ecuador went to work and skillfully shaped into these fine, Supernatural Panamas little air-holes which would give perfect cooling. You can scarcely see this cooling system, so cleverly is it camouflaged. But it's there, nevertheless—you'll realize it the minute you put this "Air Lite" on. $7.50



Leather, hat and band are all ventilated.

ing. It is known to us only by definition. We say we can see through a plate of glass because it is transparent, and yet we do not know the first principle of how light is transmitted through glass. We say copper wire is a conductor of electricity, and yet our best scientists do not know, even in a small way, how electricity passes through one.

Great Discoveries in Offing.

"We rub our hands together; we say they are warmed by the friction, and yet we have no knowledge today of the magnetism of friction—or even of the cause of friction in business organizations.

"Each year we discover new things, which a short time ago we did not even know existed. I cannot help but feel that in a very short time we are going to break loose another great chunk of basic information which will keep us industrially busy for years to come.

"There are a great many people who doubt if human progress can continue on its present standards. Still others think that we have to go back to lower standards of living because they see no way out of our present difficulty. There are, however, a substantial number who, knowing something of the development of civilization, do not regard the evidence presented as justifying either a static or retrogressing standard of living.

"We are being told that if we develop new things we must accept the responsibility to see that they are properly used.

"We cannot accept this proposition. First of all, we do not know when we are developing a new tool of human usefulness, and secondly, a mind turned to fact finding and experimentation does not make either a good politician or a social worker.

Faraday States the Case.

"We must have open mindedness in dealing with all our new problems. When Faraday was experimenting on some of his first work in electricity, a member of parliament said, 'What use can this ever be?' He replied, 'You may be able to tax electrical apparatus some day.'

"Most people think that science and industry are interested only in the development of labor saving machinery. This is entirely a false notion. But we must not forget that for the last 50 years when the great program of building our railroads, cities, and industrial plants was going on, this labor saving was a most important thing, because we did not have enough people to do the work. And only five years ago we had a scarcity of labor in this country. We are all very much more interested in the production of labor producing projects and invention than we are in labor saving."

FRANK ON SOCIAL ASPECTS

Dr. Frank took up the theme where Mr. Kettering had left it—on the discussion of the failure of the social sciences to adjust civilization to the proper use of the revolutionary devices put at the disposal of mankind by the physical scientists and their artisans, the industrialists.

"There is no dodging the fact," said Dr. Frank, "that the relentless advance of physical science and industrial technology has confronted us with unprecedented difficulties. The development of scientific processes has moved with airplane speed. The development of social policies has lumbered on at an ox-cart rate. The blunt truth is that the revolutionary results of physical science and industrial technology have brought us to a crossroads where decisions that determine our destiny must be made.

"There are only two choices now open to us. We can call a halt on scientific research and technological advance until they no longer put so many strains on the traditional structure and functions of our social order, or we can put our brains to the business of making such readjustments in our political, social, and economic policies as will enable us to take full human advantage of this new age of science, technology, and plenty."

"The first choice is unworthy of American tradition. The second choice would mean that the spirit of the pioneers is not dead in us.

"To me the most disturbing fact of the time is in the number of Americans, in high position and low, who are falling victim to a defeatist mood, apparently assuming that progress has come to a dead end; that science and technology have been too efficient in producing a limitless output at low prices, and that the thing to do is to plan a lesser output at higher prices.

"To restrict production and to raise prices as a general policy is to me not liberalism but reaction, not statesmanship but surrender, not creative advance but cowardly retreat. That way lies the subsidizing of inefficiency. That way lies the sabotage of superior management, that knows how to bring out the cost of production and the price of products down."

Warns Against "Suicide Road."

"That way lies a permanent and perilous lowering of living standards for the swarming millions. It was not for this that the pioneers builded their blood and sacrifices into the foundations of the nation. More goods at lower prices is the logical goal of an age of science and technology.

"After the sweat and science of generations have brought us out of an economy of scarcity into an economy of plenty are we to confess that we are incapable of managing plenty and deliberately legislate a modified famine. One thing, I think, must be done in our schools, colleges, and universities to help prevent our taking this suicide's road.

"The universities and research institutions must organize to insure an earlier consideration of the social and economic results of the discoveries of the physical scientist and industrial technologist. Under the research system to date the social scientist is getting into the game too late.

"Must Work Hand in Hand."

"He waits until the discoveries of the physical scientist and industrial technologist radically upset old social and economic arrangements and then comes along as a kind of wrecking crew to clean up after the catastrophe and suggest ways of preventing its recurrence.

"The social scientist must be kept informed of what the physical scientists are up to, not after the physical scientists have completed their researches and worked social and economic havoc with the results, but from the very beginning.

"If the social scientists are on the trail of a new idea in 1934 which may prove workable in 1954 the social scientists should know it in 1934, not 1954. And through all the twenty years the social scientists should be considering ways and means of making this new idea help instead of hamstringing humanity if and when it becomes workable."

MASS HOME PRODUCTION

One of the suggestions for immediate action by industry came from Harvey Wiley Corbett, New York architect. All of the comforts of present homes, radios, mechanical refrigerators, automobiles, are the product of mass production. Why should not industry now, he asked, start the mass production of the homes themselves?

An automobile, built as the average home is built, would cost $50,000 and probably would not run, he said. He quoted Mr. Kettering as saying that the nation needs 25,000,000 new homes today. By mass production, he asserted, those homes could be built for a hundred billion dollars, which the American people would be spending on themselves. There, he assured his listeners, is the way to speed up the lagging capital goods industries.

SLOAN'S NEW DEAL VIEWS

Mr. Sloan, the host of the evening, cast his shaft at one of the pet theories of the New Deal when he said:

"Are we to believe that the amount of useful work to be performed is to be limited to what it is today and that the problem of unemployment is solved by dividing the amount of work by the number of workers, or are we to believe that the amount of work can be expanded, giving the proper economic machinery to make it possible?"

In addition to the actual speeches last night Mr. Sloan received nearly a hundred statements from leaders of science, technology, education, finance and business in response to his question as to the future of American industry. One of them, Charles Russ Richards, president of Lehigh university, replied to Mr. Sloan's rhetorical question. Said President Richards:

"It is of the utmost importance to society that research in pure and applied science be speeded up to improve the methods of industry and its products that man will desire to possess and which therefore may create new industries. It is inevitable that in every established industry the time will come, when, through labor saving methods and the attainment of a peak of stable demand for the products, technological unemployment will ensue.

"Through research and invention based upon research new industries will be developed as marvelous as any that have been thus developed in the past, and these will absorb the services of the men who are no longer required in the old industries."

SIX OTHER SPEAKERS

There were six other speakers at the banquet. Dr. Arthur H. Compton, Nobel prize winning physicist of the University of Chicago, spoke from the standpoint of the "pure" scientist, whom he defined as the scout of civilization into the unknown realms of nature.

Dr. Morris Fishbein told what man may expect from progress in medicine and surgery. M. P. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company, spoke for radio. Carl Gray, president of the Union Pacific railway, told what streamline lightweight trains are doing for transportation.

Robert E. Wilson, vice president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, discussed "heavy water."

Dr. Walter B. Pitkin, Columbia university psychologist and writer, gave a burlesque broadcast predicting what men a hundred years from now will say in discussing the scientific advances of the century now starting.

PRESIDENT VOICES FAITH IN INDUSTRY IN BANQUET MESSAGE

President Roosevelt last night sent a telegram to Alfred P. Sloan Jr., which was read at the General Motors banquet at A Century of Progress. In it he expressed confidence in the nation's industrial leaders. It read:

"I greatly appreciate your thoughtfulness in sending the telegram in explanation of the dinner conference you tender Friday evening to some 300 leaders in industry and science gathered to discuss previews of industrial progress. I thank you, too, for sending me the results of the extensive poll of leaders in industry and science and their expression of confidence and ability to evolve new enterprises and create more jobs for more people.

"Your reports are heartening to us who are concerned with government and who are as interested as you men of industry in revivifying national recovery.

"I assure you the federal government will continue its efforts to stimulate employment, increase American values and bring about progressively higher standards of living. As I have said before, private business can and must help. The nation will remember those who are helping. It also will remember those who believe that our progress in this world is finished and who make no constructive contribution in present emergency. I count with confidence on the loyalty and support of the nation's industrial leaders. Your meeting in Chicago on the eve of the reopening of A Century of Progress presages, I hope, a united and national forward movement. I wish I could be with you."

Peeress to Fight Charge Linking Her with Fairbanks

LONDON, May 25.—(AP)—The divorce case in which Lord Ashley named Douglas Fairbanks Sr. as corespondent will be defended in court by Lady Sylvia Ashley, it was announced today.

The case was set for trial at the summer term of court, but an exact date has not been fixed.

The announcement the case will come to trial revived interest in it here. Friends of the principals recalled that Fairbanks and Lady Ashley, a former London "Midnight Follies" star, had been seen together in public places since the suit was filed.

Two in Tête-à-Tête.

One of the recent occasions was the opening of a new American show in a fashionable west end hotel. British, American, and continental stars of the stage were present.

Fairbanks and Lady Ashley sat together on a divan in the hotel lobby, conversing for an hour while the supper champagne was served to several hundred guests.

The American actor has been busy recently with film work at Ellstree, but has found time to entertain some of the American golfers of the Walker cup team.

DETAILS ARE SECRET.

While full testimony may be given as to the charges which Lord Ashley makes against his wife and Douglas Fairbanks Sr., the general public probably never will know the details.

Under English law, testimony in a divorce proceeding may not be published, and only such material as the judge gives to the press is privileged.

Usually the judge confines his statement to a few brief facts, and lurid charges and counter-charges never are included.

Lady Ashley and Fairbanks were served in the case last February, and the latter said: "I know nothing about it."

Since the suit was started it has been stated in London that a reconciliation between Fairbanks and Mary Pickford will take place within a short time.

KEEP STORES LIT TILL 1 A. M. DURING FAIR, MAYOR ASKS

Well lighted and well filled windows should greet out of town visitors to A Century of Progress, according to Mayor Kelly. Yesterday he sent a letter to all of the leading business and improvement organizations throughout the city urging that all vacant shop windows be filled with merchandise and all store windows be kept brightly lighted until at least 1 a. m.

H. W. Rieger, executive secretary of the State street council, sent out a communication to all members asking that shop windows be kept illuminated until 12:30 a. m.

D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair store and chairman of the finance committee of the Keep Chicago Ahead civic committee, several days ago ordered that the light in his establishment be kept burning to 1 a. m. until the last day of the World's Fair.

"Chicago soon will be host to tens of thousands of out of town visitors daily and nightly," said the mayor in his letter. "We want to make the very best impression on all these visitors by dressing up our city and its buildings.

"Therefore, the Keep Chicago Ahead civic committee is urging all business men, particularly in the downtown district, to keep store windows dressed up and lighted, at least until 1 a. m. each night, including Sunday.

"'The committee also is suggesting to building owners and managers that they arrange to fill vacant store fronts with merchandise or other displays."

NATION'S LEADERS RAISE CURTAIN; GLIMPSE FUTURE

Ten leaders in science and industry were guests last night of Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the General Motors corporation. They addressed banquet guests at the Fair and predicted for the future:

Increase of man's life span to 70 years.

Electric motors operated by sunlight.

Elimination of infectious diseases.

Airplanes powered by stations on the ground.

Artificial production of living cells.

Recovery of gold from sea water.

Houses, factory built and priced to include land, for $2,000.

Reduction of one day in transcontinental train schedules and regular cross-continent plane travel in fifteen hours.

Motion pictures, stereoscopic and faithful in color to the original, and radios which will record on paper messages picked from the air.

GETOUT! ENGLAND TOLD AS SENATE DIES IN IRELAND

De Valera Sees Action a Step Nearer to Republic

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, May 25.—(AP)—Final passage today of the bill abolishing the senate was accepted in government circles as bringing the Irish Free State a step nearer to becoming a republic.

"We want England to get out," said President Eamon de Valera, after the dail eireann had passed the bill. "We do not want to have anything to do with Britain. Afterwards if there is any form of association it must be in the common interest of both.

To Weigh Advantages.

"We must be the judges of whether it is to our advantage or not."

The president of the Free State apparently had abandoned all hope that Ulster may be included in any Irish republic, and is ready to make plans without northern Ireland.

No definite plan was mentioned, and none is expected to be put forward before March, 1935, when abolition of the senate will become effective.

Until that date any action of the dail would have to have senate approval.

Called Senate a "Menace."

De Valera charged that the senate is "an absolute menace" which has gone out of its way to block legislation of the party in control. His opponents answered he was seeking to establish himself as dictator. The final vote on passage was 54 to 38.

Speaking of the republic he declared when it comes it will be effective "and not a debacle such as occurred in 1921," when the Free State came into being.

PHONE COMPANY GIVES UP RATE FIGHT; WILL PAY

Starts Organizing a Staf for Coinbox Refunds.

The Illinois Bell Telephone company yesterday started organizing a staf to pay out an estimated refund of $30,000,000, including $9,000,000 of interest, to Chicagoans who have used certain classes of telephone coin box service during the last 11 years. The company's action disclosed that it had not asked a rehearing of the United States Supreme court's decision of April 30, which upheld the city's long fight for the refund and also for a reduction in rates.

The opportunity of petitioning for a rehearing expired yesterday—the end of a 25 day period set by the court—and Attorney Leslie N. Jones, representing the company in Chicago, said it had given up any further legal fight. As a result of the company's decision the mandate of the Supreme court formally ordering the refund and the rate reduction is expected to arrive in Chicago on Monday.

Attorneys for the company and for the city then plan to go before Federal Judges Evan A. Evans, Will M. Sparks, and James H. Wilkerson—the court of original jurisdiction in the rate case—and ask that a final decree be entered. A refund program will later be submitted to the judges for approval.

Rates to Be Reduced.

The reduced rates ordered by the Supreme court, it was said, will go into effect about June 1. Under the new rate schedule each call over a minimum guarantee per month will cost 4 cents, instead of 5 cents, for telephone subscribers using two or four party residence coin box service and single or two party business coin box service.

Meanwhile, it was learned, the telephone company has gained permission of the Illinois commerce commission to rent 100,000 square feet of space from the Western Electric company in which to establish a refund office. The cost of paying back to the public the excess amounts collected by the phone company since the rate fight began in 1923 is estimated at $500,000.

Attorney Jones said he would confer in a few days with Attorneys Benjamin F. Goldstein, George I. Haight, and Edmund D. Adcock, who represent the city, to seek an agreement on means of expediting the payments. Mayor Kelly also discussed refund plans.

"If necessary we'll establish an office in the city hall to aid those who have money coming," said the mayor. "One thing is certain: No one will need a lawyer to collect an ordinary claim."

May Take Two Years.

Telephone officials said it might take two years to complete the payments. They mentioned an organization of 2,000 clerks working for that period in passing on claims and investigating old bills. There are now 400,000 coin box phones in Chicago, but it was estimated that the number of coin box subscribers during the last 11 years would run close to 500,000.

Attorneys for the city said there were only two cases furnishing precedent for refund methods. In Los Angeles last year the gas company had to refund excess collections of $3,000,000 accumulated during 34 months. In six months 87 per cent of the claims had been paid.,

In New York City in 1909 six gas companies were required to refund $10,000,000 to their customers, and it took more than a year.

It was said the telephone company now has $16,000,000 in its surplus fund and may have to get permission from the commerce commission as to methods of raising whatever else is needed.

FIRST VETERANS POPPY PURCHASED BY MAYOR KELLY

Mayor Kelly yesterday purchased the first poppy of the annual Poppy day sale for disabled veterans which is to be held on Monday throughout Chicago. The poppy sale will be conducted under the supervision of the Veterans Poppy Day association of five veteran groups. A committee representing the thousands of women who have volunteered to sell the tags, visited the mayor in his office to deliver the flower.

The mayor's poppy, as are the entire lot to be sold, was fashioned by a veteran who is a patient in a government hospital. Making of the poppies enables the disabled men to earn pin money during their convalescence.

Due to increased demands for relief of veterans during the last year, according to R. Patrick O'Reilly, treasurer, the association, hopes the public will be more generous in contributions this year. The association is composed of the Grand Army of the Republic, United Spanish American War Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion and Disabled American Veterans. All funds derived from poppy sales will go toward the welfare and relief of the disabled veterans and their dependents.

$3,210,000 HOUSING PROJECT IN N. Y. IS HALTED BY ICKES

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—The Washington Post says Secretary Ickes has halted a $3,210,000 housing project in New York City because he learned that the building company raised the price of the land to eight times what the company's president in 1929 swore it was worth.

The contract for the project, being built by the Dick-Meyer corporation, has been signed, and construction is under way.

The Post, says, however, that when Ickes found that the land value had been increased, he said:

"I told them that contract or no contract, they were not going to get another nickel until we got together on the value of that land."

The project calls for erection of ten six floor apartment buildings at Woodside, in Queens. The Dick-Meyer corporation, a limited dividend company, pledged various collateral as well as the land in obtaining the loan.

DR. BURTAN GETS 15 YEARS AND FINE OF $5,000

Bogus Bill Passer Will Go to Leavenworth.

Dr. Valentine Gregory Burtan, former New York heart specialist, was sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge Charles Briggle to 15 years in Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $5,000 on charges of possession and distribution of $100,000 in counterfeit currency. He was found guilty on two counts by a jury a week ago.

Judge Briggle, who resides in Springfield but who heard the case in the District court here, overruled a motion for a new trial before pronouncing sentence. Dr. Burtan, who has been in custody for nearly two months, because he could not furnish $25,000 bond, will be taken to the penitentiary shortly.

Defense attorneys produced several letters from New York professional people vouching for Dr. Burtan's good character.

Heavy Sentence Needed.

"I have taken those letters into consideration," Judge Briggle said, "but I believe that under the nature of the charge and the circumstances surrounding it there should be a substantial sentence."

The principal witness against the physician was Henry Dechow, alias Count Enrique von Buelow, who was formerly the husband of Mrs. Lottie Brenner, widow of the late Ald. Nathan Brenner. Mrs. Brenner divorced Dechow some time ago.

Dechow, who is under indictment and awaiting trial, admitted from the witness stand he had aided in passing the spurious bills, which were so perfect that bank tellers were completely fooled. Approximately $53,000 of the counterfeit currency was passed here.

Dechow declared that Dr. Burtan had given him $100,000 in old style large bills, with the explanation that a gangster patient wished to dispose of the money to avoid an income tax investigation.

Denied Passing Bills.

Dr. Burtan, in his own defense, denied all knowledge of the money. He admitted knowing Dechow and said he had accompanied the latter on a trip to Mexico City in 1932. The purpose of the visit, he testified, was to sell munitions to the Mexican government and not, as Dechow testified, to pass the counterfeit money.

Others who testified were Frank H. Smiley, a private detective, and Izzy Lazarus, a gambler. Both admitted possession of part of the currency at one time, and both denied knowing it was counterfeit. They likewise testified they had been told the money belonged to a New York gangster, who chose that method of disposing of it.

Dr. Burtan received half of the maximum sentence, which would be 15 years on each of the two counts or a total of 30 years in prison. Judge Briggle declared there was some doubt in his mind as to the innocence of Dechow and the others who testified.

COLORADO WILL HAVE CHANCE TO ELECT A WOMAN GOVERNOR

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—Colorado is going to have a chance to elect a woman governor.

Miss Josephine Roche, president of the Rocky Mountain Fuel company, known beyond the borders of her state as a woman industrialist who has championed organized labor, said today she was a candidate for the governorship.

In Washington to confer with friends, she promised full support to President Roosevelt and said she would announce her platform soon.

Colorado's neighboring state, Wyoming, once had a woman governor—Nellie Tayloe Ross, now director of the mint. Texas, with Miriam Ferguson, is the only other state to have a woman governor.

BANDS OF THREE HIGH SCHOOLS WIN SUPERIOR RATING

Lane, Senn, and Harrison High schools won a superior rating in the Chicago high school band contest held at Crane Technical High school Thursday night, judges announced yesterday. Lake View, Austin, Tilden, and Parker High schools received an "excellent" rating.

Bands awarded the highest rating are eligible to participate in the national high school band contest to be held at Des Moines, May 31 to June 2. Supporters of the Senn High school band reported yesterday that a $500 fund has been raised to send the Senn band to Des Moines. Parents of the Harrison Technical High school band members met last night to launch a drive for funds for a similar purpose.

Oxford Cloth Shirts have "lined up" their pattern and color interest with white chalk stripes on soft-textured blue grounds. Their button-down collars come right to the point in a smooth, trim fit. Light, airy and liberally cut they deserve an easy-to-reach position in your summer shirt collection.

Belts have accomplished wonders in the lively way they've managed to shift interest from shoulders to waistlines. In every detail they're far removed from the older generation of belts that overlooked the importance of color and design. The linen belts combine white with bright colors; the woven strings are brilliant yellow, or spice brown, or two-tones; the leathers are solids, or white with black or brown.

This scroll pattern tie is of tussa silk—looks something like pongee, which is certainly nothing against it at this price. The scroll patterns in two colors are on white grounds. The allover small open squares, dots and the other ring leaders of the print patterns are on colored grounds. The colors are unusual in that they look misty.

Up to now, phrenology was a study we hadn't given much thought to, but having experienced what it can do in the way of providing more comfort when applied to the shaping of a straw hat, we are all for it. This sennit braid boater with flexible brim and silk lining, for example, comes in long, round and regular oval head sizes.

GRIFFITH ASSAILS NEW DEAL'S CURB ON INDIVIDUALISM

'Philosophy of Defeatism' Hit by Athletic Chief.

The "defeatist philosophy" of the New Dealers and the multiplication of "umpires" when the game is already suffering from poor officiating were judged according to the standards of the athletic field yesterday and found wanting by Maj. John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the Big Ten and president of the National Collegiate Athletic association. Maj. Griffith spoke before the Executives' club at a luncheon meeting in the Hotel Sherman.

The men who are saying that ambition must be curbed and production curtailed are guilty of a defeatist philosophy, Maj. Griffith declared, and twenty-five years from now they will be jeered—if they are remembered.

Speaks as Individualist.

"There are some of us who do not ask that any one else assume the responsibility of feeding us," he said. "We do not agree that no matter how learned the smart men who are now running things in Washington may be they can order our lives and manage our property better than can we ourselves.

"We do not want to be fed from a spoon or led by the hand. We do not want to be herded and we will not sell our independence for a price. So today I am speaking for and to the men who ask only that they be permitted to fight their own battles.

"There are some 15 million politicians who are today living off the taxpayers. We would like to shake a few of these politicians off our backs. We would rather that our money be used to pay the salaries of school teachers than the salaries of politicians, most of whom have been selected by the spoils system."

Recalls Spencerian Adage.

Maj. Griffith recalled Herbert Spencer's words, to the effect that the eventual result of passing laws to save fools from the consequences of their folly would be to fill the world with fools.

"We have a childish and foolish belief that we can make men good by legislation," he said. "There is an old Chinese proverb which says, 'When a nation has many laws it is beginning to die.'"

His analogy between government officials and umpires in sport found the speaker questioning the failure of the governor of New York to call fouls during the boom days.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt is in my judgment a good man," Maj. Griffith said. "He was governor of New York during the boom period. That is, he was the chief umpire of the state of New York. He had under him thirty or forty thousand assistant umpires—bank examiners, bond commissioners, and the like.

"Many of the banks and other institutions chartered under the laws of the state of New York were expected to carry on their business in accordance with the laws. The governor and his assistant umpires were supposed to see to it that the laws were obeyed. We have since been told that the money changers got away with murder. If they did I hope they will be penalized, but I also would like to see something done about the officials who did not call the fouls when the fouls were committed."

Makes a Sports Comparison.

Again Maj. Griffith called upon the simple, logical reasoning of the sportsman to decide the point when he declared:

"In football, if we get a poor job of officiating we try to get better men in the future. We do not increase the number of officials. In America today we not only are hiring more officials—officials who are selected by the spoils system—but we are letting the officials tell us in what game we may play and also how we must play the game."

The founders of the United States perfected a new idea of government and of property rights, some of the objectives being to establish justice, to insure domestic tranquility, and to secure the fruits of liberty to themselves and posterity, said Maj. Griffith. How radically this concept of government is being changed he showed when he said:

"My thesis is that if government does well the things that it was originally supposed to do it will not have time to tell the farmer how many pigs he can raise or the pants presser how much he can charge for pressing a pair of pants.

Cites Past Weaknesses.

"I said a moment ago that the old idea of government was that it should guarantee a man a chance to make a living. A man does not have a chance to make a living if he is kidnaped and held in captivity and forced to pay tribute to the gangsters, or if he has to pay tribute to the racketeers.

"The government, we are constrained to believe, has not adequately protected our lives and property. It did not do a good job in running the railroads, in regulating the utilities, in examining the banks, in passing on the kind of bonds that were to be sold in the various states. Still we are asked to give the government more powers, to hire more politicians to order our lives for us."

Maj. Griffith compared the so-called "new eras" of post-war days and the late 1920's with the "new era" hailed by the New Dealers. He told of the speculative fever he found following his discharge from the army.

"One man offered me an opportunity to go in with him on a land deal," said the athletic commissioner. "He was buying farm land at $500 an acre that before the war had sold for $100. I told him that I did not understand the economics involved and he told me that we were entering a new era and that never again would we have cheap farm land. Today that land is selling for $50 an acre.

Stock Market Example.

"Later I came into Chicago and some of my friends who were buying stocks on margin thought that I was dumb because I was not gambling in stocks. I told them that I did not understand why a certain stock that was then selling for $540 was worth it. They told me that we were witnessing a new era and that never again would we have cheap stocks. Well, those fellows lost their shirts and the stock in question later sold for 1¼ on the stock exchange.

"Now Tugwell and Ezekial and Moley and Wallace and Ickes are telling us that this is a new era and that never again will we go back to free competition or to the belief that the government that governs the least is the best.

"I have no doubt that these men are sincere—and maybe they are right—but the fact that they are sincere does not necessarily mean that they are right. I visited an insane hospital some time ago and I met a lady patient who told me that she was the queen of Sheba. She was sincere all right, but I still don't think she was the queen of Sheba."

The Big Ten official told of how he preached a sermon at a small town church 30 years ago, and how his sense of a limited horizon was then corrected by a man of riper experience. As director of athletics and coach at a small Congregational college in South Dakota he was asked by the college president to preach two sermons in northwestern Iowa.

Recalls Error in First Sermon.

"I had never preached a sermon," Maj. Griffith recalled, "and if the president had ever heard me talk I am sure he would never have thought of asking me to fulfill this assignment. However, I was at the age when I was willing to try anything once and I accepted.

"In one of my so-called sermons I said something like the following:

"'We must admit that the young men of today do not have the opportunities that their fathers had. Their bridges have been built, the wilderness conquered, the land brought under a state of cultivation. The horizon has been reached and consequently we in a sense have been thrown back on ourselves. The young men of this generation do not have the opportunities of doing things that you older men in this congregation had in an earlier day.'

"The next morning as I was about to take the train an elderly gentleman came up and laid his hand on my shoulder and said, 'Son, you told us yesterday that everything worth while had been accomplished and that there were no opportunities left for the young men of this period.' He added, 'I think you were wrong.'

"How clear it is that I was wrong when we think of all the things that have been done in the last quarter of a century. The foolishness of such a statement is self-evident."

A Good Standard for All.

The standards of the sportsman hold good in all walks of life, true character surviving adversity and scorning a mode of escape from difficulty that departs from these standards, Maj. Griffith told his audience of business executives.

"When a real man suffers adversity he turns to gold, and when the weakling takes a licking he turns yellow," he declared. "'Today I am talking to fighting men, men who pay their debts and who do not want to escape by some devious process of currency inflation, men who will not sell their votes to the government for doles of any kind, men who have always 'marched breast forward in the fight, never doubting clouds would break, held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better, sleep to wake.'"

REGIMENTATION OF INDUSTRY HIT BY HYDE IN TALK

Avers American Liberty Needs Protection.

Kansas City, Mo., May 25.—(AP)—Declaring "American institutions and American liberties for the first time are in need of defense against a national administration," Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture in the Hoover administration, tonight invited all Americans to support the Republican party principles "in the defense of the rights, the opportunities, and the liberties of a free people."

Mr. Hyde, a former governor of Missouri, spoke at a rally opening the state's primary and fall election campaign.

Criticizing the policies of the Roosevelt administration Mr. Hyde said: "Republicans do not believe that prosperity will return through the forced regimentation of industry or the planning of dictatorial alphabetical agencies.

"A Republican is one who believes that the fundamental duty of government is to create and preserve conditions of peace, order, and security under which every citizen has an equal opportunity. . . . That does not mean that government shall penalize or handicap the winners, nor that government shall so regulate the race that all competitors shall have the same reward."

Hits "Relief" Usage.

Touching on unemployed relief Mr. Hyde said: "The name of relief should not be used as a cloak to promote expensive, nonproductive projects, to employ men to do vain and useless tasks, to foster indigence, or to recklessly dissipate the resources of these people who are still able to care for themselves."

The administration of relief, he said, "is always a local problem. The Red Cross and local agencies of community services should be used. They should not be scrapped to build upon the sympathies and the distress of the people a political machine. The Republican party believes society can and ought to provide relief for all who through no fault of their own are unemployed."

Assails Gold Program.

The administration's "willful, needless abrogation of the gold clause in public obligations and its concomitant abrogation in private contracts," the former secretary of agriculture said, "was and is an act of moral and intellectual dishonesty which is alike disastrous and unnecessary."

The Republican party, he said, believes in "sound, stable, unmanaged honest money," and "the experience of centuries has demonstrated that gold is the most satisfactory basis for such a currency."

"Is liberty safe," Hyde asked, "when the government is ceaselessly extending its control into fields hitherto reserved for states, cities and individuals? The inevitable mistakes of the government in these fields will be followed by new, more drastic and more radical measures to cloak the first mistake. Government propaganda is the logical camp follower of such a program. The next step is the choking of free speech, free press, to suppress information at the source."

BOLIVIA CLAIMS ANOTHERVICTORY IN 3 DAY BATTLE

LA PAZ, Bolivia, May 25.—(AP)—Another victory in the "Canada" sector of the Gran Chaco was reported late today by the Bolivian war office. It said a strong enemy position had been seized after a three day battle with the capture of 11 officers and 190 soldiers.

Previous releases described extensive mopping up operations after the reported rout of three divisions of Paraguayan troops and their disorderly retreat through Chaco jungles with Bolivians in pursuit.

"Collecting the great number of Paraguayan wounded has placed a heavy burden on all Bolivian detachments," said the official announcement.

An army report made public by President Salamanca said Bolivian forces had taken more than 1,000 prisoners.

HUSBAND IS SHOT BY RIVAL AFTER STREET QUARREL

Antone Wilk, 36 years old, of 3145 42d street, was shot four times and seriously wounded last night by Valentine Bien, 45 years old, proprietor of an automobile sales agency at 1708 South Ashland avenue, in a quarrel over Wilk's wife. At the County hospital it was said that Wilk may die.

Before he became unconscious Wilk told police that Bien, who lives at 6147 South Park avenue, had been keeping company with Mrs. Wilk for the last year. Yesterday, he said, he met Bien on the street, just outside the latter's automobile agency.

They quarreled and Bien drew a revolver and began firing. Bien ran into a tavern in the Pulaski Hall building, 1709 South Ashland avenue. Wilk staggered inafter him and then collapsed.

Police took Wilk to the hospital and began a search for Bien. At the Wilk home no one was found. Neighbors said that Mrs. Wilk and the two children had left two months ago saying they were going to New York.

BLIZZARD TEARS AWAY ANTENNA OF BYRD'S RADIO

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, May 25.—[Via Mackay radio.]—(AP)—A blizzard raging about the lonely outpost of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd tore away his radio antenna today and he had to make a hurried splice, he reported to headquarters of the antarctic expedition.

With the damage repaired, he was able to contact the base here from his advance weather station where he is making meteorological observations alone.

A minimum temperature of 72½ degrees below zero Sunday was reported by Admiral Byrd. The lowest temperature recorded by the first Byrd expedition was 72.4 degrees below zero and the lowest on record for any antarctic expedition was believed to be 75 degrees below.

RULES MANAGER HAS TO PAY OFF CAMPAIGN BILL

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—Three Supreme court justices ruled today that the manager and the treasurer of Mayor La Guardia's 1929 mayoral campaign could be held personally liable for a bill for campaign banners if they gave the orders or obviously knew about them.

The specific case involved a sum of only $1,516.30, but it was asserted by Gustavus A. Rogers, counsel for the Empire City Job Printing company, which won the appeal, that hitherto decisions had indicated that treasurers and managers of a campaign were not personally liable and that, if upheld in the highest courts, the latest decision might have a very wide effect on management of political campaigns.

The defendants in the case were Keyes Winter, now a justice of the Municipal court and 1929 La Guardia campaign manager; Ald. Joseph C. Baldwin III., 1929 La Guardia treasurer, and Samuel Falk, son-in-law of Samuel Koenig and active in the 1929 campaign.

LONDONER TO SUE CHICAGO HOTEL, ASKING $250,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 25.—It was learned tonight that J. W. Shillan, motor boat racer and managing director of the British Motor Boat Manufacturing Company, Ltd., intends to bring suit for damages of $250,000 against the Congress hotel, Chicago.

Shillan's suit, it was reported, will charge that the hotel was guilty of negligence in keeping secret the fact that while he was a guest there early last November while visiting the World's Fair there was an outbreak of amebic dysentery at the hotel. He contracted the disease and almost lost his life as a result, the writ will hold, and his claim is to cover the alleged damages sustained.

Shillan's solicitor, Claude Goodwin, declared tonight that he had cabled instructions to legal representatives in Chicago for the suit to be filed immediately. Shillan announced that he expected to visit the United States soon to press the case.

HEAVY DAMAGE FROM FROST ADDS TO DROUTH LOSS

Vegetable Gardens Hurt; Warmer Today.

To the drouth and the plagues of insects that have arisen against the farmers of the middle west this year was added another unfavorable factor yesterday. Frost was reported to have done heavy damage to potatoes, tomatoes, small fruits, cabbage and beans which were planted early in downstate Illinois.

However, it was asserted by Farm Adviser C. C. Burns of the University of Illinois, that the damage to the corn crop by the cold had been slight in the east central part of the state. Freezing was reported in Champaign county, but it was said that withered corn plants seemed to be straightening up under warm sunshine during the day.

Heavy Damage Reported.

Tuscola and Pana were among the downstate cities which sent in dispatches stating that heavy damage had been done truck crops. In the Chicago area the plants are not so far advanced and no large losses are expected to occur.

The lowest temperature on the official thermometer at the University of Chicago was 45 degrees. There was an unofficial low of 35 degrees registered on a government thermometer at the airport.

According to forecast, today will be fair and warmer. No rain is expected today, and probably none tomorrow, in this region. Scattered showers may occur, however, in the great plains and in parts of the middle west tonight, it was held in the forecast.

The drouth and the high temperatures early this week caused the peat beds in the Skokie valley marshes to start smoldering and the Winnetka fire department and CCC workers engaged in a drainage project took precautions to prevent a spread of the fire.

Crop Suffering Grows.

This outbreak of peat fires is customary each year in the vicinity, but usually the beginning of them comes in August or September.

Unfavorable reports of crop conditions continued to come in yesterday from a wide area of the middle west. In La Salle county, Illinois, some of the wheat dried up and, attacked by chinch bugs, has been plowed under. In Ford, Cass, Richland, Hancock, and St. Clair counties the drouth and the bugs combined were said to have made crop prospects discouraging.

EXPAND DROUTH AREA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—More counties in the winter wheat belt were slated today for special designation as "drouth areas" by the AAA as the intense dry spell continued to devastate crops in the Dakotas, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

Within the next few days the Emergency Relief administration will begin the distribution of some 6 billion dollars of federal relief funds to farmers in the sections officially named by the farm administration as drouth areas. Actual disbursement of the relief money for feed and seed was said today to await only the final approval of Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins on plans already worked out for putting it into the farmers' hands.

Await 150 More Millions.

At the same time officials of the AAA were anxiously awaiting the appropriation of 150 million dollars already authorized by congress in the Jones-Connally cattle bill. With a portion of this fund, the farm administration intends to engage in extensive purchases of live stock which will be slaughtered, processed, and distributed to the idle. One of the most serious aspects of the drouth, AAA officials state, is its effect on live stock growing out of the ruination of feeder crops.

The AAA, however, made no effort to relax its acreage reduction requirements in the drouth stricken wheat areas. Farmers who signed up for a 15 per cent slash in acrage are to be held to the agreement, it was said, despite the fact that the crop loss occasioned by the drouth constitutes a potential menace to the wheat supply next year.

On the other hand, the AAA has relaxed its wheat contracts so that farmers in the drouth areas will be able in many cases to plant no wheat at all and still receive the full amount of federal benefit payments.

Minimum Is Lifted.

Under the wheat adjustment contracts, farmers were required to keep their plantings at the average level on all acres except those taken out of production. This minimum planting requirement has been lifted by the AAA, so that contracting wheat farmers may refrain from all planting and yet be eligible for federal compensation for the acres they agreed originally not to plant.

The disbursement of emergency relief funds, it was said today, will be made without regard to whether the individual farmer has signed up with the AAA wheat adjustment program. The noncoöperating farmers will be granted relief on a par with those who agreed to cut acreage, it was said, although the farmer who stayed out of the reduction program will, of course, receive no benefit payments from the AAA.

"HIJACKING BY POLITICIANS" HIT BY VANDENBERG

Reads Reports, Makes Attack in Senate.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—The treasury inquiry into charges of political fund solicitation among some of its employés had reverberations today in the senate with a broadside from Senator A. H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] against what he called "political hi-jackers."

Vandenberg read reports concerning contributions to political funds by Plymouth, Mich., business men at the solicitation of George Woods, who the Michigan senator said was "secretary to the recently resigned United States collector of internal revenue at Detroit." Vandenberg did not specifically mention the name of the resigned former collector, Horatio Abbott.

"'You know,'" Vandenberg said Wood was quoted as telling the business men, "'that all applications for deposit insurance pass over this desk.'"

Senator Quotes Citizen.

Vandenberg said one citizen told him they "'didn't know, of course, whether Woods spoke with authority, but we felt we couldn't afford to take any chances.'"

Vandenberg said he submitted an account of the situation to Leo Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, and received from the chairman two days ago a letter saying:

"I would not countenance any interference with the operation of this corporation from outside sources, believing that all applications for membership to the fund should be considered strictly on their merits with fair and equitable treatment to all."

"From my own observation of Mr. Crowley and his colleagues," Vandenberg said, "I state my own complete belief in the integrity of this statement."

Vandenberg put into the senate record a memorandum submitted to Crowley by H. N. Stronck, assistant to the director of the corporation, last December.

Federal Report Made.

Stronck reported to Crowley that:

"I can safely state that I know of no case where:

"'1. Any of the activities of the FDIC in connection with the admission of the banks were subject to any form of political censorship.

"'2. That no applications for insurance in Michigan or in any other state were submitted by this corporation to Democartic national committeemen.

"'3. That neither in Michigan nor elsewhere were Democratic national committeemen or any other political officers consulted with or advice asked as to the qualifications of banks for admission to the insurance fund, and that the cases were decided strictly upon technical and legal requirements.'"

Berwyn Taxpayer's Suit Demands Mayor Election

A petition for a writ of mandamus to force the city council of Berwyn to call a special mayoralty election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mayor Frank Novotny on Jan. 25, was filed yesterday in Circuit court on behalf of John J. Kearney, 3136 Maple avenue, Berwyn. The suit, a taxpayer's action, says Illinois law requires that in towns of 500,000 population or less a vacancy in the mayoralty office be filled through a special election within six months. The petition questions the legality of the appointment of Maurice Shay, a former alderman, as acting mayor.

LOCK FACTORY DEFIES JOHNSON AND HOLDS ON TO ITS BLUE EAGLE

Rockford, Ill., May 25.—[Special.]—National Lock company of Rockford today continued to retain its Blue Eagle despite receipt of orders from Washington commanding the firm to turn it in to the local postmaster.

Indications were that the company would continue to retain the Eagle in defiance of the dictates of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, on the grounds that the concern has done nothing to warant its confiscation.

A brief setting forth again for the information of NRA officials the company's side of the labor controversy has been forwarded to Washington. In it the local factory pointed out that it had endeavored faithfully to abide by every code requirement in the President's reëmployment agreement and that it has sought to provide employment for the largest possible number of persons at the highest possible wage, although in doing so it has been "harassed, annoyed, and to some extent prevented by the constant nagging of labor agitators, including such men as Milton Handler, general counsel for the national labor board."

20 TAX RECEIVER SUITS FILED BY TREASURER NASH

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday, including those for 1932, were $228,692 making a total of $172,107,817 collected since the enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began April 28, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
May 25	$ 14,858	$ 67,894
Uncollected	14,241,850	35,443,744
	1930.	1931.
May 25	$ 44,119	$ 35,446
Uncollected	61,695,483	55,155,910

The day's collection of 1932 real estate taxes totaled $66,375 and of 1932 personal property taxes, $4,756.

County Treasurer Thomas D. Nash filed suits yesterday in the County court seeking appointment of the county treasurer's office as receiver for twenty tax delinquent properties owing a total of $38,211 in back taxes. The suits were filed under the provisions of the Kerner-Skarda act.

Some thirty owners of real estate on the south and west edges of the loop appeared yesterday before the board of appeals to complain that the 1932 assessment on their property was too high. Hearing on their protest was set for June 7.

C. R. WEBSTER, SO. SIDE BANKER, GETS 2½ YEARS

Clarence R. Webster, 39 years old, former vice president of two south side banks which are now in receivership, was sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan to serve 2½ years in Leavenworth penitentiary on charges of misapplication of $127,000 of the funds of the banks.

He was found guilty by a jury several days ago on charges involving the Standard National bank, and yesterday he pleaded guilty in connection with the Peoples National bank. Evidence showing Webster had speculated in the stock market with funds of the two banks was presented by Assistant United States District Attorney James C. Leaton.

DEMANDS INQUIRY INTO NEW DEAL'S PRESS GAG DRIVE

Sen. Schall Cites Five Major Onslaughts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—A demand for an inquiry into the administration's allegedly frequent attempts to muzzle the press and curb free speech was made upon the senate today by Senator Thomas D. Schall, Minnesota Republican.

The blind senator, who has often and vigorously expressed opposition to various manifestations of the New Deal, asked that a special senate committee of five be set up to investigate and expose what he said was an evident policy violative of the free press, free speech clause of the constitution.

"At least five attempts have been made within the last year to force censorship on the press of the United States," he told his colleagues. "A free press is the foundation of liberty and without it we become subject to an absolute dictatorship."

Lists Series of Attacks.

Explaining later what the five attempts were to which he referred, Senator Schall listed the President's effort to keep a free press guaranty out of the newspaper code, the program expressed in the pending communications bill of placing all means of press communications by wire or radio under a federal commission, the provisions of the administration money bill making secret the treasury's manipulations of the two billion dollar fund to stabilize the dollar in foreign exchange, that refusal of house Democratic leaders to pursue the Wirt inquiry, and the provisions of the tarif bill now under senate debate calling for secret trade agreements.

"With respect to that last," the senator explained, "we are being presented at this very moment with an example of the administration's undercover methods.

Appears in Every Bill.

"Though Assistant Secretary of State Sayre told the senate finance committee that the trade agreement concluded last December with Colombia is the best possible example of the agreements which it is hoped to achieve through the tarif bill, the senate is not going to be permitted to look at that agreement.

"Virtually every bill that comes to congress has some sort of censorship or secrecy provisions in it. Meanwhile, in the various departments and administrations—witness what has been attempted in the NRA, the interior, and the treasury departments—cabinet officers and administrators have issued orders to prevent news of government activities from getting to the press."

The Minnesota senator told the senate that he for one did not intend to sit by idly.

"Gagging the press cannot in any fashion be construed as a recovery measure," Senator Schall declared. "If the New Deal stands for censorship, then it is not new in the slightest. It is the same old game used by persons who would be kind. It does not belong in the U. S. and it must not be tolerated."

COMPLETE JURY TO TRY GOVERNOR LANGER AND SEVEN CO-DEFENDANTS

Bismarck, N. D., May 25.—(AP)—A jury to try Gov. William Langer and seven co-defendants on federal charges of conspiracy to obstruct operation of an act of congress was completed in federal court late today. It includes six farmers and six business men.

The defense had one peremptory challenge left and the government had exhausted its challenges when the jury was completed at 4 p. m.

Federal Judge Andrew Miller called for two alternates to sit with the jury and to serve in the event of illness or death of any of the regular jurors.

The charges in the indictments are based on government allegations contributions were sought for the financial support of the "Leader," state administration newspaper.

Nine were named in the two indictments, but State Senator Oscar E. Erickson, publisher of the "Leader," one of those indicted, has been prevented by illness from appearing for trial.

MACEDONIA SITS ON POWDER KEG; AWAITS BLOWUP

Fears Reign of Terrorism Against Dictatorship.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 25.—A mysterious quiet hangs today over most districts of Bulgarian Macedonia—regions which have been the subject of startling rumors since the week-end coup d'etat.

One of the first acts of the new military dictatorship of Premier Kimon Gueorguieff was to partition this stronghold of the dread inner Macedonian revolutionary organization, the Imro, between two provinces, Sofia and Plovdiv, just as though the Imro and "King" Ivan Mihailoff did not exist.

Mihailoff, a fighting man, is the leader of the independence movement in Macedonia, which has been divided among Bulgaria, Greece and Jugo-Slavia.

District Found Peaceful.

Rumors of armed conflict between Mihailoff's men and Bulgarian government troops soon filled the air after the partition of Bulgaria's Macedonian territory.

But, in a motor tour through the heart of "King" Ivan's country, no evidence was found of actual fighting. On the contrary, in such towns as Razlog, Bansko, and Gornad-Jumata there was an outward appearance of perfect peace.

Talking with the inhabitants, who for years have been paying taxes to two governments—the official Bulgarian and the unofficial Imro—one gets the impression that they hope Gueorguieff and his colleagues will succeed in the governmental reforms they promised when they seized power on May 19.

Paying taxes to one government, these people will tell you, is bad enough for them.

Fear New Terror Reign.

According to some old timers the people of Macedonia are waiting to see what the new government actually does before committing themselves. They fear a new reign of Imro terrors—with a repetition of past alleged assassinations and tortures—in case Premier Gueorguieff attempts to break the Imro's rule in the mountains of Macedonia.

This feared terroristic campaign, the natives say, is not expected to take the form of open conflict with the military, but various forms of sudden death for civil officials who carry out the orders of the Sofia administration.

Members of the cabinet expelled from office by the coup d'état were received today at a farewell audience by King Boris. Officers of the dissolved parliament also visited the monarch. The audiences were regarded as an honor unique in the history of the world's revolutions.

KING CAROL ARRANGES STAGE TO ESTABLISH A DICTATOR IN RUMANIA

BUCHAREST, May 25.—(AP)—Tenseness prevailed in Rumanian governmental circles today as affairs seemed to be moving toward a crisis.

Unusual interest was manifest because conditions here resemble those which prevailed in Bulgaria before the recent coup d'état.

An apparently authentic report said Premier Tatarescu had offered the resignations of cabinet members to King Carol, and that the monarch had indicated he would accept them at a time convenient to him. Tatarescu denied this report, but other ministers postponed political trips planned for Saturday.

AUSTRIA DECREES DEATH PENALTY FOR TERRORISTS

VIENNA, May 25.—(AP)—The government announced tonight the authority of courts martial to try criminal cases and inflict the death penalty will be extended to include offenses involving explosives, malicious crimes against state authorities, and malicious damage to the telegraph system.

The decree was decided upon at an all day cabinet session at which recent terroristic bombings, attributed by the government to Nazis, were discussed.

Announcement was made the gendarmes probably will be increased from 5,000 to 10,000 men and Vienna police from 6,000 to 8,000, and that the use of armored cars and submachine guns will be extended.

The semi-official newspaper Weltblatt asserted the bombings have continued and increased "because no one has as yet been hanged." The explosions have been attributed to Nazis by government officials.

COOLNESS

WHEREVER YOU WANT IT MOST

Haven't you often wished that you could move your office or home to the cool north woods to escape sweltering days and sultry nights?

Today there's an easier way to get the same effect: Roll a Mobilaire into the room and enjoy a breath of north woods coolness wherever you want it most.

The Mobilaire is the new Westinghouse self-contained summer air conditioner. In a single cabinet are combined the necessary units for cooling, de-humidifying, and circulating the air in homes, offices, hotels, or shops. It can be installed quickly and easily wherever electrical connections, water supply, and drain facilities are available. It can be readily moved from one room to another if desired. A simple snap-switch on the end of the cabinet turns it on or off at will.

What the Mobilaire does for you in the way of comfort, health, and personal efficiency makes its cost extremely reasonable. Telephone or drop us a card and we'll supply you with complete information.

VOTE TO RETAIN HIGHER PRICE FOR COAL IN CHICAGO

Operators Refuse to End Discrimination.

Mine operators from every eastern and middle western coal field, gathered here in conference with Wayne Ellis, national coal code authority under the NRA, voted unanimously yesterday to maintain the present discriminatory price schedules for all coal destined for sale in Chicago. The vote was taken during an all day meeting at the Blackstone hotel.

The operators were summoned to the meeting after a strong protest from Chicago was heard in Washington following the announcement by both eastern and Illinois coal operators early this month that Chicagoans must pay $1.60 and $1.50 a ton for the same coal that is sold for consumption in Wisconsin or Michigan at $1.35 a ton.

Prices Fixed by NRA.

Yesterday's vote by the operators amounts merely to the expression of their united opinion. The coal prices are fixed by NRA authorities for the various fields after approval by the national code authority. The vote indicated, however, that the operators will oppose any downward adjustment of the prices, which add several million dollars annually to Chicago's fuel bill.

West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, Appalachian fields charge Chicago consumers $1.60 a ton for two inch screenings, an industrial coal. Illinois operators charge $1.50 a ton for the same coal for Chicago consumers. These same fields, however, charge only $1.35 a ton for coal destined to the other lake cities, including Detroit, Milwaukee, and Duluth.

Refuse to Lower Prices.

The decision to oppose any change in their existing price scales was taken by the operators after a suggestion by one of their number that the discrimination against Chicago should be removed. After a brief debate the suggestion was tabled and the operators agreed that they would present a united front in opposition to any reduction.

Present at the coal conference was James C. Hoskins, head of the Lake Coal and Dock company, a Chicago dealer. He urged the revision of the price schedules. Subsequently, when the vote opposing any revision was taken, he angrily told the assembly:

"If a bunch of you coal operators, all interested in lining your own pockets, believe that you can come in here and decide just what prices you shall charge Chicago, you are mistaken. I have an injunction suit on file in the federal courts here asking for a court hearing on this question, and I'm going to get a decision which will upset any discrimination that may be artificially set up."

Hoskins' protests were ignored, however, and he soon left the meeting.

"Contradictory Price Reports."

Mr. Ellis explained last evening that he had summoned the coal conference "to get a clear picture of just what is happening out here in Chicago." He said that so many contradictory reports of the price schedules had been given to the code authorities in Washington that he had been unable to understand the effects of the price rates.

During the day Mr. Ellis was shown United States department of commerce records which disclosed that Chicago annually consumes 17,000,000 tons of bituminous coal, of which 9,000,000 tons is drawn from Illinois and Indiana fields. The remainder is shipped here from eastern fields. He also was shown reports of the Ore and Coal exchange at Cleveland, which revealed that in 1933 a total of 3,628,233 tons of bituminous coal was shipped into the Chicago switching area on lake vessels.

POLICE NAB TRIO IN AUTO REBUILT OF STOLEN PARTS

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 29; recovered, 31; stripped, 3 [from police records for the twenty-four hours ending at midnight Thursday].

Three youths riding in what they believed to be a "theft detection proof" automobile were arrested last evening by Sergt. Joseph Morrison and his detective bureau squad.

They were John Kamba, 24 years old, 5203 South Whipple street; Gasper Parisi, 20, of 5617 South Whipple street, and Ray Zaniara, also 20, of 3047 West 54th place.

Sergt. Morrison, after stopping the youths, examined the motor of their car. Neither the number nor other markings indicated it had been stolen. The sergeant then examined the body and accessories. He discovered then that the motor itself was three years old and apparently not stolen, but that everything else—body, wheels, and the various accessories—were stolen. The car was practically a complete rebuild.

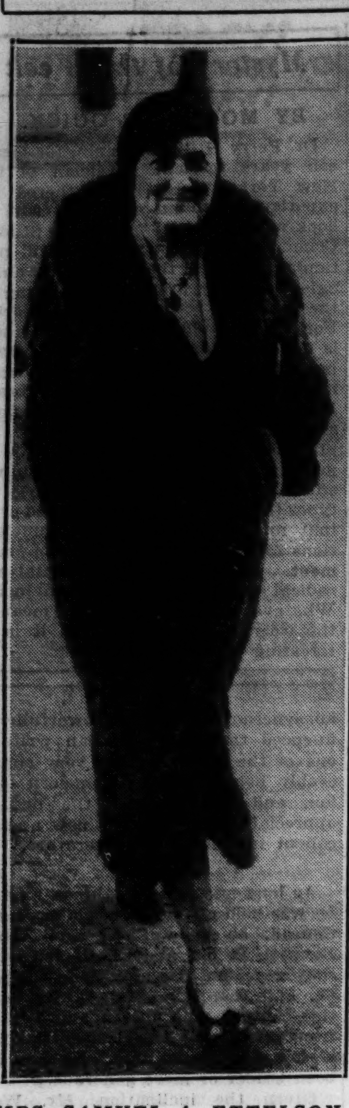
Called to Testify



MRS. SAMUEL A. ETTELSON.

ETTELSON WILL APPEAR AGAINST JUDGE LINDLEY

Wife and Chauffeur to Testify, Too.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—In response to a congressional summons, Samuel Ettelson, former Chicago corporation counsel and Insull attorney; his wife, and his chauffeur are expected to appear before the house judiciary committee tomorrow to present new evidence in the pending impeachment case against Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley.

Judge Lindley, according to Chairman Hatton W. Sumners [Dem., Tex.] f the judiciary committee, has agreed voluntarily to be present at the time to answer the charges expected to be made against him by Mr. Ettelson.

The nature of the charges, Mr. Sumners declined to discuss.

"I can only say," he replied in response to an inquiry, "that the committee believes Mr. Ettelson has information of sufficient importance in this case to warrant asking him to come here from Chicago."

Refuses to Discuss Case.

Chairman Sumners likewise refused to throw any light on the part Mrs. Ettelson and the Ettelson chauffeur, whose name he did not know, are to play in the presentation of the new evidence to the committee.

Pending the appearance of the new witnesses and Judge Lindley Mr. Sumners postponed further committee action in the Lindley case and the companion case against Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. A committee meeting at which the evidence against Judge Wilkerson was to have been scrutinized was canceled today.

Representative Sumners said there was little prospect of a committee decision in either the Lindley or the Wilkerson matters before the middle of next week. Tomorrow's session will be devoted to the Ettelson testimony, he said, and on Monday the committee intends to take up Judge Wilkerson's record.

May Clear Wilkerson.

Reports that Judge Wilkerson will be cleared continued to persist today, although they remained without confirmation by members of the committee. Representative Tom McKeown [Dem., Okla.], who headed the special judiciary subcommittee in its year's investigation of the Chicago federal court receivership situation, is understood to favor the removal of Wilkerson and Lindley from the bench. Other members of the full committee are reported to feel that the evidence does not warant such drastic action in Wilkerson's case.

Whether Judge Lindley will be recommended for impeachment appeared to hinge largely on the testimony to be presented by Mr. Ettelson tomorrow.

ONE OF 5 ON TRIAL IN BOMBING CASE PLEADS HIS GUILT

In the face of the testimony of a fellow defendant, William Walter, one of five persons on trial before Judge Francis B. Allegretti for a bombing conspiracy, suddenly changed his plea of not guilty to one of guilty yesterday.

Others on trial are Mrs. Sophie Svirsky, owner of a tavern at 665 West 18th street; George Patris, Frank Currin, former secretary of the Restaurateurs of Illinois; and John Poulos, alleged "contact man." The state charges that Mrs. Svirsky and Patris plotted the bombings to cut down competition in their business, and hired the others to aid them.

Harry Fitzel, a hardware store clerk, turned state's evidence and obtained a separate trial. He testified that he had made the bombs allegedly used by Walter and Currin. He testified that they had told him they were "going to bomb some Greek."

After hearing this testimony, Walter changed his plea. He was called to the stand, where he admitted one bombing in Currin's company, but maintained he had not aided in the second bombing, that of the Legion café, in the Kensington district, because Currin had not paid him for the first job.

Court was adjourned until today, and disposition of Walter's case was postponed until after the trial.

FLORIST DIES AT HIS WORK.

While working among the flowers and plants, Henry Rintelmann, 47 years old, of 5856 Slocum street, a florist in the propagation house of the Garfield park conservatory, collapsed and died of a heart attack yesterday.

OFFICERS DISPLAY WAR IMPLEMENTS TO CONTROL MOBS

Officials See Exhibit of Chemical Defenses.

Instruments of chemical defense for use in dispelling mobs were displayed and explained last night before Gov. Horner and other public officials at a meeting of officers of the 33d division of the Illinois National Guard in connection with a newly revised emergency plan for combating public disturbances. Representatives of organized labor also were present by invitation.

One by one the various objects of chemical warfare were plucked from a khaki canvas bag by Lieut. Col. Alfred de Roulet of the chemical warfare service, attached to the 33d division headquarters. Lieut, Col. de Roulet, a white mustached veteran in civilian dress, quickly explained the purpose and manner of operation of each of the instruments.

Variety of Instruments Shown.

He laid on the table before Gov. Horner an old style grenade, a new quick firing gas bomb, a gas canister to create smoke or gas screens of specific length, gas containers to be propelled up to 250 yards by a rifle bullet, and a new gas mask, "more comfortable than a baseball mask." Gov. Horner quickly passed the objects down the speakers' table.

Gov. Horner, the last of 16 speakers, declared he wished all citizens could know about the National Guard's plan for domestic disturbances.

"I am thoroughly apprised of this plan," Gov. Horner told the officers. "I am gratified that it has been devised, that it has the approval of Col. George Marshall of the army, and that you have called many citizens to hear about the plan."

The governor, who is commander in chief of the Illinois National Guard, spoke at length of the militia's impartial handling of the disorders caused by the rivalry of two mining unions in the Taylorville region.

"We have a fair amount of peace in that region now," he said, "and the people know that, as governor and commander in chief of the National Guard, I will insist that peace be maintained at any time and at any price. They know that is the theme of the governor and the National Guard."

Mayor Praises Guard.

Mayor Kelly declared that the high morale of the 33d division made him feel a thrill at being an American citizen.

"We of Chicago are not expecting trouble," the mayor said. "I hope the city will be peaceful. Ninety-nine per cent of the people are law abiding. But the best way is the way shown here tonight—to keep ready. The police could be reënforced in an hour's time."

Police Commissioner James J. Allman also expressed satisfaction over the plan and the knowledge that a trained force would support the police department if ever an emergency should arise.

Praises Emergency Plan.

Col. Marshall, who is senior instructor for the 33d division, praised the plan, which includes instructions for procedure in the event of disorders with which local authorities are unable to cope. Published in a 23 page booklet, the emergency plan represents a revision of several years of experience, and adheres to fundamental military principles, he said.

Victor Olander, secretary and treasurer of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, and Ald. Oscar Nelson, vice president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, declared they were glad there was a well trained and impartial reserve force on hand to maintain the peace.

STATE REPORTS ON CONDITION OF DR. WYNEKOOP

Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, who is serving a 25 year sentence in the women's penitentiary at Dwight for the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, is suffering from an old case of tuberculosis which has recently become active, the state department of public welfare announced yesterday at Springfield.

Dr. Wynekoop has lost 17 pounds since she entered the prison two months ago, but the loss of weight has been stopped within the last week, the announcement added. Dr. Imas Rice, a specialist in tuberculosis, who examined Dr. Alice, said that she had suffered for some years from so-called fibroid tuberculosis, an ailment peculiar to elderly persons. Since her commitment to prison, he said, there has been some evidence of acute manifestations.

Dr. Wynekoop has been apprehensive for the last few days over the loss of her home in Chicago, the announcement stated. Her daughter, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, said yesterday in Chicago that there is no danger of this happening.

FRANCE REVEALS PLAN TO SQUEEZE HITLER TO TERMS

Belgium Denounces Paris; War Fever Increases.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 25.—The gravest Franco-German crisis since the Ruhr occupation is looming up as the disarmament conference prepares to sing its swan song at Geneva. The conference is scheduled to reopen Monday.

According to reports in reliable diplomatic circles France is counting on the Hitler régime running into such serious domestic troubles within the next few months that it will have its hands tied abroad. Acting on this theory, the French have assumed an intransigeant stand against Germany's demand for rearmament.

Foreign Minister Louis Barthou, in his exposé of French foreign policy before the chamber of deputies today, indicated that France will continue to put the diplomatic screws on Germany through a series of defensive alliances until Chancellor Hitler is forced to terms.

Plan Mutual Assistance Pacts.

At the present moment, Barthou revealed, the French are counting heavily on a pact of mutual assistance with Russia and the little entente [Czechoslovkia, Jugo-Slavia, and Rumania] which would be signed on Russia's entrance into the league of nations. It would amount to a resuscitation of the pre-war military alliance between France and czarist Russia. Russia, incidentally, would be given a permanent seat on the league council.

There will be no dramatic gestures either of defiance or conciliation by the French at Geneva, Barthou revealed. The disarmament conference will continue if the powers insist, but the French would prefer to see its work taken over by the league of nations, from whom the conference originally derived its mandate.

In the Saar basin France will rest adamant on its demands that tangible measures be taken to insure liberty at next year's plebiscite—Germany's bare promise to protect minority elements is not acceptable.

Seek Pact with Italy.

Meantime the French hope to arrive at an accord with Italy which will definitly eliminate the Italians from the lineup of discontented powers.

In addition to the mutual assistance pacts with Russia and the little entente, Barthou said, France will play up to Poland and Turkey on one side and the Baltic states on the other will be amalgamated to nutcracker alliances which will hold Germany in its jaws.

An indication of the gravity of the situation reached Paris tonight in the shape of a note put out unofficially by the Belgian government denouncing France on the ground that it is preparing for a new war and condemning the soviet proposal for a mutual assistance pact.

Although there have been numerous signs, ever since King Albert's death, that Belgium is veering away from French tutelage and gravitating towards the British orbit, this unexpected onslaught from France's former brother in arms stunned official circles here.

Belgium Refuses to Join.

The Belgian note, which was issued by the official news agency, Belga, said Belgium is decidedly unwilling to participate in any such adventure as France is engaged in.

Concerning the mutual aid pact, Belga described this as "Herriot's brain child," conceived during his visit to Russia last year.

"As far as Belgium is concerned," says the note, "the intended mutual aid pact does not give her any other guarantees than those of the Locarno pact, except the soviet guarantee, while on the other hand it greatly increases Belgium's risk in case of an eastern conflict.

"Paris expects that growing tension of Franco-German relations may arise, particularly during the Saar plebiscite, when France, if necessary, will want to insure by armed force not only freedom of the vote, but also the safety of 20,000 Frenchmen living in the Saar basin."

Students Threaten Reprisals.

Another straw which shows how the wind is blowing is a statement issued tonight by the Nationalistic Young Patriots in regard to the recent incidents at Saar Louis, where French school students were insulted by a Nazi mob and the recent arrest of a French locomotive engineer in Kehl. University cells of the Young Patriots announced that they will take reprisals against German students in France unless the French government acts to "cool the ardor of adventure runners."

"If satisfaction is not given us," the statement said, "we will be obliged to exercise reprisals against Nazi students established in France, instituting thus, although reluctantly, equality of right and treatment. The Nazis forget a little too easily that certain of their own tribe receive a perfectly proper welcome in French universities."

Still another sign of the war fever is the arrest today of two more men charged with spying on eastern forts. One was an officer of the old German army and was caught photographing fortifications near Strasbourg. The other spy was a German laborer employed on fortifications at Thionville. Incriminating documents were said to have been found in his home.

NAVAL PARLEY TO BRING FORTH TICKLISH TASKS

Far East Situation Is Most Difficult.

informally agreed that some one of the signatories should give notice of termination before Dec. 31, 1934, in order that both treaties might end at the same time. The 1935 conference, therefore, is to decide whether there is to be a continuation of the limitation of naval armaments and, if so, what character.

India Important Angle.

The British government has indicated in no uncertain terms that it will not yield to the Japanese demands for naval parity. It could not do so without severely straining the bonds of empire, for Canada, Australia, and New Zealand, which compelled the termination of the Anglo-Japanese alliance. Britain is no less opposed to any arrangement tolerative of Japanese aggrandizement in the Pacific. Moreover, the British themselves are apprehensive of the fate of India if Japan gobbles up China and becomes a first rank naval power.

The present attitude of the Roosevelt administration is one of firm opposition to the Japanese proposal of parity. Britain and America see eye to eye on that proposition.

There are serious points of naval difference between us and Great Britain, but they are not numerous. Broadly, they concern, as they have for years, the issue of size and numbers of vessels. In general we insist upon powerful ships, while Great Britain wants less powerful but more numerous vessels.

The issue runs specifically to battleships and cruisers. We stand for powerful battleships of 35,000 tons, armed with sixteen inch guns. The British want smaller battleships. We want many 10,000 ton cruisers, armed with eight inch guns. The British have urged smaller and more numerous cruisers.

Report Tokio Will Join Parley.

TOKIO, May 26.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—Japan probably this week-end will inform Great Britain of its readiness to participate in discussions preliminary to the 1935 naval conference, it was learned from a high official source today.

Koki Hirota, foreign minister, will indicate to Ambassador Matsudaira, Japanese representative at London, the form which Japan's response is to take.

The Japanese government expects the London discussions not only will lay a general groundwork for next year's conference, but will delve into vital questions of naval limitation.

Thus far Japan has received no similar invitations from other powers, but it was indicated the government would welcome an opportunity for preliminary discussions at Washington.

From the tone of editorial comments of the vernacular newspapers and from discussions with some officials there is emerging a strong indication of two important trends in Japanese thought toward naval questions. The first is that Japan fears an Anglo-American concert at the 1935 conference to bring pressure upon Japan.

The second change is the intimation that empire leaders are ready to abandon claims for actual parity of naval armaments—claims never enunciated by responsible officials—if the nation is given a higher ratio and a face-saving declaration of theoretical equality.

JAPAN ACCUSES SOVIET OFFICIALS OF BEING "LIARS"

Spokesman Says Reds Are "Inciting Trouble."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, May 25.—Using stronger language than any Japanese official has used against the Russians in a long time, the foreign office spokesman today called soviet officials, especially those in the far east, "liars," and accused them of inciting trouble.

Simultaneously in Moscow the Japanese ambassador, Tamekichi Ota, warned the Kremlin that unless Russia mends its ways there is likely to be "unpleasant consequences." Citing the alleged firing by soviet militia on the Japanese consulate at Khabarovsk and other shooting incidents, and the refusal during the last two months of the soviet government to grant transit visas to Japanese, he said such incidents were taken to indicate a sudden change in the soviet attitude toward Japan.

Although the soviet vice commissar of foreign affairs, Boris Stomoniakov, assured Ota that all soviet officials in the far east would be instructed to maintain friendly relations with Japan, Tokio continues to be wary and may reorganize the consular service in Khabarovsk and Blagoveschensk, placing higher officials there.

INCIDENTS PILE UP.

In recent days there have been several incidents which have heightened the tension between Russia and Japan.

On May 12 Japan charged that a Manchukuoan steamer on the Amur river had been fired upon by Russian soldiers, killing one and wounding another Manchukuoan sailor. The Japanese government lodged a vigorous protest with Moscow. The soviet government, however, denied that its troops had fired upon the ship. The bolsheviks charged that persons on board had been taking pictures of frontier guard posts and that the Russian troops had warned the vessel away with blank shots.

On the heels of this incident came a Japanese charge that the Japanese consulate at Khabarovsk had been fired upon twice, on May 21 and May 22. According to the Japanese version, the shots imperiled the life of Consul General Shigeru Shimada. It was this incident to which Ambassador Ota protested in Moscow yesterday.

Russia Charges "Persecution."

Japan has not been alone in protesting against alleged activities of the other nation. Early last month the soviet government categorically demanded that the government of the Japanese fostered state of Manchukuo force Japanese gendarmes to cease "persecuting" soviet nationals. The Russian consul general at Harbin demanded a cessation of raids by the Japanese on clubs, schools and other institutions of the Chinese Eastern railway, in the administration of which Russia has a part.

The two governments also recently exchanged hot protests concerning military airplane flights over each other's territory. Japan complained that soviet planes had flown over Manchukuo and Corea. Russia countered with a protest that Nipponese planes had violated soviet territory near Pogranichnaya and Iman, and at the same time denied the Japanese allegation.

MISSION REFUSES TO PAY RANSOM FOR SEIZED YANK

SHANGHAI, May 25.—(AP)—The Rev. Howard Smith, kidnaped American missionary, appeared doomed today to long captivity in the hands of the notorious bandit leader, Gen. Holung.

The renegade chieftain's negotiator for the $35,000 ransom demanded arrived from Chungking today and was told by officials of the American consulate and of the Christian Missionary alliance that no ransom would be paid.

Instead, the Americans made known, they are preparing a note addressed to the national government at Nanking and to Szechwan provincial authorities maintaining that responsibility for the ransom lies with them. The negotiator promptly withdrew from the conference.

Smith's home is at Washington, Pa. He was kidnaped May 8 near Penghsien, in Szechwan province.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, May 25.—Edward Warren Everett of Chicago and member of the Chicago Bar association was honored by Minister of War Gen. Senjuro Hayashi yesterday afternoon with his wife, who is a devout student of the Zen sect of Buddhism.

Everett is receiving considerable publicity as a friend of Japan. It is understood he has worked consistently to have the bar association urge congress to repeal the Japanese exclusion clause of the immigration act.

The lawyer and his wife spent an hour and a half in conference with Gen. Hayashi in the war office. This was the first time in years that a private American citizen has been so cordially received at the war department.

Shaw's Latest Is Bundle of Literary Scraps

Most of the Material Is of No Importance.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Short Stories, Scraps and Shavings," by Bernard Shaw [Dodd-Mead].

"Triumph," by Frederick Niven [Dutton]. Published on Wednesday.

ALTHOUGH George Bernard Shaw's latest offering contains that suberb bit of ironic writing, "The Adventures of the Black Girl in Her Search for God," which was published in a small volume a little over a year ago, except for that one instance it lives up to the latter half of its title much more than it does to the label, "Short Stories."

Scraps and shavings it certainly is, and from this reviewer's point of view they might better have lain where they fell in Mr. Shaw's years of literary carpentering. There are pieces written as long ago as 1885 ("The Serenade") and 1888 ("A Sunday on the Surrey Hills"), which serve only to make the reader wonder why their author was looked upon with such ardor by the book makers of those days in the literary race. The answer is that these "scraps and shavings" were the mere effluvia of a career.

Of the two stories which are heralded as "items" neither one, it seems to me, is much. "Aerial Football" has a faint tinge of the proverbial Shavian style, but it is more like a copy of the master than an authentic example. It tells of the entry into heaven of a too bibulous charwoman and the bishop of St. Pancras through the collision of a motor bus and a carriage. The most alluring character in it is Chipper, a horse which the char's husband had kept "even when he could by no means afford to keep himself."

Chipper speaks right out to St. Peter, telling him Mrs. Hairns is "a liar and a thief," and he explained to her, "I'm making it easy for you, so that they sha'n't expect too much." He further explains to St. Peter, "I brought her up because she once got out and walked on a hot Sunday when I was dragging her up a hill with her husband, three of his friends, their wives, eight children, a baby, and three dozen of beer."

The other story, "The Emperor and the Little Girl," is a curiosity because it was written for a Belgian war charity for children in 1916, but it had to be published furtively because the emperor was the "All-Highest," and in the story he is no ogre but a lonely man.

Frederick Niven, whose "Mrs. Barry" had a wide critical success, tells the story of another determined woman in "Triumph." But Mrs. Heriot's goal was not the tender, touching one that motivated Mrs. Barry. As the book opens, Mrs. Heriot is merely the wife of an engaging young Scotsman who teaches music in the English academy in Salvador, South America. She yerns to be the social leader of the English colony. A too generous imbibing of pulque has consequences so serious that not only does Gertrude Heriot's goal recede from her, but life of the simplest sort is made impossible in Salvador, and the Heriots, with their three children, must return to Scotland.

The rest of the novel panoramas the years of Gertrude's single-minded dedication to her passion to return to Salvador a prosperous and enviable woman.

The title of the book, "Triumph," is an ironic one, for Gertrude Heriot's triumph is not without pain.

Mr. Niven writes an unimportant book with a quality of rare charm. "Triumph" is far from a masterpiece, but it is in its quiet and simplicity a book that gives sincere pleasure.

Charge Many Forgeries of First Editions

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 25.—A war among bibliophiles, both in New York and London, is about to begin concerning the authenticity of supposed rare first editions of many popular authors of the last century. The charges about to be made are that many such volumes, highly prized by collectors who have paid big money for them, are spurious.

The first gun in this battle was fired by Thomas C. Wise over Mrs. Browning's sonnets. They are "Sonnets from the Portuguese," printed in England and dated 1847.

They are printed on pulp paper and one of various accusations against them is based on the assertion pulp paper was not invented prior to 1880. Wise in a letter in the current issue of the London Times literary supplement declares pulp paper was used in book printing as early as 1801.

Wise's claims are to be denied next week by John Carter, in charge of the rare book department of the London offices of Charles Scribners Sons, and Graham Pollard, director Birroll & Garnett, London booksellers.

After this preliminary skirmish Carter and Pollard, in a book soon to be published simultaneously in New York by Scribners and in London by Constables, will produce evidence in support of their charges that more than fifty "first editions" of eminent authors are spurious.

Most of these are of the sort usually described in catalogs as "privately printed" or in "pre-first" pamphlet form.

Among the books involved are those of Dickens, Thackeray, Kipling, Stevenson, Tennyson, both the Brownings, George Eliot, Ruskin, Matthew Arnold, Wordsworth, and Swinburne.

It is predicted the revelations will compel material revision of existing bibliographies and have a serious effect on the prices of books described as forgeries and also on the genuine first editions which have been supplanted by them.

Carter and Pollard claim that the proof of forgery in the case of thirty authors is conclusive and that others are shown to be under grave suspicion. Assembling evidence has involved various scientific methods of bibliographical research, including microscopic inspection and chemical analysis of the paper and a long study of type peculiarities which have been traced to various printers.

Baldwin Opens Extensions of London Library

Report H. G. Wells Writing Autobiography.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—With a speech by Mr. Baldwin, and with other speeches by H. A. L. Fisher and Lord Crewe, the London library opened its extensions to members. The nearly half a million books which the library contains will be comfortably housed for at least another ten years. A great day, and a distinguished audience, which must have included half the best known literary people in London, took genial pleasure in hearing Mr. Baldwin talk about books. He does this better than any other statesman in the country, and even his political opponents would gladly appoint him permanent minister for literary affairs in Great Britain.

It was claimed that the London library was unique; for a sum equivalent to twenty dollars a year any member can borrow up to fifteen volumes at a time and can obtain from the librarians information and help of extraordinary range. Whether unique or not, the service rendered by the library to students is invaluable.

American publishers now visiting England are all agog at the news that H. G. Wells is writing his autobiography. If he does this, it will certainly be one of the most illuminating works of the age, for Mr. Wells has lived very fully in his time, and for the last forty years has met a greater number of men and women of note in the literary, political, and scientific worlds than anybody else.

When I say "met," I mean that he has known them well, has with that electrifying quickness of his grasped their characters, their ideas, and their idiosyncracies, and has powerfully influenced them all. He can write as one of the men who has very considerably helped to create modern opinion, and as one ever the first to appreciate whatever was new and excellent in science and literature.

As long ago as the eighteen nineties he was bold enough to acclaim Joseph Conrad; he knew Shaw and Arnold Bennett, Belloc, and Chesterton when they were first dawning upon the public, and there is hardly a writer of this century who does not owe to his friendliness and enthusiasm the first blessings of recognition. No man has been kinder or more generous.

Given the inclination, Mr. Wells might make his autobiography a self-portrait of masterly range; if he chooses only to sketch the world as he has seen it he will still incomparably present his contemporaries as living people and as contributors to the spirit of the age. Whatever he does, he will amuse, instruct, perhaps annoy, certainly delight vast numbers of readers; and he will give us a brilliant book.

Other autobiographies are in progress. Not only is there to be a prize competition for such books [it is sponsored by Hodder & Stoughton], but individual writers are realizing the interest to other people of their own encounters. One particularly lively work will be that of Henry Williamson, who is now in the United States writing the final chapters of it.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

Dr. Perry H. Lichtenstein, for eighteen years resident physician of the New York Tombs, has gathered his experience into an absorbing sort of book which he calls "A Doctor Studies Crime" [Van Nostrand]. It will particularly interest the amateur criminologist and may prove disappointing to the ordinary reader of crime stories. For Dr. Lichtenstein finds that there is no such animal as the master-criminal who plots death and destruction in the dark mazes of a mighty brain. Instead he finds all criminals poor, sick things mentally, morally, or physically; subnormal rather than abnormal and unequal to any sustained effort. He classifies and describes the types that have come to be called criminal and makes many recommendations for their treatment and improvement. He is never sentimental nor radical and is always convincing. Whatever such a book may mean to the scientist, to the layman it is interesting and enlightening.

All About Midgets Is Interesting Book on 'A Small World'

"It's a Small World; All About Midgets" [Coward McCann], by Walter Bodin and Burnet Hershey, really does tell all about phenomena which have fascinated millions. A disturbance in the same gland produced Primo Carnera, six feet six and a half inches tall, and "Major Mite," who is just one-third that tall. Everything about midgets' life, liberties, and pursuit of happiness—either with their own kind or with normal sized persons—is gone into interestingly in this popular history.

You'll be surprised to find how many great men just missed being midgets, Beethoven, Whistler, Swinburne, Alexander Hamilton, Michael Angelo, Gen. Sheridan, Milton, Chaucer, Chopin for instance. And so may we all in a few thousand years, it seems, for army records throughout the world show that man's stature is progressively diminishing.

Henry, and Guy de Maupassant, whose work Mr. Dashiell shows as exerting tremendous influence on the stories of today.

PERSIAN SHAH IN DEFY TO ISLAM ON CO-EDUCATION

Breaks Tradition; Plans Schools for Girls, Too.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 25.—By an overwhelming vote in the majliss, the Persian chamber of deputies, the government of the shah has just been authorized to institute 25 training centers for women teachers, and at its discretion to open schools, as soon as there is an adequate teaching service, on American lines for Persian girls as well as boys.

It is considered significant by Persians at this decision was made almost immediately after the recent meeting, the first of its kind, between the revolutionary shah and his still more revolutionary neighbor, the gazi Mustafa Kemal Pasha of Turkey. Riza Khan has never denied the source of his inspirations and they have rendered his tenure of the throne precarious at times. He has now thrown down the gage and Persia is taking it quietly. There is no fanaticism now for Islam in a country which after all only accepted the creed of the despised Arab at the point of the sword.

Zoroastrians Pleased.

None is more delighted than the Zoroastrians, frequently misnamed Parsees, who are the original people of Persia, and who for 3,000 years have allowed their women folk complete equality in law and in society. The old guard of Islam put up a sturdy fight against the democratic monarch who rose from the ranks of Persian cavalry.

They first saw the writing on the wall when the shah, a short while ago, commanded one of the poets attached to the Persian court—the only court in the world where poets have a standing higher than that accorded to nobles—to write a historical drama on Zoroaster, the prophet of ancient Persia, the founder of so-called sun worship.

The author did his work well, as otherwise the result might have been unpleasant. He portrayed the founder of Persian civilization as the prophet who foretold Christ, whose priests helped, saved and raised the Jews out of their bondage in Jerusalem, who taught the worship of the beauties of nature, the equality of women, and the adoration of an invisible God expressed through the human conscience.

Shah and Consort Rise.

When the play was produced the shah and his queen were present. As soon as the actor playing Zoroaster, clad in traditional robes, appeared the sovereign and his consort rose to their feet. In the theater were a score of the Islamic hierarchy, the ministers of the crown and diplomatic corps. The shah remained standing until he had forced the entire assembly, according to protocol, to stand also in reverence of a prophet abhorred by Islam. The day the Persian populace saw their leaders paying reverence to the great figure of antiquity who wage war on the barriers of sex those barriers were broken down.

This is not to suppose for one moment that there will be any return to the ancient religion wrongly defined as sun worship. The tendency is entirely otherwise. The national temperament, expressed in a historic poetry dedicated to wine, woman and song, is fatigued by the primitive, desert born inhibitions of Islam, which forbids wine and shuts away the women. The shah has decided that his gifted, artistic subjects are, unlike the Turks, hungry for higher things. He has thrown down another gage. Bibles may be imported into Persia without any interference from the customs department. Previously they were forbidden. He has instituted complete freedom of worship, which means state protection for apostates.

Civil Marriage Code.

Another of his reforms has been the introduction of a civil marriage code, permitting intermarriage. But all these have been in vain outside the towns because of the subtle influence of the rural clergy and the echoes of a long tradition. After seeking every avenue possible Riza Khan turned his eyes across the Atlantic. He has had the courage to introduce American coeducation, knowing full well that he may have to face the storm, and that only during the reign of his son will the nation reap the full benefit.

Meanwhile Protestantism is quietly spreading all over Persia. Dr. Linton, the British Protestant bishop, has become a spiritual power and, strangest of all, the converts are of the intelligentsia—lawyers, merchants, editors, artists. As usual this sudden revulsion against the doctrine of Islam is being attributed by its defenders to American films, books and professors.

U. S. OCEAN FLYERS REACH LONDON ON TRIP TO ROME

HESTON, England, May 25.—(AP)—Their determination and courage whetted by danger and delay, Capt. George Pond and Lieut. Cesare Sabelli, trans-Atlantic flyers, turned their orange monoplane over to mechanics at this aidrome on the outskirts of London today with instructions to get it ready for a flight to Rome.

The aviators flew here from Cardiff, Wales, where they were forced down yesterday in an attempted non-stop flight from Dublin to the Italian capital. Throughout the 120-mile trip only clouds of smoke puffed out around the hub of the propeller shaft, and on three occasions the flyers looked around for a place to make a forced landing.

"When we gave it the gun," said Pond, "flames shot up from the engine and rolled back toward the cabin."

The mechanics here had the task of clearing out engine trouble which developed first when the flyers reached the coast of Ireland May 14 on their trip from New York. After their forced landing near Lahinch, on the west coast of the Irish Free State, they had repairs made on the spot, and flew to Dublin, then to Cardiff, but on each hop the trouble continued.

THE RT. HON. BRUCE INSISTS ON BEING A PLAIN MISTER

The Rt. Hon. S. M. Bruce, C. H., M. C., former prime minister of Australia, came to Chicago yesterday, three denials ahead of a knighthood, which he doesn't want.

Mr. Bruce, whose C. H. indicates that he is companion of honor at the court of King George V. of England, and whose M. C. stands for Military Cross, the second most coveted British military decoration, doesn't want to be a knight. He has created a dozen or so knights in his time while prime minister of Australia.

Besides, if he were a knight, he would have to be called Sir Stanley, and Mr. Bruce always did dislike the name Stanley. He insists on initials—plain S. M.

His troubles over the knighthood began when he landed in Los Angeles. Mr. Bruce wanted only to see the Grand cañon en route to Ottawa and Washington, where he hopes to talk with President Roosevelt about wheat. He is on his way back to London as the Australian high commissioner. But all the way from California Pullman conductors insisted on calling him Sir Robert Bruce, his secretary explained yesterday.

Robert Bruce was a Scottish king, but not a sir, and Mr. Bruce, the man now in Chicago, was neither. Mr. Bruce—"Brugie" he was to his old chums while stroke of the Cambridge crew back in 1904—was once a captain of an infantry company at Gallipoli, where he was wounded severely and invalided out of the British army in 1915. But he was never Sir Robert Bruce, which he remained during the trip through the Grand cañon, a spectacle described by his secretary as a "grand show, that."

U. S. ASKS BID ON INEXPENSIVE FLIVVER PLANE

Hope to Bring Flying Within Reach of All.

United States aircraft manufacturers yesterday were asked to submit plans and bids to the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce on an inexpensive light airplane advocated by federal aviation officials as the type of ship to bring flying within reach of all.

Actual specifications on type and performance of the light airplane accompanied the request for bids. The department of commerce also announced that all bids would be opened July 25 at Washington, and that the first of the new planes must be delivered by successful bidders within four months. The request for bids was made public simultaneously here and in Washington.

Government to Buy 25 Ships.

The manufacturers were asked to quote a price at which they would sell 25 of the proposed ships to the department of commerce for use in the study of problems confronting light airplane designers. The funds for these purchases will be drawn from a $500,000 appropriation recently granted the department for this purpose.

The specifications state that the plane, with a motor not exceeding 100 horse power, must have a maximum speed of 110 miles an hour and a minimum flying speed of 35 miles an hour. Both these performances must be registered with a pilot and one passenger of 170 pounds each, two 20 pound parachutes, 40 pounds of baggage, and fuel and oil for a 300 mile flight against a 10 mile an hour headwind.

On take-off the ship must be able to clear an obstruction 35 feet high from a standing start 800 feet away with no wind, and must be capable of being stopped within 400 feet of a 35 foot obstacle which has been cleared in a straight and fully controled glide.

All-Metal Fuselage.

The ship is to be designed for ease of maintenance and low replacement costs. The fuselage must be of metal construction, and the pilot and passenger are to sit side by side or in seats "staggered not to exceed 45 degrees." The cockpits may be covered or "convertible."

The ship should have extreme stability, and not spin even though stalled deliberately by the pilot. Each ship must be equipped with compass, bank, and turn indicator, and altimeter in addition to the usual engine instruments, a starter, navigation lights, and a liquid battery.

Engines may be of any type, radial or in-line, two or four cycle. They must, however, operate efficiently on any good grade of automobile oil and gasoline, and require no servicing at less than 50 hour intervals.

Billie Dove's Dog Is Cause of Second Damage Suit

Los Angeles, Cal., May 25.—[Special.]—For the second time in two days Billie Dove, motion picture star, today was sued for damages because of bites inflicted by her police dog, "Stingy." Yesterday her ex-friend, Ruth Roland of the movies, sued Miss Dove, who is known in private life as Mrs. Bert Kenaston, for $25,000. Today R. Sapp filed a $5,000 damage action, claiming the dog bit him last March.

13 COLLEGE ROTC UNITS BEGIN CAMP TRAINING JUNE 6

3 Army Bases to Take 675 Students.

Members of R. O. T. C. units of 13 universities, colleges, and military schools in the sixth corps area and some from adjacent areas will get a taste of the rougher, more practical side of army life when they go into three camps for the period from June 6 to July 27. The summer encampments will be at Fort Sheridan, Camp Custer, Mich., and Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis.

Thus, approximately 675 young men will round out their four year study of military science and tactics—a study which they have taken along with their other university or college work. If of age, a second lieutenant's commission in the Organized Reserve corps will be their reward. If not of age, they will receive a certificate entitling them to the commission when they reach majority.

Camps Disrupted Last Year.

The regular summer camp training period of the R. O. T. C. was disrupted last year by the mobilization of the Civilian Conservation corps. The CCC boys took over the R. O. T. C.'s regular summer quarters and the latter were left to shift for themselves.

The camping period was arranged for at the individual universities and colleges. This proved unsatisfactory, army officers said, because of the lack of proper facilities. The CCC workers have their own camps this year and the potential young officers will be unhampered.

Students from the following schools will attend: University of Chicago, University of Illinois, Knox college, University of Michigan, Michigan College of Mining, Michigan State college, Northwestern university dental school, Ripon college, University of Wisconsin, Morgan Park Military academy, St. John's Military academy, Northwestern Military and Naval academy and the Western Military academy.

In addition 145 coast artillery corps students and 6 infantry will go to Fort Sheridan from the 7th corps area at Omaha and 12 signal corps and 70 coast artillery corps students will arrive from the 5th corps area at Columbus, O. Five infantry, 10 cavalry, and 13 engineers from the 5th corps area will travel to Camp Custer.

Vital Reserve Training.

The signal corps and coast artillery groups will assemble at Fort Sheridan; infantry, engineers, and cavalry will go to Camp Custer, and the field artillery will encamp at Camp McCoy. Medical and dental students will go to Fort Snelling.

The R. O. T. C. senior units, Maj. Carr explained, are regarded as the main feeder for officer personnel for the reserves and a vital part of the great skeleton of an army on which the country would immediately build in the event of conflict. At the summer camps, he said, these youths receive basically the same type of training which officers in the world war had to undergo before seeing service.

This training includes close order drill, automatic pistol practice, administrative training, practical work in first aid, hygiene and sanitation, and technical work in the arm or branch in which the student has enrolled. Two hundred hours of actual training will be given during the period.

Units of the Organized Reserve corps, the first line of officer reserve strength outside the regular army and National Guard, also go into summer training camps from June 14 to July 31.

New Crisis Hits Spain; Farm Strikers Threaten Crops

MADRID, May 25.—(AP)—A state of alarm, providing suspension of civil authority, will be continued throughout Spain because of the possibility of disorders arising from a farm strike, Rafael Alonso, minister of interior, said today. The cabinet has taken steps to prevent sabotage, which extremists have threatened, during the coming harvest.

$139,000 REFUND IN TAXES ASKED BY A. W. MELLON

Outlines Case in Plea to Appeals Board.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—Andrew W. Mellon today answered the government's $1,978,621 income tax case against him with a demand for a $139,045 refund.

The former secretary of the treasury, whom a Pittsburgh grand jury refused to indict for tax evasion, stated his case in a petition to the board of tax appeals replying to a treasury deficiency assessment on Mellon's 1931 income.

Mellon, who served in the cabinets of Presidents Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover, disclosed he paid the internal revenue bureau $647,559 on his 1931 income. He listed charitable contributions that year of $3,821,178.

Lamont Makes Payment.

Mellon's appeal to the tax board was filed shortly after the justice department announced full payment by Thomas S. Lamont, youthful J. P. Morgan & Co. partner, of government income tax claims and penalties. Lamont was named by Attorney General Cummings, along with Mellon, Thomas Sidlo, a Cleveland attorney, and James J. Walker, as among several hundred from whom the government is seeking to collect additional taxes.

Sidlo, a law partner of Newton D. Baker, previously had paid in full the claims against him. The department has not disclosed what progress is being made against Walker, New York's former mayor, who now lives abroad.

Mellon's petition reviewed the May 7 action when a grand jury returned the government's presentment as "not a true bill." He further said he was not given the same treatment accorded other taxpayers by the commissioner of internal revenue, Guy T. Helvering.

Charges 18 Errors.

Mellon's petition set forth 18 different assignments of error on the part of the treasury, including items of losses sustained on the sale of stock of the Pittsburgh Coal company, Western Public Service corporation, and others, which, the former secretary contended, were sold in the ordinary course of business and in good faith.

On the sale of Pittsburgh Coal stock Mellon claimed an ordinary loss of $5,766 and a capital loss on stock held more than two years of $5,672,164. He claimed an ordinary loss of $24,100 and a $352,500 capital loss on Western Public Service stock sales.

POLICE CHIEF URGES U. S. ADOPT MEXICO'S CRIME LAW OF FLIGHT

Los Angeles, Cal., May 25.—(AP)—Adoption in the United States of Mexico's "Ley Fuega," law of flight, was urged today by Chief of Police James E. Davis before a group of nearly 300 business men gathered to honor the law enforcement officers who brought to justice the kidnapers of William F. Gettle, Beverly Hills millionaire.

"Let's lay aside the maudlin sentimentality for the 'poor criminal,'" said Davis, "and deal with bank robbers and kidnapers in the manner that is approved by the people of Mexico, where they invoke the law of flight by which the apprehended bandit is given a chance to escape but never does. They bury him the next day."

U. S. AGENTS SEIZE LARGE STILL IN RAID; ARREST 2

Agents of the department of internal revenue, led by Maj. W. L. Ray, yesterday raided a huge distilling plant at 715 South Wells street and seized a 1,500 gallon still, 1,200 gallons of alcohol, and 38,000 gallons of mash. In the plant the agents also found 15,000 pounds of corn sugar.

The still, one of the largest found since the repeal of prohibition, extended through the fourth, fifth and sixth stories of the six floor building. The lower floors of the structure were unoccupied, but E. C. Yellowley, in charge of the alcohol tax unit in Chicago, said that the heavy still constituted a safety menace. The floors might easily have given way under the weight, he asserted.

Two men found at work in the place were taken into custody. They gave the names Tony Bonorde, 32 years old, 129 South Marshfield avenue, and Alfredi Luigi, 34 years old, 620 West 25th place. Both asserted they had worked in the distillery only three weeks and did not know the identity of their employers.

KILLED BY TRACTOR.

Carbondale, Ill., May 25.—[Special.]—Otis Shelton, 22, was killed today when a tractor he was driving overturned upon him as he was attempting to turn the tractor around on the side of a bank in a field where he was working.

DEMOCRATIC PROCESSES.

That the campaign slogan, A New Deal, implied revolution in the minds of the great majority which swept Mr. Roosevelt and his party into office will not even occur to an honest mind. If there was such an implication it was very carefully and successfully concealed in the pronouncements of the party platform, emphatically approved by its presidential candidate, or in the utterances of him or any other responsible spokesman for the party organization. If it had been even hinted we are confident the electoral results would have been vastly different than they were.

The announcement of the revolution came later and it came from individuals who were not only not prominent in the campaign but whose very existence was unknown to the general public. They were not representatives of the party organization. They were not presenting themselves for election to any office. They were not recognized spokesmen of the party. The millions who were voting had never heard of Prof. Tugwell, Prof. Warren, Prof. Rogers, Prof. Frankfurter, to say nothing of less prominent members of the group who have been devising the program of the administration. Their revolutionary theories and ambitions were unknown to the voters who elected Mr. Roosevelt and his party to office, and if their views and intentions were shared by representatives of the party, as for example by Mr. Rainey, that important fact was sedulously withheld from the campaign.

There remains, of course, Mr. Roosevelt. But Mr. Roosevelt, if he intended revolution, kept it to himself. It is only lately that he has permitted himself the use of that word. If he shared the views of the undisclosed advisers who have since announced and are laboring for the peaceful revolution he did not offer them to the voters. On the contrary, the public was given to understand that Mr. Hoover and his party had failed to use or to use effectively the powers and opportunities they possessed under the institutions of the country. There was no declaration from Mr. Roosevelt or from the other accredited representatives of his party that American institutions were a failure or were to be subjected to a revolutionary substitution or transformation.

All this came without prelude, without discussion by the voters in the campaign of 1932 and therefore without mandate from the people. That is why the so-called peaceful revolution is not in fact a revolution, but rather a coup d'état, a taking over of government by a group not chosen by the people, for purposes not presented to the people for their consideration and adoption or rejection.

Prof. Tugwell, the leading exponent of the New Deal, would have us accept this as a "democratic process." It is not a democratic process in any sense recognizable by American democrats up to this time. If the bolshevik régime, or the Fascist, or that of Hitler, represents a democratic process the brain trusters' government does. But the democratic process as the American people have conceived it up to the present time has been the election of the executive and members of the legislative branch of government upon the basis of full discussion of principles, policies, and purposes. That is what we have called popular self-government, a government of the people, for the people, and by the people. The American democracy has never imagined that in electing a chief executive to office it was submitting itself to momentous purposes and radical departures not disclosed by him in his appeal for their suffrage or to the undisclosed purposes of any group he chooses to shape his conduct of public affairs.

If the American people are to retain any reality of the democratic process as they have understood it they will not adopt the policy of signing a blank check or imagine they are cherishing popular self-government by electing an executive to embark them upon an undisclosed voyage with an unknown crew.

ACES, ALL ACES.

Editor-Professor Moley, brain duster emeritus, says on his editorial page in the official magazine that the brain dusters talk too much. Editor-Professor Moley is severe in his criticism. He dusts off Dr. Jerome Frank, general counsel for the AAA, for referring to American folkways. Americans have folkways and some of them are odd. Although they are supposed to be sons of freedom and individualists, they believe that there is necessarily wisdom found in gregariousness and that you can get anything from rain to a revision of human nature by passing acts of congress and appointing committees.

Mr. Moley refers to the self-styled intellectuals among the brain dusters and says that if they worked more and talked less President Roosevelt would be happier and the administration would get ahead faster. No doubt the self-styled intellectuals Mr. Moley reproves could express their doubts regarding his own qualifications. No single intellectual is overimpressed by the intellectuality of the other intellectuals in public life. Usually when two agree it is because they don't discuss identical subjects.

Theatergoers will recall with pleasure the entertaining play "Captain Applejack," particularly the scene in which the hero cuts a deck of cards with a pirate captain for command of the vessel and beats a king with an ace. They will also recall how he let fall the deck in a shower of aces, exclaiming "Aces, all aces."

That seems to be the pack they are using in the New Deal. Aces, all aces, unless one is to listen to an old Tory who believes that the pack is entirely composed of deuces wild.

ANOTHER ADVANCE IN THE CRIME CAMPAIGN.

Another advance in the campaign against organized crime is made with the first hearing of charges against a lawyer under the rules of practice adopted recently by the judges of the Criminal court. Chief Justice Finnegan and his associates, sitting as a court of discipline, we hope are making history. The judiciary has not used its powers fully to protect justice from perversion and defeat by unscrupulous practitioners and the bar has been equally neglectful. The lawyer criminal has become a menace which every student of the conditions of organized crime has emphasized as a leading factor in our problem of control and it is encouraging to find in our own community that the judiciary and the legal profession are awake to their responsibility for his abatement and propose to establish an effective discipline and restraints upon unethical conduct. A small minority of unscrupulous practitioners have bred contempt for law, lawyers, and courts at a time when many influences are attacking the fabric of our social welfare. The new rules of the Criminal court and their energetic application by the bench represent constructive service for social security while there is much on foot to break it down.

MONACO TAKES AND LOSES A CHANCE.

The gambling principality of Monaco took a sporting chance on some repudiated Mississippi bonds which it had acquired from the heirs of the holders. How they were acquired is not wholly explained. They may have been used in settlement of losses. Monaco asked leave of the United States Supreme court to bring suit against the brother sovereignty of Mississippi. The decision of the court, opinion by Chief Justice Hughes, is that the consent of the defendant state must be obtained. The foreign state has that immunity. The same sovereign prerogative is retained by a state in the American Union.

The implication of this immunity is that conscience and a high regard for honorable conduct will prevent the injured person or state from being turned away when the cause is just. Foreign holders of the repudiated bonds of certain states complain that conscience has been in a prolonged sleep which may be death. Nevertheless these holders are a stubborn if not hopeful lot of people. Nearly a century of their complaint is being rounded out. They persist in knocking at the door and shouting for all the neighbors to hear that the deadbeats will not pay their just debts. They want their money and they keep the scandal noisy.

Americans not involved in the delinquency admit the shame of it but can do nothing about it. The repudiating states hired the money and then chased away the creditor, a habit which has gained enormous popularity here and abroad in recent years. When the repudiator is a sovereign the scandal does not die. The history of the repudiated bonds proves that. European repudiators, whose citizens are demanding their own coin, might observe the long life of the obloquy.

WHAT, NO PRINCE!

John Steele's report from London of the situation in the convention of Great Britain's Association of War Veterans at the close of the day of May 21 was that the veterans were dismayed. Prince George, who was to have made his appearance as the representative of the royal family, had not come. Although this disappointing news exploded among most of the ex-service men as a bombshell, it seems that one or two of the officials had been informed the prince would not come and had made every effort through open channels of communication, such as approach by the controllers of both Prince George and the prince of Wales, to induce a change of mind.

Rumor has it that Prince George is disturbed by some impending developments in the veterans' association and apparently wished to express his displeasure. The coldness was regarded as a snub and the consternation of the former soldiers was acute and painful. None of the British princes could be regarded as an ex-service man except by courtesy and compliment, but nevertheless the men who had fought evidently regarded their convention as a complete failure, if not a humiliating occurrence in their lives, because the royal family failed to honor and grace the occasion.

The government of England may pretend to get along with a monarchy which merely reigns and does not rule, but the social life of England will make no pretense of being able to hold up its head in anything like self-respect unless it can have royal sanction and approval.

A convention of London anarchists meeting to make arrangements for the dynamiting of Buckingham palace and the overthrow of monarchy no doubt would disband in despair, abandoning all hope of success, if one of the royal princes did not make an appearance to indicate that the occasion had the proper sanctions.

SKILL OF THE ROAD.

[Rockford (Ill.) Register-Republic.]

Young people of Bergen county, New Jersey, have organized a "Skill of the Road" program, under direction of their high school Y. M. C. A., to spread instruction in safe driving.

According to their standards a skilled driver "keeps in proper line, keeps inside white lines, does not hog the road, makes proper turns, practices road courtesy, recognizes that a child always has the right of way, observes green as the only 'go' signal, looks and signals before coming out of a parking place, and thinks quickly and accurately in an emergency."

According to Dr. Herbert J. Stack, safety supervisor of the national bureau of casualty and surety underwriters, this movement is adapted to any high school in the country and should be considered.

"High school students of today are the automobile drivers of the future," he explains. "They should know everything there is to know about safe motor vehicle operation. If we could train all the children in our secondary schools to be safe drivers, the question of tomorrow's accident record would be answered—accidents would be at a minimum."

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

ANOTHER OPEN-FACED LETTER.

Dear Mr. Summer Resort Manager: Have at hand your cheerful letter regarding your earthly paradise for vacationists and note with pleasure your many attractions. Your remarks on the large number of berries it would set me back each day I was your guest did not give me quite so much pleasure; however, a summer resort is a summer resort, and that's that. Pleased that you have three golf courses near the hotel. If they are quite near it should be possible by traveling a short distance to get to some place where I wouldn't see any of them or the frolicsome gents in funny pants swatting little white pills around the pasture. The four tennis courts are also close to the hotel, so that I will be enabled to escape from tennis also. I simply hate to hear a fat man in white flannels with a bald head (the fat man with the bald head, not the flannels) say "Forty love." Bridge on the front porch at four o'clock is, of course, to be expected. But have you no woodshed or empty icehouse where you could park the bridge players? No? Oh, very well! Anyhow, if they're on the front porch I suppose you'd let me go in and out through the kitchen. The regular evening dancing parties are perfectly all right. I find that by plugging my ears with cotton I can't hear the saxophones at all. You say that for this summer you have placed a radio in every room. Very sweet of you. But if you placed a radio in the room I am going to occupy you are able to displace it also. Please displace mine and install it in the cellar. I get so tired of throwing those things out of the window. And the last time I threw one out it hit a millionaire from Pittsburgh and he sued me for fifty thousand dollars. If I had hit a cigaret salesman from Richmond he would have come up with a bottle of bourbon and said forget it. But millionaires always sue you. Maybe that's why they're millionaires. But it's about your beautiful picture of canoeing on the lovely lake in front of your hotel that I wanted to speak. You may have had a lake last year, but have you got it now? Or since the drouth do you have to go down every morning and fill it with water out of the bathtub? Or is there water in the bathtubs any more? You have bridge on the front porch, archery, tennis, golf, dancing, and so on, but do you have rain up there? More than anything else this year I am looking for rain. If you can promise me a nice rain every day or two I shall reserve rooms at once. Please let me know at your earliest convenience, and, as you have a habit of charging for everything, will you please let me know how much your rains cost? If it's a real rain, one that is cool and wet, I would much rather pay for it, no matter how much you charge (and it will be plenty), than pay for bridge on the front porch, golf, tennis, croquet, archery, checkers, or horseshoes. Yours very truly, etc., etc., etc.

FOR A DEPARTED SINGER.

For you, who loved the wood and field
As April turned to May,
Who thrilled at beauty's wizardry,
This thought, today.

A year ago you shared with us
The gladness of the Spring;
You taught our eager eyes to see,
Our hearts to sing.

Today we wander aimlessly
Where Spring and beauty are,
But you—where do you fare today—
On some bright star!

We shall not call you back again;
You would not heed, we fear;
And yet you may remember still—
You may be near.

Howe'er that be, we shall not weep
As April turns to May:
For you, glad minstrel of the heart,
This thought, today.

RUTH ROLAND, Cinema Queen, is suing Billy Dove, also a C. Q., because Billy's cunning little police dog, so Ruth says, gnawed and gnawed on her arm, so that in the future she won't be able to wear evening dress except with great embarrassment. So Ruth thinks Billy should pay her twenty-five thousand dollars. Which makes me surer than ever that if anybody ever gives me a police dog I'll trade the darned thing for a laughing hyena. And then when he bit people he would burst out into loud, mirthful guffaws and, as laughing is contagious, the individual who was bit would start laughing, too, and say: Oh, all right. Your laughing hyena chewed me something awful, but he's so good natured about it I just can't get mad. Ha, ha, ha! I don't care if he did bite me. It was really a good joke. Ha, ha ha!" But when a police dog takes a piece out of anybody he is just as mad after he did the biting as before. I want a laughing hyena.

THE FIRE MAIDEN.

She wanders north, she wanders south,
Petals of fire on her mouth.

She feeds on fire: like as not
Her soul's a spark the stars forgot.

Drown her and you've done no ill.
Slay her and she smolders still.

If she thirsts for any shade
It is the shadow smoke has made.

Her path has led her to the sun
And still she seeks a fiercer one.

Nothing on earth will relieve her
Save a lover wild with fever.

She wanders north, she wanders south,

HOT WEATHER TROUBLES.

THE human animal can stand a great deal of heat. A comparison in rather common use for a century and a half is the one between the ability of a live, breathing, and sweating man and a piece of beefsteak to go unchanged through an exposure to a high temperature for a few minutes. A man can withstand exposure to a temperature of 250 degrees—nearly 40 degrees higher than that of boiling water—for fifteen minutes. A beefsteak exposed to that temperature for thirteen minutes is medium rare. The man will breathe rapidly and sweat profusely, his face will be flushed, and his pulse will beat rapidly, but he will survive the ordeal with nothing to complain of except discomfort.

When the building of Boulder dam was inaugurated it was found that the men worked at low efficiency, had poor appetites, and were below par generally. After considerable research on the effects of sunlight, great heat, low humidity, and very little wind movement it was decided that in spite of man's great adaptability and wonderful capacity for withstanding heat it would be profitable to make more provision for modifying the weather.

The state of Arizona is large and the weather is pretty well fixed. The rainmakers were not called into consultation. Air conditioning—meaning air cooling, humidifying, and circulation—was installed in the living quarters, dining rooms, and restrooms wherever such installation was feasible.

It is well known to physicians that the sunlight and heat of the summer season in other parts of the country as well as in Arizona severely tax the vitality of those exposed to it in spite of all of man's vaunted capacity for adaptation. For several years Dr. G. C. Shattuck has been studying the effects of summer heat on the inhabitants of Massachusetts. He has limited his study to sunstroke, heatstroke, and heat exhaustion—the more palpable and immediate effects.

Instead of classifying the disorders into sunstroke, heatstroke, heat exhaustion, and heat cramps he combines the first two into heat fevers, or all cases of heatstroke, of whatever origin, provided fever is a prominent symptom. The next group includes the heat exhaustions, or those with weak pulse, cold skin, and normal or subnormal temperatures. As a rule in the heat fevers the face is flushed and red and fever can be guessed. However, taking the temperature by rectum may be necessary in order to establish the presence of fever. Heat fevers are treated by ice rubs and cold baths. Heat exhaustion calls for mild stimulation. Heat cramps are caused by profuse sweating and call for salt solution.

In Massachusetts there are many cases and some deaths due to summer heat. The most important causative factors are prolonged spells of hot weather and improper clothing, diet, beverages, and housing. The age of the sufferer and the condition of his heart and circulation have much to do with determining what will be the result of the exposure.

MAY BE EYESTRAIN.

B. C. L. writes: Of late I have noticed a white substance in the corners of my eyes. What is the cause of this?

REPLY.

You have a mild conjunctivitis. This could come from eyestrain.

Do you need glasses? Are you exposed to glare?

There does not seem to be enough reaction for an infection.

NOTE OBLIGATION.

Chicago, May 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My sister and brother-in-law borrowed $1,460 from my mother, giving her notes for same. Mother passed away a year ago. One note is dated Jan. 12, 1933, for $1,000, and the other Jan. 17, 1933, for $460. They refuse to make these notes over to me for one-half the amount. My sister and I are the only children. 1. I have been told these notes are not valid and that [2] I cannot make them give me my share after mother has been dead a year. 3. How long are these notes good? They own a farm heavily mortgaged and I do not expect cash, and only ask them to give me my share on a [4] new note. 5. I hold mother's notes; does that help any? 6. Is there any friendly way to go about this? 7. Am I not right in demanding my share? 8. They claim there is no money to get, as they invested it in a house which they lost. I also hold three certificates of bonds [defaulted] and which I do not believe will ever have any value, and have told my sister I would give her a note guaranteeing her one-half of the amount of any money they would bring. 9. Would this be right? A. B.

1. We see no reason for this statement.
2. The way to force matters would be by having an administrator appointed. For this purpose you should employ an attorney.
3. The limitation period is ten years.
4. See 2.
5. No.
6. See 2.
7. Yes.
8. This would not relieve them from liability on notes which they signed.
9. Any arrangements satisfactory to both of you would be all right.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INHERITANCE.

Chicago, May 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—This concerns the estate of a party living in Michigan who passed away in Indiana. 1. The deceased was a cousin to my father and died a year before my father's death. According to the laws of Indiana [2] are the children entitled to my father's share? 3. Where should we write to find out whether the estate has been settled? It is over five years since we have heard from same. I. G.

1. We assume that the cousin left no nearer relatives or that he left a will in favor of your father.
2. Yes, if he left no other relatives.
3. To the clerk of the Probate court where the deceased resided at the time of his death. The officials in those proceedings would probably insist on your father's estate being also probated before they would make the payment.

LEGAL CLAIM.

Chicago, May 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A gives B money to buy material for repairs and improvements; to pay for improvements and labor; to pay taxes, and to pay principal and interest on mortgage, in various sums amounting to $1,000. No note or receipts were secured, but it is understood and agreed that the property is security for the claim. If B publishes the fact that he owes this amount of money to A for the uses stated [1] would that make it a legal claim? 2. Would this be true even if not recorded? 3. How many days would it have to be published? F. A. B.

1. It would be legal claim even without the publication.
2. Yes.
3. There is no statutory provision for publication in such a case. Of course, it would be advisable to have the agreement in writing.

FRIEND OF THE INSURED

CONTRACTUAL LIABILITY.

Chicago, May 15.—[Friend of the Insured.]—Why am I compelled to furnish the city a driveway bond when I can furnish evidence that I carry liability insurance which would cover accidents happening on the driveway to my garage? Is it necessary that I carry insurance now that I have the bond?—M. M. S.

Since the city is legally liable for all accidents happening on a public driveway, they require that any one using the public driveway for profit must furnish a bond guaranteeing to hold the city harmless for accidents occurring on the driveway. It is not only necessary that you continue to carry your liability insurance in addition to the bond, which is not an insurance policy, but merely security to the city in case of default by you. But unless you now carry contractual liability insurance to close the gap made in your regular liability policy when you agreed to hold the city harmless under the bond, you may find yourself in serious difficulties in case of accident. Your policy provides that in case of accident the insurance company shall be subrogated to your rights against any third party that may be responsible for the accident, therefore, in agreeing to hold the city harmless under the bond agreement you assumed liability contrary to policy conditions, which cancels the company's rights of subrogation against the third party who may be responsible for the accident. When you surrendered those rights you, of course, are unable to assign them to the company. Immediate steps should be taken to provide contractual liability insurance to cover the liability you have assumed.

RETURN PREMIUMS.

Chicago, May 15.—[Friend of the Insured.]—About two months after insuring my car it was stolen and never recovered. The insurance company paid me for the loss, but since the policy was written for one year, and only in force two months, why am I not entitled to a rebate on the unexpired portion of the policy? B. B. B.

In consideration of the annual premium collected, the insurance company issues a policy indemnifying the insured against loss or damage for a period of one year. Partial losses are paid and the policy still remains in force; however, when a total loss occurs, the policy must be surrendered to the company before payment is made, after which the company has fully met its obligation for which it received only a very small portion of the amount paid out. In other words, you wagered the company a comparatively few dollars against hundreds or perhaps thousands which when paid closes the transaction. You would only be entitled to a return premium on polices other than the fire and theft under which your loss was paid. For example, after the car was stolen, there could be no liability under the property damage, collision, or liability policies, and therefore you would be entitled to a return premium from the date the car was stolen.

VANDALS IN THE PARKS.

Chicago, May 23.—Your editorial comment on vandals in the parks would be more interesting if it contained all of the facts.

While it is true, as you point out, that many thousand picnickers are careless about strewing newspapers and other refuse about, it is also true, as you do not point out, that many thousand other picnickers would most gladly place their refuse in baskets if there were enough baskets properly located. But there are not.

The few waste baskets in the parks are so widely spaced that they require much walking and are difficult to locate. Their capacity is insufficient, and they become filled to overflowing early on Sundays. They are of bad design, being open to the wind at the top. Even a gentle breeze will blow most of the trash out of these baskets.

Enough refuse cans with swing tops and properly spaced and located will do more toward helping us keep the parks clean than all the pleadings of your editorials. THE MAN FROM PIT RIVER.

IN DEFENSE OF PROF. HANDLER.

Urbana, Ill., May 23.—Your issue of Saturday, May 19, carried a story by Percy Wood in which Roy F. Hall, counsel for the National Lock company of Rockford, is quoted on the subject of the recent hearings of that company before the national labor board.

From this article it appears that Mr. Hall has made a most unusual and undignified kind of attack upon the general counsel of the national labor board, Milton Handler, who until recently was assistant professor of law in Columbia university school of law. Mr. Hall is quoted as saying that "Handler is one of those young theorists who has no experience in manufacturing and darned little in law. An assistant professor isn't much in any law school. At Michigan we used to call them quizmasters. Yet he is trying to run the National Lock company with his opinions. If Handler can run our concern he can also boss the steel companies, Ford and General Motors. He isn't competent, yet he is the fellow who is doing it." Mr. Wood writes that Mr. Hall charged that Handler deliberately disregarded facts developed at the hearing.

The writer desires to say that personally he doubts whether any material benefits, either to employers or employés, will be gained at all commensurate with the losses which the reorientation of the interests of capital and labor under section 7a of the national recovery act is likely to produce. The writer makes this statement because he wishes to defend Mr. Handler against the kind of attack launched against him.

It is astounding to find a member of the bar who will attack a public official in the press in language which questions motives and denies capacity. Mr. Hall says Mr. Handler knows "darned little law." It so happens that Mr. Handler has demonstrated by his published writings unusual learning, ability and grasp of the problems involved in the field of governmental regulation of business. I cannot believe that Mr. Hall's opinion is based upon a study of Mr. Handler's written contributions. To intimate that one's lack of knowledge of law is evidenced by his being an assistant professor of law is but to release the emotion of his disappointment or to disclose ignorance of the modern American law school, and to impugn the motive of counsel falls short of that level of professional ethics that it is the first duty of the lawyer to foster and maintain. SENATOR REED'S VICTORY.

Williamsport, Pa., May 18.—I noticed a very readable column on the first page of your yesterday's issue, signed by John Boettiger, captioned "Reed's Victory Called Rebuff to New Dealers" and suggesting that the defeat of Gov. Pinchot for United States senator for Pennsylvania in the recent primary was a repudiation of the Roosevelt policies.

I live in Pennsylvania and travel the state, and I honestly think that Mr. Boettiger misinterprets the recent election.

I do not think the average voter who voted against Gov. Pinchot had any thought of repudiating anything but Pinchot, who has been a highly unsatisfactory public servant and a conspicuous charlatan who quickly forgot every one of his numerous election promises.

J. P. O. DE MAURIAC.

ANALYSIS.

Chicago, May 22.—In THE TRIBUNE of May 17 you hailed the primary victory of Senator Reed over Gov. Pinchot for the U. S. senatorship of Pennsylvania as a definite repudiation of the New Deal and Roosevelt. As usual, THE TRIBUNE is guilty of "interpreting" news to suit its own opinion and to those who "read and run" [as most newspaper readers do] you probably have succeeded in making them believe that the result was a defeat for the President.

Now let us look at the record, as Al Smith would say. With returns from only a few hundred of the 7,936 precincts lacking the vote count was as follows: Reed, against the New Deal and Roosevelt, 587,045; Pinchot, supporting the New Deal, 483,126; Guffy, a Democrat, a pre-convention booster of Roosevelt's, and, of course, a supporter of the New Deal, 395,048. It will be noted that the two men supporting Roosevelt polled over 290,000 votes more than Reed received. EDGAR L. BECHTOLD.

AL SMITH, CIGAR DOMINATE AT N. Y. CHARTER PARLEY

Committee Holds Its First Cautious Session.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—Alfred E. Smith, a belligerent expression on his ruddy face, his cigar cocked at an aggressive angle, presided today over a strange gathering of men who have taken a prominent part in the political drama played in this city in the last two years.

Mortal political enemies were there, men who had used the strongest language in denunciations of each other and each other's acts. Many of them came reluctantly, but they came nevertheless. They eyed each other cautiously and ex-Gov. Smith eyed them grimly.

At this first meeting of the charter revision commission appointed by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, under authority granted him in a bill passed recently, to reform the government of the nation's largest city, there were no hostilities. But political observers, casting an eye at the curious complexion of the membership with its fourteen Tammany Democrats, its anti-Tammany leaders such as Samuel Seabury, its independents such as Joseph V. McKee, defeated Recovery party candidate for mayor, predicted some mighty battles in the future.

True to Form.

"We're here," said former Gov. Smith in his forthright way, "to arrive at a decision concerning what's wrong with the government of New York and what to do about it."

Mr. Smith was taking his first active part in public life for some time and it was soon apparent that as chairman of the commission he intended to rule with a firm hand.

In a two hour session the commission decided that just about everything possible was wrong with the city's government. Ten subcommittees were appointed and instructed to hold meetings and public hearings in order to decide upon revision and reform of the following divisions:

The city executive and administrative departments, the city legislative system, the judiciary, the county governments, the education system, the civil service and pensions systems, and the borough governments.

Eye Proportional Representation.

There was also the question of proportional representation to be solved, Mr. Smith pointed out.

There was a good deal of quiet moaning among the Tammany members when Samuel Seabury, their implacable enemy, was elected vice chairman. They were cheered, however, a moment later when Frank J. Prial, Tammanyite and former deputy controler, whose appointment to the commission was strongly opposed by Mayor La Guardia, was named on the important committee which is to decide the policies, plan, and scope of the commission's inquiry. But Seabury was also named on this committee.

Prial, who is leader of a large bloc of civil service workers, is an avowed enemy of any changes in the status quo. He and his Tammany brothers feel, it is said, that what was good enough for their fathers is good enough for them. Out of this opposition is expected to arise many interesting clashes during which the evils in the city's governmental system may get a wholesome airing.

Meet on Fortieth Floor.

The meeting was held in Mr. Smith's modernistic offices on the fortieth floor of the Empire State building, and he acted as spokesman to the press after the other members, forgoing the usual handclasps and polite exchanges, had departed.

"We're going ahead at top speed," he declared. "I have been instructed by the commission to get in touch with the governor immediately and ask fora special session of the legislature in order that a constitutional amendment may be submitted regarding the recasting of county governments in New York. A special session will save two years' time.

"The commission has got to finish its job in six weeks," he continued, sternly. The cigar in his mouth described a determined circle and came to rest pointing at a chromium plated chandelier.

"The subcommittees will meet at least twice a week between June 1 and July 15; the commission will meet in full once a week. And by July 15 a draft of a new charter must be ready. It must be filed sixty days before the Nov. 6 election, and it is my desire that it be submitted to the voters at that election."

OFTEN PROPOSED TO, BUT NEVER A BRIDE; SHE SUES

Often proposed to, but never a bride, was the situation in which Miss Betty March, 22 years old, of 2249 South Marshall boulevard, found herself, according to her breach of promise suit filed yesterday in the Circuit court against Charles F. Zeman, a former trafic policeman.

Miss March alleged that her romance began when Zeman, who is 45 years old and lives in Cicero, was in uniform, and she was dispensing doughnuts at the Downey Flake restaurant, 54 West Washington street, three years ago.

At first Policeman Zeman came to the café because he liked doughnuts, according to the suit, and he continued to come there because he liked Betty. On April 22, 1932, she says, he proposed that they go to Beloit, Wis., and get married. She accepted, but before they got there Zeman turned back.

In October of the same year, the bill says, the same situation came about, but this time they started for Bowling Green, Ky. Again Zeman turned back. Later they were at the home of Betty's parents in Muscoda, Wis., when Zeman proposed a third time and was accepted. But there was no wedding.

Miss March asks $10,000 damages to ease her broken heart.

TWO HOTELS ROBBED.

Bandits robbed two hotels early yesterday. Gerald O'Connor, night clerk at the Parkside hotel, 212 North Hamlin avenue, surrendered $176 to one robber. Shortly thereafter two gunmen invaded the Belpark hotel, 3244 North Cicero avenue, robbed William Jochin, night clerk, of $10 and took $3 from Michael Dota, a guest.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Spaniel Meets a Tartar

May 25, 1934.

GINGER, the cocker spaniel, again is finding the smooth pattern of his life upset by the scheme of things on the Tribune's experimental farm. When the lambs were being born the ewes didn't like to have Ginger fooling around the sheepfold, so they used to take after poor old Ginger and run him out every time he showed up. That game has been off the schedule for several weeks. However, now that the fussy old Barred Rock hens are strutting around with their chicks a new menace to Ginger's placid life has sprung up. Day before yesterday the dog spied a cat outside of the poultry yard. That was just an invitation to Ginger for a charge against the feline. He lit out of the barnyard lickety split. It looked like easy pickings. The trouble was, however, that Ginger didn't notice a Barred Rock hen and her chicks between him and the cat. When the dog got close to this chicken family the old hen ruffled up her feathers and charged. Being accustomed to poultry and knowing that he can't touch any of the barnyard fowls, Ginger was nonplused. He stopped, but that was the wrong thing to do, because the old hen sailed into him and all but climbed right on his back. Ginger retreated none too gracefully at this point, leaving the old Barred Rock in complete possession of the field.

There's one old hen on the auxiliary farm that certainly has a black mark against her record. Yesterday it was learned that she had just killed four little chicks. Why she went on a rampage like this is difficult to figure out. However, there isn't any doubt about her guilt. Now there is one Barred Rock on the farm that is going to have a sort of solitary confinement so that she can't get near any of the chicks again. There are 96 young chicks on the place at this time. The number of broilers [weighing around 2½ pounds] totals 136.

Rawlings has caught another possum near the duck pond. Between the raccoons and the 'possums which have been getting into the live traps recently, the foxes that are enjoying the hospitality of the experimental farm, the pocket gophers that continue to tunnel through the dry ground, and the skunk that lives under one of the barns to the continual annoyance of Binks, the fox terrier, there are all kinds of wild animals coming into the daily schedule of farm life these days.

A supply of Japanese buckwheat has arrived at the experimental farm and will be planted at once. The story behind this buckwheat is interesting. In the first place, it is not a common variety. Secondly, it has been secured as an anti-chinch bug move. There are two small fields down here planted to alfalfa in combination with specially selected barleys. [Clarence Thurow said that this barley was the finest seed he had ever seen.] The chinch bugs have swarmed to this barley and ruined it, of course.

Now the plan is to plant the buckwheat in the barley field—which will accomplish three purposes. It will starve the chinch bugs, act as a nurse crop for the alfalfa, and give the farm a valuable grain crop. It's a little early to plant buckwheat, but the boys are going to try a planting right away. Just as soon as it is in a grand frontal attack against the chinch bugs will be made. The plan calls for turning over one furrow around the field, laying down a line of tar or heavy oil in this furrow to keep the bugs from getting out of the plot, and then either starving them or trapping them in holes along this furrow.

And now we have to leave the farm for a couple of days because our old friends, the wall-eyed pike, muskalunge, and northern pike of Wisconsin, are insisting upon being given some attention inasmuch as the 1934 season on these game fish has just opened up. So we are headin' north.

SURGEON AVERS HARRIMAN DUPED HIM IN LOAN DEAL

Tells How Friendship Was Smashed.

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—The government set out today to show that Joseph W. Harriman had converted a client's 15,000 shares of Standard Oil stock, valued at $340,000, to his own uses.

It offered its evidence through Dr. Preston Pope Satterwhite, owner of the stock, who, incidentally, revealed how his beautiful friendship with Harriman and his family—matter of several years' standing—had smashed up over the transaction.

Dr. Satterwhite, a big, ruddy, white haired man, long retired from the practice of medicine and surgery, said he had pledged the stock and his valuable collection of objets d'art for a $300,000 loan from the Harriman National Bank and Trust company.

Several times he tried to pay off the loan to recover his stock and release his art collection, he testified. But, he said, neither Harriman, president of the bank, nor Albert M. Austin, its executive vice president, would let him do so.

Recovers 1,000 Shares.

Nor would the bank return his stock, he related, and since the closure of the bank only 1,000 shares have been recovered. He has a suit pending in the state courts for the remander.

He understood, the doctor, said, that Harriman had pledged the 1,000 shares with E. B. Smith & Co. [a brokerage firm] and the balance with "Mr. Harriman's companies," as the prosecution phrased it.

The surgeon related how in April, 1932, when the National City bank was pressing him to take up part of his loan there and had refused to accept his collection of art objects as collateral he turned to the Harriman National bank for assistance.

A $300,000 loan was arranged after negotiations with Harriman and Austin, he said, and transferred from the National City bank on those terms.

Carried on Friendship.

He and his wife had known the Harrimans for some years, had visited their country place, had entertained them at the witness' country home at Great Neck, L. I., and had met them often at friends' homes.

So as a token of his appreciation he had presented Harriman's daughter, Mrs. Miriam Harriman Wright, with a brooch as a gift from Mrs. Satterwhite and himself.

In December of the same year, after Harriman had become chairman of the board of the bank, the doctor said he was astonished to receive a letter from him implying that the pledging of the Standard Oil stock had been a personal matter between him and Harriman.

Letter Read Into Evidence.

A sharp letter that the doctor wrote to Harriman saying that "the implication that this stock had to do with a personal transaction with you is astounding" was read into the evidence and identified by the witness as one he had written to Harriman in reply.

This was after, he had testified, both Austin and Harriman had assured him that his loan "was in excellent condition" and would not let him pay it off.

He had never spoken to Harriman since the leter was written, he said. And the following March the brooch was returned to him by Mrs. Wright with a note in which she said, "I will always appreciate the spirit of the gift" and "I am returning the brooch because of circumstances which I do not begin to understand."

A JAPANESE MOTHER BURNS HERSELF AND BABY SON TO DEATH

San Francisco, May 25.—(AP)—Leaving a note saying, "It is best that I do this," a Japanese mother carried her 11 month old son to a flaming death with her last night in the Japanese tea garden at Golden Gate park. The woman, Mrs. Aiko Hagiwara, 23, police said, drenched herself and her son with gasoline, applied a match, and leaped into a rubbish pit at the tea garden, where a short time before she had served guests.

40% SHRINKAGE IN REID ESTATE, STATE REPORTS

Value of Securities Down 7 Million in 3 Years.

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—A shrinkage of approximately 40 per cent in the value of securities that form the bulk of Mrs. Elizabeth Mills Reid's estate was discovered today when the New York state tax department filed an appraisal for transfer tax purposes.

Mrs. Reid, widow of former Ambassador Whitelaw Reid and mother of Ogden Mills Reid, publisher of the Herald Tribune, died on April 29, 1931, in her château at Cap Ferrat, France. She left a gross estate of $20,463,941 and net estate of $18,589,916, both figures being appraised value at the time of her death.

The bulk of the assets was securities, however, and their value has shrunk approximately seven million dollars since the spring of 1931.

84,250 Shares of One Stock.

The largest holding was 84,250 shares of National Biscuit company common, appraised at $5,971,218 as of the date of her death. This stock has a present value of $2,843,437, while the shrinkage in others of the 134 securities has been such that the present value of some stocks and bonds is less than $10,000,000. The issues Mrs. Reid held were appraised at $17,205,462.

While the tax has not been fixed, it was estimated today that the estate would pay $2,441,666 to the state of New York, based on the taxing law in effect at the time of her death.

Mrs. Reid's two children, Lady Jean Templeton Ward of Chilton, Hungerford, England, and Mr. Reid, the publisher, are the principals of 52 beneficiaries named in the will. Each receives a trust fund of $3,000,000, in addition to personal real estate and legacies. Both children had received large gifts of stock and property between 1918 and 1929, according to the appraisal papers—a total of $9,589,146 to her son and $6,339,057 to her daughter.

Eleven Public Bequests.

The will listed eleven public bequests totaling $645,000, the largest being a legacy of $500,000 to the Mills Memorial hospital at San Mateo, Cal., which Mrs. Reid founded in 1922.

Besides stocks and bonds, Mrs. Reid's assets consisted of realty, $1,125,011; notes and cash, $411,159, and miscellaneous items, $1,722,307, in this latter being included paintings, period furniture, jewelry, and tapestries.

Deductions made against the gross estate were for funeral and administration expenses, including $4,987 for flowers, and debts totaling $945,879.

Ogden Mills Reid and Henry W. Bull of this city are executors of the estate.

Bequests to Daughter.

To her daughter Mrs. Reid left personal property worth $286,246, a legacy of $100,000, $3,000,000 in trust, and one-half the residue.

Between 1918 and 1929 Mrs. Reid made large gifts to her daughter and son. Attached to the appraisal was a statement to the effect that on April 9, 1929, Mrs. Reid assigned to her daughter by way of gift one-half of the decedent's credit in accounts on the books of the New York Tribune, Inc., reflecting advances she had made over a period of years. The balance to Mrs. Reid's credit as of that date was $7,396,648. The remaining half was assigned to Ogden Mills Reid.

Besides that gift of $3,698,332, Mrs. Reid had given her daughter $1,854,047 in securities, a residence in Scotland appraised at $584,783, and another in France worth $204,895.

To her son Mrs. Reid left Camp Wildair on Regis lake, Brighton, N. Y., which is valued at $100,000; personal effects there valued at $30,000, effects in New York City appraised at $401,491, a trust fund of three million dollars, and one-half the residue.

Gifts Over $9,000,000.

The gifts of stock and property made to Mr. Reid between 1918 and 1929 totaled $9,589,146. This half of his mother's credit on the books of the New York Tribune was $3,698,332. Other gifts included $1,811,625 in securities; $728,600 spent by Mrs. Reid on property for her son at Purchase, N. Y.; $809,613 for his home in East Eighty-fourth street, and, before 1928, $2,540,976 in interest items accruing on certain advances to the New York Tribune.

There were four promissory notes among the assets, totaling $307,150 and including $300,000 of the Mills Hotel Trusts, dated Jan. 12, 1908, and due Jan. 12, 1930. There was $91,051 in cash and eight items of accounts receivable, including $400,000 due from the New York Tribune, Inc., and $6,543 from his royal highness the prince of Sukhodayan, Siam, who occupied the Reid home at Purchase, N. Y., during a visit to this country.

WM. B. WILSON, EX-SECRETARY OF LABOR, IS DEAD

Washington, D. C., May 26 (Saturday).—(AP)—Word was received here early today that William B. Wilson, the first secretary of labor after the office was created in 1913, died last night while en route to Washington from Miami. He was 72 years old and had been in ill health for months.

Wilson, whose home was at Blossburg, Pa., had served for several years past as arbitrator in disputes between Illinois miners and operators.

FREDERIC STILES, UTILITIES EXPERT, DIES IN EVANSTON

Frederic Canning Stiles, 71 years old, treasurer of the Welsbach Street Lighting company, died yesterday in the Evanston hospital, after an extended illness. Mr. Stiles lived at 1456 Wesley avenue, Evanston.

Mr. Stiles was born at Frampton Cotterell, England, and educated at Oxford. He was a son of the late Rev. Robert Canning Stiles, vicar of Froxfields, and great-nephew of Sir Richard Canning Stiles, engineer, who laid the first cable between England and America.

Coming to the United States at 19 years of age, Mr. Stiles settled in the east. He began employment in the utilities field in Philadelphia in 1885, and came to Chicago in 1898 as an official of the Globe Light and Heat company and the Welsbach company. He had lived here since. Henry Alexander, 27 years old, 1018 South Ashland avenue, who was arraigned on the same charges, was dismissed for lack of evidence.

LeRoy Wetzel, a music teacher, and Miss Marie Sullivan, a student, identified Cordio in court, but were not certain of Alexander. Vestal told Judge Heller he could not identify either of the two men who called him from his classroom Tuesday and struck him.

4 FILM MAKERS GIVEN APPROVAL OF CLUB WOMEN

2 Producers Designated as Unsatisfactory.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hot Springs, Ark., May 25.—[Special.]—Four of the major film picture companies received the accolade of approval from the motion picture department of the General Federation of Women's clubs in session here today, for their announced policy of clean productions. Two others were cited by Mrs. Richard R. McClure of Chicago, chairman of the department, as maintaining an opposite stand, and one other was characterized as wavering between the two perspectives.

No discussion followed the report, although a great deal of argument has been carried on outside the convention hall, the federation not being at all unanimous in its attitude toward the problem. A minority professing disapproval of the relations between this department and the industry it surveys was not represented in the delegate body.

Companies Are Named.

The companies endorsed by the McClure report are Fox, Universal, Columbia, and R. K. O.-Radio, which "stand for clean, wholesome film entertainment and are opposed to controversial story material," according to the decision of the department. Those definitely designated as unsatisfactory are Warner Brothers and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who "still believe that the type of pictures they turn out is satisfactory and no new policy is necessary," in the language of the report. Paramount is characterized as leaning toward the better films.

"In last year's output of 343 pictures," it read, "fifty-five were classed as unsuitable for the public. An analysis shows that the greatest number of offensive pictures came from Warner Brothers-First National with 15 pictures, Paramount came next with 13, then Metro with seven films."

The 10 best pictures of the year were mentioned in the report as "Cavalcade," "Forty Second Street," "Private Life of Henry the Eighth," "Lady for a Day," "State Fair," "Farewell to Arms," "She Done Him Wrong," "I'm a Fugitive from a Chain Gang," "Maedchen in Uniform," and "Rasputin and the Empress." The basis was the reviews given by 384 critics in key cities.

Report on Drawing Power.

Box office attractions among the stars were listed respectively as Marie Dressler, Will Rogers, Janet Gaynor, Wallace Beery, Mae West, Eddie Cantor, Jean Harlow, Norma Shearer, Clark Gable and Joan Crawford.

"Where are the Barrymores, George Arliss, Fredric March, Ann Harding, May Robeson and the other stars of consummate artistry?" asked the McClure report. "They are not included because we failed to buy the products in which they appear. The public has indicated its taste—a bid for popular entertainment. Groups condemn the Mae West pictures, but they fill the theater. Mothers say Jean Harlow, Joan Crawford, and Clark Gable films are bad for the young, but still they fail to substitute other forms of entertainment so the children need not come under this influence.

"Stop paying the salaries of these stars and see how soon Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will find new ones. The public becomes the producer of good pictures."

JOY MORTON WILL IS FILED; DIVIDES $1,500,000 ESTATE

Joy Morton, chairman of the Morton Salt company, who died May 9, left an estate of $1,500,000, it was revealed yesterday when his will was filed in the Du Page county Probate court at Wheaton. Morton died of a heart attack at his estate near Lisle in Du Page county. He was 78 years old.

The will provides for the establishment of a $300,000 trust fund from which the income of approximately $15,000 annually is to be used for the maintenance of the famous 419 acre arboretum which Mr. Morton built near his home, overlooking the Du Page river.

The remainder of the estate, except for specific bequests totaling $22,000, was left to the widow, Mrs. Margaret Gray Morton; a son, Sterling, and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, to be divided equally. His home and farm were left to Mrs. Morton. The other bequests were $10,000 to a nephew, Wirt Morton; $5,000 to another nephew, Joy Morton, and $5,000 and $2,000, respectively, to the public library and St. Mary's church in Nebraska City, Neb., Mr. Morton's birthplace.

Antoinette Donnelly Tells How Noted Beauties Keep Charm

Social World Can Be Found at Fair Tonight

Opening Causes More Stir Than Year Ago.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IT doesn't seem possible that any one will be anywhere but down at A Century of Progress tonight, for literally every one we have seen for days is planning to end the evening's festivities at the Fair, if not to be there from dinner time on.

There is even more excitement over this second opening than there was over the first, probably because there are so many more villages and clubs within the grounds than there were last year.

The Streets of Paris ball, a benefit for the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, will be the largest affair, for it is expected that at least 5,000 persons will attend it, but many of those 5,000 will dine earlier at one of the clubs or cafés at the Fair.

The Colonial village, where a Martha Washington ball under the sponsorship of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be given; Merrie England, where several hundred socialites will dine; the Spanish village, where more of "the pretty world" will assemble around 8:30 or 9 for dinner; the Italian village, where the Club Fiorenza is holding open house all afternoon and evening; the Belgian village and the Spanish village are all fairly near the Streets of Paris so it will be a simple matter for merrymakers to wander from one to the other.

Century Club to Hold Opening.

The Century club, which will be packed at cocktail and at dinner time with members and their guests, is just across the Swift bridge at 23d street on Northerly Iland, and the Trustees' Lounge, where some of the more conservative will dine, is in the Hall of Science at 18th street, so it won't be much of a jaunt for them to reach the gayety of 23d street and points south.

The opening ceremonies in the Lagoon theater at 15th street this afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock, and the initial ilumination ceremonies tonight in the same place, starting at 8:30 o'clock, will attract many socialites to the Fair grounds before dark, and so will the first performances of the Junior league's plays on the Enchanted Island.

Not every one who attends the Streets of Paris or the Martha Washington ball will dine at the Fair, however, for there will be numerous dinner parties at all the smart clubs on the near north side. Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, chairman of the committee in charge of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society's benefit, and Chauncey McCormick, president of the society, together with Mr. Carpenter, Mrs. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn, and Mrs. Jacob Baur, are giving a dinner at the Casino at which the especial guests will be Gov. Horner, Mayor and Mrs. Kelly, and President Rufus C. Dawes of A Century of Progress and Mrs. Dawes. This party will dine promptly at 8 o'clock so that its members can reach the Streets of Paris promptly at 10 o'clock, the hour for the ball to start.

Preview of Art Exhibition Thursday.

Next Thursday A Century of Progress Exhibition of the Fine Arts will be opened at the Art institute with a preview for the fourteen thousand members of the institute, who will be received by the trustees and governing members with their wives.

The following day the museum will be open to the public with free entrance to all the many important exhibitions on the first and ground floors. There will be an admission charge of 25 cents to the exhibition of painting and sculpture that fills the 43 galleries on the second floor. The show this summer is to be as notable as that of last year, and a distinguished patron of art from Germany, Baron von Hodenberg, who had a preview the other day, commented that it was "the best hung and most advantageously arranged exhibit of masterpieces I have seen."

The baron, trustee of the noted Museum of Bremen, and his wife were here for a short visit with Dr. and Mrs. Phillip Miller, and they hope to return in July to have another look at the exhibition and to see the Fair.

Oakleigh Lewis Thornes Parents of Daughter.

There isn't a happier pair of parents anywhere than the Oakleigh Lewis Thornes, for now their family, which until Thursday night consisted of themselves and a little son, has been augmented by a tiny daughter. Bertha Honoré is the young lady's name, a very distinguished name in Chicago, because it was her great-grandmother's name before she was married to the first Potter Palmer.

Bertha is Mrs. Thorne's name, too, for she was Bertha Palmer before she became the bride of young Mr. Thorne, son of Mrs. Philip S. Chancellor (Charlotte Thorne Lewis of Santa Barbara and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Oakleigh Thorne of Millbrook, N. Y., and Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Thorne is in the Passavant hospital, and, according to the proud grandmother, Mrs. Potter Palmer, yesterday, "mother and baby are doing splendidly." The new baby is the Potter Palmers' third grandchild, the other two being the Thornes' son, Oakleigh III., who will be 2 years old on the 11th of August, and Rose Movius Palmer, the year old daughter of the Potter Palmers III.

Watson-Bouscaren Nuptials on June 30.

Late in the afternoon of June 30 Miss Chloe Watson, daughter of the Cornelius B. Watsons of Winnetka, will become the bride of Pierre Bouscaren at a garden ceremony in the Watsons' Ardsley road estate. There will be a reception at the house afterwards, and a honeymoon abroad, perhaps—depending on Mr. Bouscaren's business plans. He is being sent

Scene from Junior League Play

Surely this was taken at a tense moment in the dramatic lives of Princess Badrouldadour, the wicked magician, and Aladdin, the hero of the play "Aladdin" with which the Junior league is opening its summer season of entertainment for juveniles at the Children's theater on the Enchanted Island at A Century of Progress this morning. What is the magician (center, Mrs. Donald La Chance) trying to do to the princess (left, Miss Evelyn Bouscaren) that Aladdin (Mrs. John R. Winterbotham) wants so earnestly to prevent? The performances are scheduled for 11 a. m., 1:45, and 4 o'clock today.

Collars, Cuffs Listed on Best Buys of Week

Style Expert Offers Hints to Fashionable.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The best buys of the week!

The airiest frills of the season—new net collar and cuff sets in white and pastel shades ready for street wear. These very flattering sets revive any dated frock or suit. You can find them in rather complicated collar effects that are almost an entire blouse front, with cuffs that are wide, deep and flared, and most decorative. Also net blouses with short, short sleeves and a pleated frill that winds around the neckline, goes down both sides of the front panel, and also wanders around the cuffs. In white and colors.

Cross-barred organdy hats, gloves, and matching handbags, in bonbon tints, the hat with a wide shadow brim, a simple bow trim, and a shallow crown; the gloves with flared cuffs, sometimes plain and sometimes ruffled; the dainty summer handbag also of the cross-barred transparent stuff. All are available in the same colors, a trio of summer costume accents that can't be equaled for effectiveness, charm, and color contrast.

Another gay get-together — the checked silk sandals that are mated to white summer gloves with cuffs of the checkered silk. These twosomes are a knockout with a white dress or suit. You can get them in red and white, blue and white, and black and white. The sandals are positively good enough for any capricious Cinderella getting ready for the summer party season.

Have you seen the snappy new felt hats for smart shoppers who know this type of hat from long experience? They have the new soft, shallow crowns, the brims that can be turned up in the popular off-the-face manner or worn swankily down all the way around.

Soft powdery shades of pink, blue, yellow, as well as scarlet, white, and dark street colors, are available, with some very modest price tags to lure you into spending your cash.

These are good traveling hats, as they can be folded and stowed in the smallest space and be unpacked without a wrinkle.

N. Y. Society Girls to Attend Civic Ball When Fleet Comes In

New York, May 25.—(AP)—If a sailor on the night of June 6 asks some New York girl "Where do you live?" and she replies "Park avenue," he needn't be skeptical.

The girl may be telling the truth, for some of New York's richest and most prominent debutantes asked today to be invited to the sailors' dance, which the city is giving on that evening.

This dance is to be a part of a public program welcoming the fleet to New York. A hundred and ten ships, with 44,000 men, will arrive in the harbor on May 31 for a presidential review.

The girls today put their names on file with the Army and Navy league, the Y. M. C. A., and with the Catholic and Jewish Big Sisters.

The mayor's committee to welcome the fleet has chosen these groups to provide dancing partners for the June 6 civic ball for the bluejackets.

Good Morning!

Ah, easy it is for a denizen of the "upper world" to become an under dog! If you don't believe it, hark to the case of the rich, the powerful, the lonesome Mr. Stream.

Loneliness is the villain of this piece. Stalking, leering, corroding Loneliness. Loneliness dogs the steps of Mr. Stream. It hisses at him from corners. It howls in his corridors at night and, even when he tries to immerse his consciousness in business—of which the good Lord knows he has plenty—it reminds him in eerie tones that his wife is too busy with her social activities to pal around with him or be a good mother to his servant managed little son, Tommy.

There had been no Loneliness in the good old days before Mr. Stream annexed all the railroads in the U. S., with their attendant mergers and millions, and when Mrs. Stream had been content to be—just Mrs. Stream. No, the villain had hatched from the egg of prosperity and grown into a large and ugly genii in practically no time at all.

Now—if Loneliness had only contented itself with hissing and howling and peering and skulking, why, life in the Stream family would undoubtedly just have gone on. BUT——

One day up pops Loneliness, right after Mr. Stream has saved a burlesque queen from drowning, and says in the friendliest and most disarming tones—all so surprisingly genial and understanding:

"Now there's a nice, pleasant young blonde, sir, to sup and this and that and the other thing with. . . ."

WELL——

The burlesque queen IS a nice, kindly blonde. But—she has a gentleman friend who dearly loves his blackmail. SO——

I spare you no end of hideous details, including a couple of murders and some vurr' dumb finger print business. For as smart a man as he's cracked up to be, Mr. Stream certainly does the oddest things! H. E., however. Because Mrs. Stream is, it seems, at heart as good as she is beautiful, which last, O, Bebby! [You know Mary Astor?] and all she needed was a few gentle hints, such as being dragged into court and headlined in the newspapers and losing her fortune, not to say her pride, to teach her that a wife's place is at her husband's side? Loneliness? Pouf. Vanishes just—like—that!

The story is hectic and, as directed, faulty of detail.

Warren William makes the rôle of Stream as believable as possible, looking convincingly haggard the while. Mary Astor, Ginger Rogers, J. Carroll Naish, et al, do a commendably good paint job on the rickety vehicle.

See you tomorrow!

VARIETY reports the incident of the royal gate crasher. The king of Siam, who is now in London, crashed the Empire theater, where "Viva Villa" is being shown, with his retinue of six. THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Blonde and fair and sensitive skinned, she knows that discretion is the better part of valor out in the sun. She's applying a vanishing cream that affords absolute protection from sunburn and encourages an even tan.

Well, friends and countrywomen, we have found it at last—a cream that affords absolute protection from sunburn, promotes a tan if that's what your little hearts desire, and doesn't irritate even the most sensitive skin when it's applied! It's just too, too miraculous.

We never could go along with the universal fad for suntan. It's undoubtedly healthy to sunbathe, but there is considerable doubt in our mind that it's either wise or becoming for every woman—blonde, brunette or redhead—to bronze herself to the point where you expect her to stick a rose in her teeth and break out in a Spanish fandango. Taste and type are the present guides, thank heaven!

But whether you wish to tan or simply choose not to run for the bronze honors, take the advice of a pal and get acquainted with protectives. Take the first sunnings in small doses and with the help of such a cream as we describe today and a good oil or lotion and lead up gradually to the place where you are turned to a golden brown.

Our pet sunproof cream is easy to apply; it's imperceptible as it vanishes into the skin and is one of the best of makeup foundations as well as a protective. Lots of women object to oils because they don't contribute much to the sartorial effect. You can't do such outdoor summer excitements as garden parties and golf tournament doused in 'em without resembling a swimming champ about to dive into the channel. With this cream on and the makeup over that you can be pretty as a picture all of the time.

It's a good thing to use for the first couple of sunbaths—and after that when you're out for health instead of conquests and don't care particularly whether the nose is powdered it can be used in conjunction with one of the oils. It's easy to apply and its efficiency lasts for hours.

Bald headed men who go in for golf and tennis will find it a tremendous help, by the way—and this isn't a facetious note. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Routine Care Is Secret of Film Beauties

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Believe it or not, women who have reputations as beauties work intensively to maintain their positions. The rest of us may be inclined to think that these women come by their gifts and hold on to them by the simple process of having been born to favor, or else by having personal attendants to rub and brush and generally overhaul them daily. But don't you believe it. They work at their jobs as stunners. And keep on working.

One of these beauty highlights takes herself out of her luxurious abode three times daily to do a turn around the reservoir. Does that sound like pampering? Another I know of takes herself up on the roof daily and goes through a workout that would put the average man out of business for the day. Still another beauty of note goes through a daily salon hour of exercise and massage, and hair brushing, and rearranging, and complexion upkeep work.

The women from whom the young American girls take their cues, meaning the women of the screen, aren't the pampered pets they're sometimes considered, not in their beauty way, however, they are otherwise. No body of women has to work harder than the screen group to maintain their beauty position at par.

So, if you other women, young and mature, complain about having to take a few minutes off daily to keep yourselves looking fit and fine, you're not looking through the right lens. True, it takes a little time to keep yourself up. But even in a world where competition is not based on box office returns, our day demands the kind of attraction that only comes with constant, daily vigil.

Sharp Contrast Marks Exhibit at Arts Club

Orozco and Derain Offer Splendid Work.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Arts club has opened its last exhibit of this season. Paintings by Orozco are in the larger gallery and water colors and drawings by Derain are in the smaller room. The contrast between the two is startling. Derain is the most charming of Dresden pottery and Orozco the iron strength of a polished cannon. Derain is the parlor pretty man; Orozco the trumpeter, blaring from the housetop.

The Derain group is something in the nature of studio scraps. These are all little pieces, many of them unfinished. They are delicate and sensitive, poetic, imaginative and graceful.

The landscapes now and again are startling in their beauty. The three tiny landscapes in color are clever stage effects, picturesque in their arrangement. The No. 5 is a tree as finely woven as tapestry. Landscapes No. 8, No. 11 and No. 6 are all particularly to be noticed for their beauty. Among the nudes the Torso No. 12 is by all odds the finest.

Charming as are the Derain paintings, it is the Mexican who carries off the honors of the show. He is glorious. His work is vital and significant. He can do more with the back of a person in conveying emotion than most painters can do with the face. In fact Orozco is fond of painting backs, and many of his most poignant and pathetic effects are found in the bent head and rounded shoulders of a body turned from the spectator.

He feels war strongly, as what Mexican does not? But it is with the tragedy and sadness of war that Orozco is the most concerned, its pitiful waste and meaningless destruction. In painting after painting he preaches pacifist sentiments that wring the heart. He shows in a stroke, in a line, the futility of giving the youth of a nation for cannon fodder.

But there are times when the glory of the struggle fires him. Such a time is witnessed in "Zapatistas," a brilliant procession of moving figures in scythe-like rhythm passing before a group of men on horseback, Zapata at the head. In color and line this painting stands out.

Then there are other times when Orozco forgets war and plays with his talent. At these moments he paints abstractions or still life arrangements that bear witness to his ability and craft. "Broken Glass" is one of these and "Books" another. From the evidence presented, Orozco is one of the strongest of contemporary painters, a force to reckon with, finer than Rivera who, after all, is not much more than a lobbying communist spreading propaganda when asked to paint.

The exhibition will continue to June 15, and is well worth seeing.

THE WRONG MAN

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Cara Follette, only daughter of a Canadian business man, anticipates becoming her father's partner. While traveling in Europe, studying languages and making business contacts, she meets Jerry Flint, a poor young English singer. For a brief while romance transcends business in Cara's young life. She decides to stake him to Canada, where her influence can gain for him the auditions impossible for him to get abroad. At home, Cara's father is about to lose his business to his rival, Redman Harmer, who pays him an unwelcome visit.

INSTALMENT VI.

BIG BUSINESS AND MATRIMONY.

Follette's eyes questioned sharply Harmer's slight smile.

"I've brought her up hard," he added.

"Have you?" said Harmer.

"That's the way to bring a girl up," Follette went on in a dogged voice as if feeling himself contradicted. "To share a man's hardship and business and struggle and enjoy the fight like a man."

"I can't agree. I like a woman to share the prizes but keep out of the ring."

"Once I thought like you. It's wrong. And after you've loaded her with all the results of your sweat and toil, a woman doesn't thank you. Not after she's used to the toys, anyway."

"I wasn't suggesting toys, Mr. Follette. A woman to my mind has her serious side of life, but it differs from a man's."

"An unprofitable argument," said Follette, sweeping a hand over his gray face as if to brush away the tiredness. "Let us come straight to the reason for your visit."

"I've seen your daughter."

The tiredness lifted, color came back under the gray skin, and all romance shone in Follette's eyes. But he did not know that he was confessing any of this to Harmer.

"Yes? Where? When?"

"In Munich three months ago. Then in a little village in the Tyrol where she went, and—I happened to go, too."

"How was she looking?"

"Wonderful," said Harmer.

Follette looked at him sharply.

"You have made acquaintance, you two?" His voice was incredulous.

"No. I don't think she even knew me by sight. We both passed on our ways."

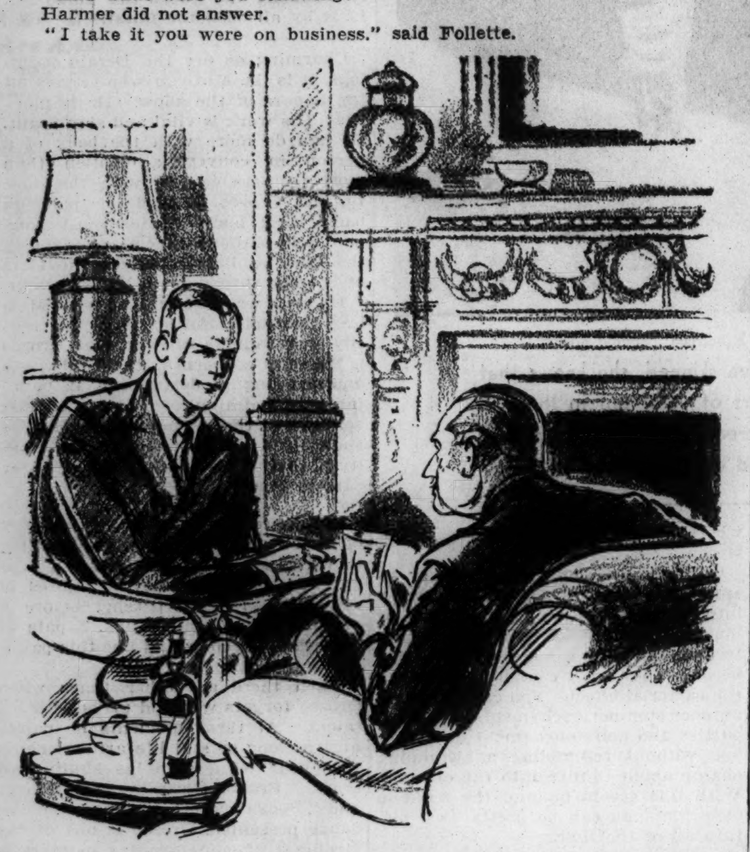
"So she was looking wonderful." Then he schooled the romance from his voice and affected the stern parent. "But she wasn't sent on a pleasure trip to Tyrol villages. Munich is all right. But it was her job to keep to the big cities and follow orders."

"She was following glamor. A woman does."

"And what were you following?"

Harmer did not answer.

"I take it you were on business," said Follette.



"I have never fallen in love with any woman until I saw your daughter."

"Yes. I went on to Vienna, then to Paris, and home."

"Having been to Prague, Moscow, Constantinople and Berlin."

Harmer nodded, unsurprised.

"Yes," said Follette in a quiet voice. I heard you were out there forestalling us and undercutting us. You have come back with the contracts we wanted. They might have saved the game for me and they might not."

"I have them," said Harmer as quietly.

Follette looked at him warily.

"Well? What then?"

"I'm not in Toronto much, and don't know your friends. When your daughter comes home, will you give me a special chance to meet her?"

"Hell! No!" cried Follette, rising to astonished fury.

But then he fell quiet. A great quietness descended on the handsome room, and the high lights of sunset began to dim, to relinquish their red burnishing of polished wood, and cut glass and tawny whisky. In this quietness Follette, overcoming his first staggered amazement on which bitter chagrin had followed, reviewed in his mind, Redman Harmer.

The man had a reputation of working terrifically and playing terrifically, but also of living terrifically. He was not some still clean, simple, and malleable boy. All the fierce protective instincts of fatherhood gathered in Benjamin Follette against him. Cara—and any man, grievous indeed. Cara—and Redman Harmer! Unthinkable! Besides, from babyhood she had grown up to dislike the name. Almost in her cradle it was a fable of enmity. He himself had helped her to these convictions. They had ranged themselves side by side to fight the Harmer lot, and she had promised to be as good a soldier as any son could be. Better, for she was a woman, and women were more passionately single-minded.

She was a woman. And suddenly that one weakness in the armor of invulnerability that Follette had tried so obstinately to forge upon himself and her came home to him. She was a woman whom some man would desire.

The time had come much too soon.

Yet as he sat there in a long silence which Harmer did not break, he knew, too, a private reluctant relief like a fighter, who has long known himself beaten and yet fought on, when he is mercifully allowed to take his harness off for a moment's ease and to drop his sword. He had been frightened for two years, and there was no one to whom he could tell his fears. Cara was too young, and he no longer told anything to Anny. A man could not go to a woman who said, "Your business no longer interests me," and lay his head on her shoulder and ask her, "What shall we do?"

He had been desperately afraid for Cara, also, of course, for his wife.

"There comes a time," he said at last, "when a man has passed his peak. The rest is downhill."

Harmer did not speak.

Again Follette lapsed into a silence. He saw ahead a glimmer of that incredible happening, a business merger of Harmer and himself which meant instant and complete salvation. A Harmer-Follette combine would be, maybe, the strongest in the world. But he knew perfectly well that Harmer, as he himself had always done, chose the lone hand, and only for urgent personal reasons might alter his policy. This urgent personal reason was Cara?

"Harmer," he said at last, "what do you mean?"

"Just that I want a special opportunity, approved by you, Follette, of meeting your daughter."

"You must say more or you should have said less."

"Very well," said Harmer, "I am a one-woman man, and I thank God for it. I had never fallen in love with any woman till I saw your daughter."

Follette said sardonically:

"Gossip says otherwise."

"O, I know something about those stories. They must arise round any successful man who isn't a hermit," said Harmer. "I give you my word you may discount gossip."

To his own slow surprise Follette at once accepted Harmer's word.

"You want to marry Cara?"

"Yes," said Harmer.

"My girl is not a girl who would marry for money. She is the new kind. She is as independent as a man, Harmer."

"She is not a man, Follette."

"She would rather fight for herself than sell herself. She knows how to fight, by God!"

"I don't want her to marry me for money. I only want the opportunity of meeting her under your own ægis. And I'd like her to know at least that you and I could be friends. Then I'll play my own hand and take my own chances."

After a while Follette said slowly: "Of course, I see plainly what all this would mean to me, Harmer."

"Naturally, in the position of your son-in-law there would be a fusion of interests. I take it that you would consider a revival of the old partnership?"

"You may take it that I would," sighed Follette ironically.

Charlie Ray, Silents Star, Starts Again

Visit to Old Chum Brings Role in New Film.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 25.—(AP)—Special.]—Charlie Ray, the former star, paid a visit to his old chum, Douglas MacLean, on the set of "Ladies Should Listen," of which Douglas is the producer, and as a result Charlie is appearing in his first motion picture rôle in six years.

His last film featured appearance was the silent "Garden of Eden," with Corinne Griffith, in 1928. Since then Charlie has been beset by business troubles, gone into bankruptcy, and conquered an extended illness, but he looks a lot like his old self again—the country boy of "The Clodhopper" and other ten year old successes. Nine names are listed above Charlie's in the cast sheet of Paramount's "Ladies Should Listen," in which Cary Grant, Frances Drake, Edward Everett Horton, and Rosita Moreno head the cast, but Charlie grins and sees a bright future beginning to beam again.

His comeback would please everybody whose place in the movies dates back to the early 1920s, when Charlie Ray was the peer of all the stars—Lloyd, Hart, Fairbanks, Pickford, Chaplin, the Talmadges, Tearle, and Meighan.

Veree Teasdale and Adolph Menjou had intended going to Spain for their marriage, or as a honeymoon trip this summer, but the rate of exchange killed that idea. They're going to the Canadian Rockies instead. The wedding will take place after Adolphe's divorce becomes final in early August.

Warren William did so well as Bill Powell's successor in the rôle of Philo Vance, suave detective, at Warner's that that studio has bought two more detective thrillers, "Case of Howling Dog" and "Case of the Curious Bride," for William to play. He'll be Perry Mason, society man-tracker in the two Erle Stanley Gardner thrillers.

Judge Camille Kelly of the Memphis Juvenile court was a visitor at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio. She asked to be introduced to Jackie Cooper, saying she had so much to do with bad children, that she "wanted to see a good one for a change." She has handled 34,000 cases of delinquents and gladdened the soul of Louis B. Mayer, head of the studio, by saying that in all those thousands of cases she never had one in which she could specifically attribute the juvenile offender's delinquency to motion pictures.

An advertising outfit sent three pairs of long pants to the studio to have Jackie Cooper wear them and be photo-ed, but after the pictures were taken, the studio decided it didn't want Jackie's picture shown in longies—he's supposed to stay a little boy for movie purposes, for a couple more years, and the studio doesn't want the public even to think of him as getting past the childhood years. So the photographs were destroyed.

Hail THE 1934 CENTURY OF PROGRESS!

ONCE AGAIN CHICAGO affirms its daring leadership in civic achievement.

Millions upon millions of visitors from the four corners of the globe will again flock to this great city to behold the new Century of Progress.

It will be our privilege, as it was last year, to entertain these visitors in BALABAN & KATZ theaters—recognized the world over for their beauty, for their service and hospitality, and for the standards of entertainment they have set these past 26 years.

BALABAN & KATZ theaters will eclipse their entertainment standards of last year just as the 1934 Century of Progress will surpass last year's triumphs.

We are proud to be part of the World's Fair City; happy that we may contribute to its glory and prestige.

We salute Mayor Kelly, Rufus Dawes, and all the civic leaders whose enterprise and courage have again brought the faith of the nation to Chicago.

abroad again some time this summer, and the sailing date may be July 1 or it may not be until September or October.

If he and his lovely bride do not go abroad immediately they will spend the summer in the Watsons' house, for Miss Watson's family will not be here during the warm months.

The bridegroom's sister, Miss Evelyn Bouscaren, will be the maid of honor and Henri Bouscaren will be his elder brother's best man. There will be other attendants.

The two reasons for having the service as late as five or five-thirty o'clock is because the later hour will not conflict with the hour set by Miss Jane Fortune and Joseph E. Nolan for their wedding in the Holy Name cathedral on the same afternoon, and also it will be cooler towards evening. Miss Fortune and Miss Watson, who made their debuts the same year, have a great many mutual friends who will want to attend both weddings, although the guest list for the Fortune-Nolan nuptials is to be limited considerably, for the wedding is to be very small. Miss Fortune is a daughter of the John L. Fortunes.

Two Engagements Are Announced.

The engagements of two north shore girls are being announced this morning, that of Catherine Alice Klotz of Winnetka and of Margaret Dunham of Evanston. Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Klotz are announcing that of their daughter to Donald Lloyd Williams of Duluth and Minneapolis, and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dunham are making known that of their daughter to Robert Cobb Stockton, son of Mrs. John T. Stockton of Evanston.

Miss Klotz is being graduated on June 18 from the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, where the former Dorothy Klotz and her husband, the Rev. Austin Pardue, reside. Miss Klotz prepared for college at West Hampton, near Richmond, and before that she attended the North Shore Country Day school in Winnetka. Her fiancé, who is in the grain business, is a graduate of the University of Minnesota.

Miss Dunham, who is a member of the Evanston Junior league, was graduated from Roycemore school in Evanston and from Wells college. Mr. Stockton is a graduate of Princeton. Their engagement was made known at a dinner-dance last night at the Evanston Country club.

May Stillwell Arrives Today.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody will be down at the train this morning to meet their niece, Miss May Stillwell, who is arriving to spend a month with them. Miss Stillwell, the daughter of Mrs. Glidden Osborne of England (May Peabody Stillwell), landed in New York early in the week and stopped for a few days with some Paris school friends, but cut her visit there short so that she could be here tonight for Tommy Leiter's dinner and the Streets of Paris party.

Mrs. Peabody is entertaining informally at tea for her niece Monday afternoon from 4 to 6 at the Peabody home, 1525 State parkway, so that some of her mother's old friends can meet Miss Stillwell. Pouring will be Mrs. Peabody's sister-in-law, Mrs. Columbus Healy and Mrs. Vincent Healy, the younger Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin, and Miss Jean O'Brien.

The date of Miss Gwendolyn Bowen's debut has been changed from the 15th to the 22d of September.

The alumnæ of the Starrett School for Girls will celebrate its golden anniversary with a luncheon in the Blackstone hotel today. The members of the present graduating class will be especial guests, as will former faculty members and representatives of the different classes of years past. Mrs. John A. Gardiner is the acting president. Mrs. John J. Jennings is chairman of the reception committee.

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Today's dress is particularly good for women whose figures need slimming lines. The narrow collar and jabot frills give a long bodice line, and the center panel does the same for the skirt. Sheer cottons, wrinkle resistent printed voile, crinkled or plain printed linens, and tub silks are all lovely mediums for a frock of this type.

The pattern, No. 2764, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust measure.

BY MARY MEADE.

Chicago mealmakers must be getting a toehold on their troubles, for today's kitchen clinic is going to look more like a "how" column than like a "why" one. More and funnier recipes seem to be the cry this week, so we'll use for the tipoff a spicy sour cream pie, hungered for by Mrs. O. P. E.

SPICY SOUR CREAM PIE.

1 cup sour cream
2 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup seedless raisins
½ teaspoon each nutmeg and ground cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon salt
Pastry for 1 crust

Combine the sugar, cream, and eggs, stirring until well blended. Add the raisins and flavorings and pour into an unbaked pie shell. Bake in a hot oven [425 degrees Fahrenheit] for 20 minutes. Then reduce the heat to 325 degrees and bake in this moderately slow heat for half an hour more. It is better to let sweet cream sour rapidly in a warm room than use that which has grown old and sour by too long standing in the refrigerator. Or, if you have no cream, but have unsweetened evaporated milk on hand, use one cup of it, undiluted, and sour it by adding gradually [while stirring] 1 tablespoon of vinegar.

And second up to bat comes a question from Miss D. S.: "Just why do nutritionists speak of liver as being so good for one? It's meat, isn't it?"

Yes, liver surely is meat. But it does happen to have certain items in it that are less generously presented in other meats. Iron is the main one. For this reason you hear of liver being used constantly in the prevention and cure of anemia. Besides being rich in the blood-building iron, livers, whether they once resided in a beef, pork, lamb, or veal animal, have plenty of a high grade protein and are each one of them a jolly good source of vitamins. Liver once a week, especially when there are growing children in the family, is a good system to employ.

As for the many years' war between the citizens who wanted calf's liver and those who would just as soon make it hog's liver at a much lower price, I take no side. Pork liver contains, we do know, three times as much iron per serving as is in a serving of any other one food. It has a characteristic flavor which some come to prefer to that of other livers. And keep it in mind: liver soup, baked liver, liver patties, liver dumplings and on and on, should vary the program frequently from the too often presented "fried liver and onions."

Sunday Evening Club Will Close Its Season with Memorial Rites

The Chicago Sunday Evening club will close its 27th season tomorrow night with a patriotic service dedicated to Memorial day. The Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Eliot of Boston, son of Charles W. Eliot, late president of Harvard university, will be the principal speaker.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

Mr. Sims is universally acclaimed the greatest living contract and auction player. He is captain of the renowned "Four Horsemen" team of four and has won twenty national championships since 1924.

RESPONDING TO ONE NO TRUMP.

I am reluctant to use the word "never" in connection with cards, but I am really tempted to use it in connection with grand slams in no trumps when neither partner holds a five card suit. I know of no way to bring to light the remote duplications that can upset a contract apparently certain in view of the ascertained possession of all the aces and kings and even queens. Take some risks for games, take fair chances for small slams—but be as timid as a hare in connection with grand slams when there is no suit to work with.

Allow Some Leeway and Use Judgment.

Should you know your partner to be still clinging to obsolete ideas and bidding weak or dubious no trumpers as dealer or second hand, make some allowance and in your jump responses provide at least a half trick leeway for this risk. Do not be too conservative in trying for games with a partner of this type, since you are gambling only a partial score against a game, but do be cautious in connection with slams when there is no long suit to utilize in the play of the hand.

The Kind of Big Hand That I Am Afraid Of.

If you think that I am absurdly pessimistic about massed aces and kings, let this hand exemplify my point of view:

NORTH.
Sp.—A J x Di.—A J x
Ht.—K Q x Cl.—A Q x x
SOUTH.
Sp.—K Q x Di.—K Q x
Ht.—A J 10 Cl.—K x x x

In the City of Asbury Park trophy last year this hand was gayly bid to seven no trumps against me—but it was just too bad that the clubs in my hand were J 10 9 8, so that the contract was set one trick.

Remote Duplications Are Invisible.

I think the right bidding under our procedure would be one no trump by North, four no trumps, five clubs, five no trumps, six no trumps by North, pass. Had South held two face cards in clubs—K J x x—he could have bid six clubs, and then North could bid seven no trumps, now knowing that no low card trick could be lost. However, it is drawing criticism too fine to blame the players who reached the grand slam on the hands as given above, as with two such evenly distributed hands apparent from the bidding, the peril of a losing trick through failing to break the one suit they might need to play for was not readily apparent. Then, too, it was appallingly bad luck that all the three jacks they held were duplications, and that they missed the only jack they actually needed. I do not say the grand slam should not have been bid. Nevertheless, this hand always comes to my recollection when the bidding is soaring to the slam zone in terms only of no trumps; so I will leave it with you as my final comment on no trump grand slams with short-suited hands.

The Immediate Program.

Tomorrow I will discuss jump raises in no trumps when the partner has opened third or fourth hand. Following this we will look into the response procedure with biddable four card suits; then we will discuss in detail the far more promising hands which have suits of five and more cards to work with in response to an opening no trump bid.

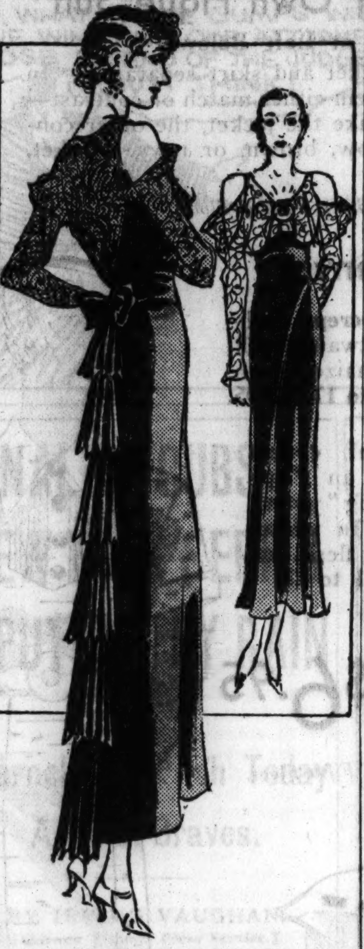
Paris Makes a Fetish of Sheer Summer Blouses



BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Chic is a transparent affair from the waistline upon many of the west afternoon clothes that are coming out in Paris. The long skirted suits women wear have transparent blouses, and lots of separate frocks are given tops, or entire blouses of lace like the Mirande model shown here. This helps women to get through dog days without too much suffering and is dainty and charming.

Mirande leaves the top of the shoulders bare in this stunning frock made of black satin and black lace, and then achieves a mock demureness by making the sleeves below that bare shoulder long and fitted. The bodice has a waist-deep V-shaped yoke of black lace which comes up rather high at the back of the neck. The entire bodice front, above the extra wide girdle is made of black lace over a flesh-pink chiffon foundation. This lace is draped butterfly wing fashion and is attached to the sleeves.

The plain skirt has its interest at the back. A panel of plaited ruffles arranged in six tiers is placed down the center of the back. The lowest ruffle ends below the hem of the skirt.

The wide draped girdle at the waistline ends in a bow at the back.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Roosevelt gave a luncheon today in compliment to the visiting admiral of the British navy, Sir Lewis Bayly. The ranking guest was the British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, dean of the diplomatic corps.

Elliott Roosevelt joined his parents at the White House yesterday unexpectedly to make a short visit.

The British ambassador and Lady Lindsay were entertained at dinner tonight by the Canadian minister and Mrs. Herridge.

Teacher Should Help Child with Sex Problems

But She Must Have Sane Attitude Herself.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

This is the sixth article for teachers on child management in the schoolroom. The dates of the others will be given to those requesting them.

Perhaps one of the most difficult things for the average teacher to deal with in a way truly to help a child is sex problems. This is partly because most human beings are themselves not natural and not informed enough to be wise and detached. And partly because the subject is one toward which the child himself has unnatural and secretive attitudes.

But sex problems provide a teacher with such a marvelous opportunity to help a child, perhaps for his whole life, that she should try to educate herself to deal well with them. If they exist, it probably means that the boy or girl has had no fine, adequate home information and training and may never get it if not through school and teacher.

As we have so often said in discussing this subject for parents, it is most important that the teacher shall not be emotional in talking to the child, shall not magnify the incident which has been brought to her attention, and shall not treat the child or the subject of sex with any suggestion of shame. Blaming and scolding are worse than nothing.

A certain casualness tends to make a child feel that here is something that "nice" grownup people will talk about openly—and it will also make whatever has happened—whether words or acts, seem less important. At the same time, the child must be led to see that while there is such a thing as a natural curiosity which should be gratified, there is also an unwholesome attitude.

Children who have sex problems are best helped by filling their lives with satisfying interests and athletic activities and by simple, straightforward information, imparted at the right time, in the right way.

SOX SCORE 6 IN THIRD; BEAT YANKEES, 7 TO 5

LITTLE WINS; TO PLAY IN BRITISH AMATEUR FINAL

Wallace Beats Out Dunlap, 2 and 1.

Results

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 25. — [Special.] — Following are the result in the quarter-finals and semi-finals of the British amateur golf tournament today:

QUARTER-FINALS.

George T. Dunlap Jr., United States, beat Alex Walker, Scotland, 3 and 1.

W. Lawson Little, United States, beat T. A. Bourn, Scotland, 4 and 2.

James Wallace, Scotland, beat Francis Francis, England, 3 and 2.

Leslie G. Garnett, England, beat John Neal, England, 2 up.

SEMI-FINALS.

Wallace beat Dunlap, 2 and 1.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 25.—W. Lawson Little, long hitting Californian, will meet James Wallace, 30 year old jobless carpenter of Troon, in the final round of the British amateur golf tournament tomorrow over thirty-six holes.

Little survived today after a desperate encounter with Leslie Garnett, the conqueror of Johnny Goodman, United States open champion. Little won, 1 up, on the nineteenth green. Wallace, already having the scalps of four Walker cup players in his bag, today defeated another, George Dunlap, United States amateur champion, 2 and 1. This match was heard rather than seen, for Wallace took with him what seemed to be the entire population of Troon. Troon, represented by Mrs. Andrew Holm, last week won the British women's championship at Porthcawl and the town is hoping to make a double of it.

20,000 Watch Play.

What conditions will be here tomorrow with a Scottish-American final can only be estimated. Nearly 20,000 watched today's matches. There was none of yesterday's unseemly behavior when McLean was shouted out of the tournament by Wallace's partisans. As the figures show Dunlap hardly could have played better—1 under 4s for seventeen holes. But Wallace was 3 under.

In Little's match with Garnett the American was consistently outdriven for the first time since he has been in this country, and he putted badly. Garnett's strength was his nerve and his skill with his putter, which struck the ball with a beautiful click to the back of the cup, and time and again retrieved him from almost impossible situations. His second shots were his weakest.

Little Takes Lead.

They halved the first two holes and Little won the third. He lost the fourth by three-putting. Little won the fifth, where Garnett made an error in using his putter from the rough at the edge of the green. Little held his one hole lead through the sixth, the seventh, where he saved himself by a great pitch, and the eighth.

Garnett squared the match at the ninth by one of the finest shots in the competition—a smash with an iron following a topped drive that sailed along the ridge, held up to a cross wind, and landed on the green.

Little was being hard pressed and frequently rubbed the faces of his irons with billiard chalk. Thus all square, they climbed to the long 10th with Garnett in trouble on one side and Little having difficulty on the other. A half in 6 was a gift to Garnett, for Little played three shots around the cup. They halved the 11th; then Little went 1 up with a great iron from the rough to the 12th green.

All Square at 13th.

Garnett squared the match at the 13th with a long putt and fought the American off until Little crashed his drive 280 yards onto the 16th green and won, 3 to 4.

The 17th was halved. Then came Little's greatest nerve test. Garnett, bunkered from the tee, got out well and sank an 8 yard putt to win in 3 against Little's par 4. They went to the 19th amid a seething crowd. Both were on in two. Little's down hill putt was not quite up, but his experience on the 18th had not shaken him and he got his 4. The green is alongside the railway and Garnett, glancing up, saw a train approaching. Probably he hurried for the first time in the round. The ball slipped past the cup and Little had won.

Just Can't Beat Wallace.

Dunlap was putting beautifully, but Wallace was inspired. At three vital holes, the 11th, 14th, and 17th, Wallace holed out from six, three, and eight yards respectively, all for 3s. Dunlap's round ordinarily would have beaten any one, but Wallace could do nothing wrong. The man from Troon was only once off the course and his judgment of runup shots was remarkable.

Dunlap entered the semi-finals by defeating Alex Walker, Scotland, 3 and 1, in the morning round. Little joined his fellow countryman into the semi-final round by eliminating T. A. Bourn, Scotland, 4 and 2. In the other quarter-final matches Wallace won from Francis Francis, England, 3 and 2, and Garnett defeated John Neal, England, 2 up.

ROSS WALLOPS TWO OPPONENTS IN FINAL DRILL

Leaves Camp for Battle with McLarnin Monday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ferndale, N. Y., May 25.—Barney Ross, Chicago's lightweight champion of all the world, finished his training today here in the Shawangunk foothills of the Catskill mountains, about a hundred miles from New York as a crow would fly over this country of winding roads. Tonight Barney packed his togs and departed for Manhattan, where on Monday evening in the Long Island bowl, property of Madison Square Garden, he will fight Jimmy McLarnin for the welterweight championship.

Victory will make Ross the first man in boxing history to win both the lightweight and welterweight titles. Which is just what Barney wants to do and what every one here believes he will do Among others who hold to this opinion is Benny Leonard, who might have won such honor except for a foul in his battle 15 years ago with Jack Britten, then ruler of the welters.

Barney O. K., Weather Isn't.

Barney's last day in the territory made famous a century ago by Washington Irving's Rip Van Winkle was eminently satisfactory to his trainers, but no selling point for the country. A cold, chill wind swept low clouds of mist and rain through the foothills where Old Rip went ahunting and remained asleep a score of years. Consequently Ross went indoors for his boxing and instead of hundreds of spectators who had jammed Grossinger's health resort to capacity last weekend, a few score walked up the slippery red clay path to the frame house, site of the indoor ring.

Ross' four rounds of boxing today against Phil Rafferty and Al Casimini comprised his last hard workout, according to Art Winch, his trainer.

"Barney didn't know it in advance," Winch said later, "but it was his big shot of the training period. He worked every minute, even in the clinches, and when it was over, Barney hadn't taken a deep breath.

"Yesterday Ross was a bit slow, due probably to his layoff the day before. But his boxing this afternoon was up to what will be required to beat McLarnin," Winch concluded.

Barney Faster, Hits Harder.

We agreed with Winch and with Sam Pian, the front office man of the managerial duo which has taken a Golden Gloves intercity champion of 1929 to the heights of professional boxing. Barney is faster and he is hitting harder than he did last September when he prepared for the defense of his lightweight championship against Tony Canzoneri at the Polo grounds. Today he smothered Rafferty with a left which jabbed him off balance, and repeatedly he followed with a flashing right that smashed his opponent into the ropes.

In addition to four rounds of high speed boxing, Barney went through the customary bag punching and shadow boxing. He had a snap and dash which spelled confidence. Ross seldom indicates worry, as his intimates know. As far as Barney is concerned McLarnin, the nemesis of the lightweights, and particularly Jewish lightweights, might be the veriest palooka who ever drew on leather.

Chef Does His Stuff.

Otto Weinmann, who once was chef for the forgotten Max Schmeling and who cooked for Barney last September, outdid himself in the final camp dinner tonight. His efforts were wasted as far as Barney was concerned, but the camp guests, who include Sergt. Harry O'Connell, Ross' bodyguard; Dr. J. P. O'Connell, Sol Gold, Messrs. Pian and Winch, Mickey [Soldier] Farr, Trainer Issy Kline, and your correspondent, made away with the surplus.

Shortly afterward three automobiles, escorted by New York state police, rolled away through the foothills for New York. Ross and Winch will hide out at the home of a friend, while Pian will front for them at the Park Central hotel.

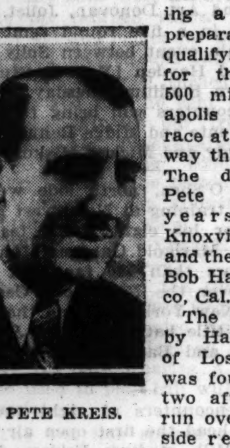
Two Die as Car Crashes in Speed Test

Indianapolis, Ind., May 25.—[Special.]—A driver and his mechanic were killed during a test run preparatory to the qualifying trials for the annual 500 mile Indianapolis automobile race at the Speedway this morning. The driver was Pete Kreis, 34 years old, of Knoxville, Tenn., and the mechanic, Bob Hahn of Chico, Cal.



PETE KREIS.

The car owned by Harry Hartz of Los Angeles, was found cut in two after it had run over the outside retaining wall and struck a tree. Kreis was thrown clear of the car, while the body of Hahn was found jammed in the rear end of the wreckage.

Plunges Over Wall.

According to the stories related by officials, drivers, and mechanics who were on the track when the accident occurred, the car was traveling at great speed as it passed the first turn. Suddenly it appeared out of control. A second later it jumped the retaining wall and struck a tree many feet below.

Although he was a construction engineer by profession, Kreis was rated as one of the outstanding drivers in the race this year, which will be run next Wednesday. He annually took a month's vacation to compete in the event. He had competed in many races in America and abroad.

Death Toll Is 25.

Unofficial records show that Kreis and Hahn were the 24 and 25th persons killed at the Speedway since it was built 23 years ago. Last year five drivers and mechanics drove to their deaths in practice runs and in the race itself. Bob Hurst and Bill Denver were killed in a test run, while Mark Billman, Les Spangler, and G. L. Jordan lost their lives during the running of the race.

William [Shorty] Cantlon and George Bailey, both of Detroit, qualified their cars successfully in the afternoon. Cantlon wheeled his four cylinder, rear drive racer over the 25 mile qualifying distance at the second fastest speed attained this year, an average of 117.875 miles an hour. Bailey drove an amazingly consistent trial, his speed varying only .820 miles an hour over the ten laps. He averaged 111.063 for the distance.

16 Win Right to Race.

The list of qualifiers was brought to sixteen with the addition of Cantlon and Bailey. The starting field is limited to 33.

After averaging 111.091 over the 25 miles, Harry McQuinn of Indianapolis failed to qualify because his car used three more pints of oil than the three gallons to which the racers are limited for the trials. Charley Crawford of Chattanooga, Tenn., also failed in an attempt to qualify, pulling into the pits at the end of the third lap when his speed had dropped to 102.669 miles an hour. An average of at least 100 miles an hour for the 25 miles is required.

The trials will be resumed at noon tomorrow, and continue daily through Monday.

PURPLE HOMER IN 8TH DEFEATS GOPHERS, 3 TO 1

Al Pederson hit a home run with two on in the eighth inning to give Northwestern a 3 to 1 victory over Minnesota at Roycemore field, Evanston, yesterday. Until the eighth Tom Gallivan had surrendered only one hit to the Purple. The teams will meet again today at 2:30 p. m. Score:

Northwestern ....000 000 03*—3 3 2

FINAL OF CUBS' NEW YORK SERIES PUT OFF BY RAIN

Warneke to Pitch Today Against Braves.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 25.—The somewhat dazed Cubs finally got what they've been looking for. Rainy weather gave them a break today so instead of playing the final with the slightly unpopular champion Giants they were accorded 24 hours of leisure in which to shake off the panic which has gripped them for the last week. Part of the leisure time was spent aboard a train bound for Boston where they open tomorrow in the last series of their unprofitable tour.

It was only the Cubs' second postponement of the season. The first was at St. Louis April 20. They had an off day before opening in Chicago April 24. Since then they have been in action every afternoon, including an exhibition at Flint, Mich., while on their way east. With a strenuous program such as that some of the present panic, not to mention the woebegone pitching, can be overlooked. The steady daily toil also took its toll in the shape of injuries and these mishaps more than any one thing have tended to tear down the dashing spirit evident during the first couple weeks of the race.

Grimm Makes Experiments.

In view of the recent happenings which total five defeats in the last six starts, Mr. Charles Grimm, the manager, naturally is more or less in a mental knot. The manager has tried his young men and they have flopped in spots. He has tried his old men, including himself and they too have flopped. There isn't much else to do except to stick to one layout and take the consequences.

Ki Cuyler's various injuries in the last couple of years have taken a lot out of his play. It is not so much a loss of ability as a loss of confidence. His fielding yesterday was an indication of this. Twice he hesitated about coming in for fly balls that went for cheap hits. Even after hesitating he could have caught them by throwing himself toward the ball. Diving to make catches is how many outfielders compensate for lack of speed. Cuyler also shows timidity running the bases. It probably is this same lack of confidence that hurts him as a cleanup hitter with men on the bases.

Stainback Lacks Experience.

Whether Tuck Stainback can be kept in the outfield regularly is still a question. He has done a lot of things backward which explains why he has been benched repeatedly only to be returned to action in a few days. He is only an inexperienced kid and this shows in his fielding.

He isn't half as good on fly balls as was claimed by his Coast league press agents. He'll overcome these deficiencies by playing regularly but nobody knows yet how well he'll hit. If Tuck doesn't hit there is only one thing to do and that's to put Riggs Stephenson back in left. Stevie can hit but his arm is weak and he's slow afoot.

Until Billy Herman recovers from his seriously sprained ankle there isn't much Grimm can do about strengthening second base. Augie Galan has been erratic although supposed to be an excellent fielder. His throwing from second to first is as bad as the crazy throws he made from third to first. He's also weak in pivoting on a double play. Two of the recent defeats were caused by this one item. He has shown improvement at bat, however.

Warneke Faces Braves.

The cancellation of today's game which Bill Lee was to start doesn't mean the big rookie is going to open at Boston tomorrow. The job will go to Lonnie Warneke who has been having his troubles lately. The absence of Warneke's one time prized fast ball is considered a temporary matter. The big Arkansan doesn't care to admit it but he lost considerable weight as the result of a severe cold that has weakened him. A beer and raw egg diet is bringing the weight back now and the vanished fast ball should return at the same time.

Gabby Hartnett who has been with the cripples for several days because of a pulled muscle in his chest hopes to be back with the workers tomorrow.

Today's postponed game will be played as part of a doubleheader July 17.

BEATING A FAST BALL TO THE BASE

Jack Saltzgaver of the Yankees slides into first base after Earnshaw, the Sox pitcher, attempted to pick him off the bag with a quick throw to Bonura. A minute or two later Saltzgaver scored following a wild throw by Appling. The episode occurred in the first inning of yesterday's game at Comiskey park, which was won by the White Sox, 7 to 5. Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

PRESIDENT J. LOUIS COMISKEY of the White Sox has gone to his country estate near Eagle River, Wis., to go in training for the next eastern trip of the White Sox. . . . Johnny McCuddy, Mr. Comiskey's chauffeur, isn't saying a word, but it is said he took a sheaf of road maps along to leave around the lodge, trusting to the power of suggestion. . . . Sweet potatoes are the favorite food of Cavalcade and High Quest, the Brookmeade stable stars. . . . Wesley Ramey, Grand Rapids lightweight, has returned from Australia, where he won 15 round bouts from Jimmy Kelso, Australian lightweight champion; Bobby Delaney, Australian welterweight champion, and Tod Morgan, former United States junior lightweight champion. . . . Ramey wants Barney Ross next. . . . The Red Sox, with Wesley Ferrell pitching and Rick Ferrell catching, have what probably will prove the finest brother battery in baseball. . . .

Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Browns, said in the second week of the season while discussing Rollie Hemsley: "He's a good guy and I am going to do no spying if he wants to take a little beer. He tells me if the beer is good he doesn't want the hard stuff." . . . The beer must be good, for Rollie, heretofore a sub .300 hitter, has been leading the majors for days and days. . . . Track fans anticipate a great duel when Ben Eastman of Stanford and Charles Hornbostel of Indiana match strides in the Princeton invitational meet June 16. . . . They are joint holders of the world record for 880 yards. . . . Hornbostel made his under pressure when he beat Glenn Cunningham by a yard, but Eastman's was made in a romp with practically no competition. . . .

Referring to the claim of Cowboy Weston that he originated the system of raising the right hand to denote a strike in baseball, a contributor submits this: "We deaf mutes used hand signs for baseball umpiring as far back as 1899. Strikes on right hand indicated to pitcher "You got that one all right" and balls on left hand signified "You got left that pitch." . . . Maurice Bradley, son of Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Indians, is the regular first baseman for Cornell university. . . . Jack Kearns, a June graduate, has won seven first places of a possible nine this season in diving events with the Loyola of Chicago swimming team. . . . He is only 5 feet 6 inches tall, but has mastered 35 of 50 possible dives. . . .

Tad Wieman had to call on his first, second, and third string full backs to save three successive football games for Michigan in 1928. . . . Joe Gembis defeated Illinois, 3 to 0, with a field goal on Nov. 3. . . . Stan Hozer plunged the length of the field and over for the touchdown that gave Michigan a 6 to 6 tie with the Navy, Nov. 10, and Morris Hughes kicked a goal that gave the team a 3 to 0 victory over Michigan State, Nov. 17. . . . Hughes incidentally did not get a letter. . . . Art Lasky, whom King Levinsky recently sidestepped in Los Angeles, would have been a violinist instead of a prize fighter had he followed his mother's wish. . . .

Aaron Jones, a colored fighter known to old time fans as the Dixie Kid, who whipped Joe Walcott for the welterweight title, died in Los Angeles a couple weeks ago a pauper. . . . No athletic commission funds were available for a decent burial, so donations were solicited from fans of the community. . . . The contributions amounted to only $14, all from white folks. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—More than 276 bike riders were entered in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S third annual race. . . . The Cubs strengthened their hold on first place by defeating the Reds, 6 to 2. . . . The Sox beat Philadelphia, 3 to 2. . . . Fidel La Babra won the national amateur 112 pound title and the right to represent the United States in the Olympic bouts.

Red Sox Get Wes Ferrell from Indians

Cleveland, O., May 25.—[Special.]—Wesley Ferrell, star pitcher of the Cleveland Indians, and Outfielder Dick Porter were traded to the Boston Red Sox today. The Indians received Outfielder Bob Seeds, Pitcher Bob Weiland and an unannounced sum of money in the deal.

The announcement of the trade was made by Billy Evans, general manager of the Indians. He said he had been negotiating with the Red Sox for several days. It was reported that Thomas Yawkey, owner of the Red Sox, gave the Indians $25,000 in addition to the two players.

Ferrell, who, during the 1931 season pitched a no hit game, did not sign with the Indians this season because of salary difficulties. He was suspended, but today Commissioner K. M. Landis notified Evans that the suspension was lifted.

Evans also announced the sale of Harley Boss, first baseman, to the New Orleans club of the Southern association. Boss served as the regular first baseman for the Indians last year. Evans declined to disclose the sale price.

MAROONS BEAT PURDUE, 3 TO 0; NOVAK PITCHES

Pitcher Ed Novak dominated the play as the University of Chicago baseball team defeated Purdue, 3 to 0, yesterday at Greenwood field. Novak held the Boilermakers to eight hits and drove out a home run in the fourth inning.

The game was the fourth conference victory for Chicago, as against five defeats. Purdue finished its season yesterday with a record of four victories and six defeats. Chicago has a chance to finish third in the Big Ten by defeating Wisconsin in the final next Saturday, provided other contests come out the right way. Score:

In the women's singles Joan Hartigan, champion of Australia, put out Josephine Cruichshank, United States Wightman cup player, 1-6, 7-5, 6-3.

WINNING RALLY IS CLIMAXED BY DYKES' HOMER

Six Hits Yielded by George Earnshaw.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

George Earnshaw, spurred on by the squeals of 12,000 beautiful women and the cheers of 3,000 male customers who paid to get in, yesterday was the boss man in the jolly business of licking the New York Yankees, 7 to 5. The triumph gave the White Sox the series, two games to one, and shaved the Yanks' American league lead to one game.

Earnshaw was something besides a good pitcher. In addition to holding the enemy to six hits, he launched a six run third inning with a single and he drove in a comfort run after his battery mate, Eddie Madjeski, had tripled to start the seventh.

Yanks Get a Few Runs.

Earnshaw teased the gals in the sixth by making off like he was all tired out. The Yanks made three runs, and had runners on third and first with one out in the sixth. Then, thinking that the drama had gone far enough, he tightened to get the side out, after which he proceeded to strike out Chapman and Lazzeri in the seventh, Crosetti and Van Atta in the eighth and Saltzgaver in the ninth, to prove he hadn't been tired at all.

The Sox uprising in the third was the ball game, of course. What proved to be the winning run was Manager Jimmy Dykes' fifth home run of the season and his fourth during the present home stand. It was made with two out and was good for two runs, Luke Appling having been on base at the time.

Sixth in Last Nine.

It was the sixth Sox victory in nine games played during the current home stand and established Dykes as better than a .500 manager. The Sox have won eight of the 15 games played under his direction. The setback was the seventh suffered by the league leaders in nine games they have played since their proud departure from the east.

The Yankees had acquired a 2 to 0 lead before the Sox did their stuff in the third inning and the margin would have been greater but for a sweet play by Madjeski. The first run was an unearned affair in the first inning, registered when Appling, confronted with a fifteen foot toss to second to effect the third out, threw the ball into right field. This allowed Saltzgaver to score and resulted in the loading of the bases before Dickey flied to Simmons to clear up the situation.

Byrd Knocks Homer.

In the third inning Byrd knocked a homer with one down and Gehrig was safe on Boken's fumble. Chapman flied to Swanson, but Lazzeri doubled to the left field wall. Gehrig tried to score from first on Tony's swat, but was out at the plate when Madjeski made a leaping catch of Appling's high relay from Simmons. Eddie came down on Gehrig's back and rode him into the plate, tagging him en route.

The big third inning transpired in this manner: Madjeski fouled to Byrd. Then Earnshaw, Swanson, and Haas loaded the bases by knocking successive line singles. Bonura walked, forcing Earnshaw across the plate. Simmons singled to right, scoring Swanson and Haas and putting Bonura on third. Appling forced Simmons, Bonura scoring. Dykes knocked his No. 5 homer into the left field stands, scoring Appling ahead of him. MacFayden then relieved Uhle and Boken flied to Combs.

Earnshaw Jolted in Sixth.

Earnshaw, aided somewhat by Bokens second error, bogged down a bit in the sixth. With one down Lazzeri bounced a single off Dykes' bosom and stopped at second while Dickey was reaching first on Boken's fumble. Crosetti singled to center, scoring Lazzeri after which Rolfe, batting for MacFayden, walked, filling the bases. Combs also walked, forcing Dickey across the plate. Saltzgaver flied to Haas, Crosetti scoring. Byrd fouled to Appling.

The Sox added their seventh run in the seventh inning. Madjeski led off with a triple to right and scored on Earnshaw's line drive to Byrd.

Crack Sprinter Wins Like a Great Horse.

BY FRENCH LANE.

An eyeful of what appears to be one of the great young sprinters in America was offered to the crowd of racegoers who journeyed to Washington Park yesterday. Dartle, from Fred Burton's Everglade stable of Chicago, was the young horse which made such a hit with them. He was not only pleasing to the eye but to a great many pocketbooks as well.

Most everybody in the crowd had backed him, and the result was that he went to the post the shortest priced favorite of the young Washington Park season. After Dartle pulled away from his field in midstretch and galloped past the finish line two lengths in front of all rivals, he paid off at the odds-on quotations of $2.72 to win, $2.24 to place, and $2.14 to show.

Dartle is a brown son of Dodge-On Time, the latter a daughter of High Time, which no doubt was responsible for a great deal of his sensational speed, although Dodge in his day could step with the best of them either at sprinting distances or in route races.

Loses to Ebony Lady.

After a sensational early season campaign last year, Dartle was allowed to take things easy until this spring. This was his fourth start of the season and his third victory. He was beaten two noses by Ebony Lady and Winooka at Churchill Downs a few days ago.

Except for a few seconds when the field was at the head of the home stretch Dartle dominated the running. He was off flying and raced well in front of his rivals until the run down the stretch started. Then Prince Pompey, from the Calumet Farm stable, made his challenge. He rushed up so boldly that within a few strides he was racing head and head with Dartle. The crowd, startled by this move, thought Dartle was ready to give up the tussle.

He had plenty left, however, and when Jocky Cassard gave him his head he pulled on away. The others looked like they might be standing still. Once Dartle got out in front again by two lengths, he was content to go on and win by that margin. He ran the 7 furlongs in 1:26.

Dusky Devil Pays $73.

Sharing the spotlight with the short priced Dartle was an entirely unexpected triumph by the long shot Dusky Devil, which hails from Blue Ridge farm, near Chicago.

When Dusky Devil finally conquered Supreme Sweet a sixteenth of a mile out he had enough left to shake off the final challenge of Repaid. His few backers turned all sorts of flip flops when the mutuel prices were hung out, for they took down $73.58 for each $2 ticket they possessed.

Still another Chicago victory came in the 7 furlong third race when Norman D., from the stable of Albert Sabath, scored easily after running 7 furlongs in exactly the same time made by Dartle. While he won the race, Mr. Sabath, who is president of the Hawthorne track, lost his horse. He was claimed for $1,200 by J. G. Goodman, Chicago.

Later on in the day Goodman claimed another horse. He took Mr. Joe from C. C. Van Meter out of the sixth race for $3,000. There was another claim when J. D. Mikel paid $1,200 to get Night Jasmine, which finished out of the money in the fourth event.

The stewards did not like the race Wirt G. Bowman ran in the closing event in which he finished third back of Leyland and Sambo Brown. As a result they suspended Jocky T. King, who rode Wirt G. Bowman, until they can investigate the race.

NORTH CENTRAL, ILLINOIS NORMAL LEAD QUALIFIERS

Monmouth, Ill., May 25.—[Special.]—North Central college and Illinois Normal led qualifiers in Little 19 track preliminaries today. Each team qualified ten men. Monmouth was third with eight and Carbondale Teachers fourth with seven. Bradley qualified six and Northern Teachers four. Knox. expected to be near the top, qualified only two men.

Baker of Illinois college qualified easily in both dash events, winning his heat of the century in 9.9 seconds and the 220 in 21.9.

Levinsky Says He Is Unable to Pay $947 Judgment

King Levinsky, fistic pride of Maxwell street, and Mrs. Lena Levy, his sister-manager, have been broke for two years, and can't pay a $947.08 judgment, Judge James J. Kelly was told yesterday in a hearing to discover assets Mrs. Levy might have.

The judgment was won by the Lakeside Fish and Oyster company, for goods sold Mrs. Levy and the King when they operated a restaurant. Mrs. Levy denied she gets a large share of the King's purses, and went on:

"I'm only one of three managers, and get 15 per cent. Pete Reilly gets 25 per cent, and Harry Steinman, who does the most work, 10 per cent."

Attorney Sigmund David, for the fish company, asked:

"If Steinman does the work, why does he get only 10 per cent?"

"He's too dumb to ask for more," Lena replied.

She explained that Reilly gets 25 per cent because he's too smart to work for less, and she gets 15 per cent because that's all she wants. Mrs. Levy added that she and the King were leaving for California for another fight, and was asked how much they would get out of that.

"Depends on how many people buy tickets," she replied.

CAPTAIN RED, lucky and well up from the start, saved much ground entering stretch, and racing into a good lead, withstood HEIRESS' bid. Latter, forced back by winner at far turn, lost ground entering stretch, and closing resolutely, was wearing down the winner. LAMP BLACK, a strong factor from the start, bore out entering stretch and faltered slightly in closing stages. ONDOTT, racing wide from the start, followed JACOB'S LADDER out on stretch turn and did not threaten when straightened up. THE BAILIFF, away fast but unable to keep up, failed to respond to pressure. JACOB'S LADDER was racing in front when he ran out badly on stretch turn.

BAY SERVANT, a strong factor from the start, saved ground on the turn, stood pressure and outgamed CHIEF BUNTING in the drive. Latter, given a clever ride and under snug restraint until reaching stretch, held on stubbornly, but was not good enough. PEGGY GAL came up with a rush on the outside after reaching stretch, and was strongest of all in closing stages.

Mitchell. Went to post at 3:13. At post 3 minutes. Start good for all but Beech Tree. Won easily, place driving.

NORMAN D., having the most speed, came away fast entering stretch, was mildly shaken up in final eighth, and had something left. TRY FAIR, away slowly and forced to race wide, bettered his position fast on stretch turn, and withstanding a hard drive, wore down HIGH CLOVER in closing strides. HIGH CLOVER saved ground where possible, could not threaten winner, but held on fairly well.

FAIR BILLOWS, lucky and away fast, came through on inside in stretch and outfinished FLAG TIME in final strides. Latter, forced wide by HYMAN entering stretch, weakened after taking a good lead, yet barely failed to last. SISTER ZOE lost ground throughout and went gamely in the drive.

Time, :23 3-5, :47 3-5, 1:13. Two dollar mutuels paid: Dusky Devil, $73.58 straight, $21.86 place, $6.96 show; Supreme Sweet, $10.60 place, $8.38 show; Repaid, $3.52 show. Winner trained by T. J. Shannon. Went to post at 4:36. At post 3 minutes. Start good. Won easily, place driving.

DUSKY DEVIL, fractious at post but away fast, went to inside approaching the turn, came out, forcing SUPREME SWEET wide in stretch, and pulled away fast in last sixteenth. SUPREME SWEET had good speed, was pulled while being forced wide in stretch, and quit badly in last sixteenth. REPAID, under strong riding from the start, faltered near end.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Time, :24 2-5, :48 2-5, 1:14 4-5, 1:41, 1:55. Two dollar mutuels paid: Star Play, $15.64 straight, $6.26 place, $6.20 show; Militia, $5.74 place, $3.84 show; Sweet Chariot, $3.34 show. Winner trained by E. L. Snyder. Went to post at 5.02. At post ¼ minute. Start good. Won driving, place same.

STAR PLAY followed the pacemaker under restraint to stretch turn where he began to move up outside, drew clear nearing final eighth, and weakened suddenly near close, but lasted. MILITIA, well in hand early and forced to outside for room, steadily improved his position in final three-eighths and was strongest of all at end. SWEET CHARIOT, much used in the pacemaking and saving ground throughout, came again mildly near close.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Winner trained by Jay McNamara. Went to post at 5:24. At post 1 minute. Start good. Won driving, place same.

LEYLAND, going in his best form and sent to front, stood a long drive gamely, and after again getting up in final eighth, weakened but lasted. SAMBO BROWN, well in hand for three-quarters, swerved out under punishment in stretch and was unlucky to lose. WIRT G. BOWMAN saved much ground and failed to rally when strongly urged in final quarter.

CAVALCADE AND HIGH QUEST IN WITHERS STAKE

All-Star Field to Seek Belmont Purse.

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—Ten of the best 3 year olds in training are entered tomorrow afternoon in what looks like the most notable renewal of the historic Withers since the war. Joseph E. Widener, president of the Westchester Racing association, is making plans to accommodate 25,000 at Belmont Park for the fifty-ninth running of the mile stake, which was inaugurated in 1874 at Jerome Park.

The prize will gross about $20,000, but the point which has aroused racing followers is whether or not the Brookmeade stable pair of Cavalcade and High Quest can turn back the biggest challenge thus far to their supremacy in the 3 year old division. So far this season Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's colts have swept all before them, Cavalcade taking the Chesapeake and Kentucky Derby and High Quest the Wood Memorial and the Preakness.

These Are Threats.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's First Minstrel and George D. Widener's Chicstraw are regarded as the most formidable of the eight others opposed to the Brookmeade pair. Cavalcade, which won the Derby on a dry track, is a superior mudder, while High Quest can get along in deep going.

Other racers entered which cannot be overlooked are Joseph E. Widener's Peace Chance and C. V. Whitney's Roustabout.

A deep track would aid Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood, and Alex Gordon's Sir Thomas. Both were disappointments in the Kentucky Derby. Marshall Field's Gentle Knight and Morton L. Schwartz's Identify also are competitors.

Discovery is Missing.

About the only notable 3 year old missing from the withers is Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Discovery, which was second in the Derby and third in the Preakness. He is not eligible, but he won today in the featured race at Belmont in a manner to stamp him as a good horse in sloppy going. Stepping out strongly and surely Discovery won by ten lengths at the end of the seven furlongs. He was 1 to 5 in the betting, the shortest price so far this season.

At the end of the seven furlongs, which was finished in 1:25, the 20 to 1 shot War Letter was second, half a length before Rebel Yell.

Michigan Takes Keen Interest in Beaver Dams

BY BOB BECKER.

Mr. Fisherman, if you are going trout fishing in Michigan this season you may act as an unofficial reporter for the Michigan department of conservation. Plans are under way to secure as much information as possible from anglers about beaver dams in trout streams and the fishing that one gets from waters affected by these obstructions.

J. Clark Salyer is the man in charge of the investigations involving beavers and their activities in trout streams. He is doing the work for the department of conservation and also the Institute for Fisheries Research. Mr. Salyer wants to get as many records as possible of the results of fishing waters behind beaver dams. The questions he hopes will be answered by anglers who fish beaver dam trout streams or pools follow:

1. Date the pool behind the dam was fished.
2. Location of the dam [stream, tonwship, etc.].
3. Age of the dam, if known. This is important, of course.
4. Dams, if any, above the one fished.
5. Number of hours the angler fished.
6. Number of fish caught during that time, including small ones put back. The average size of the fish.
7. Any other data that you consider important and helpful.

The controversy about the effect of beaver dams on trout fishing has been going on for years. Some anglers insist the big barricades erected by the animals to form pools do not hurt the fishing, if they are not too numerous. On the other hand the anti-beaver group is extremely bitter against the beaver colonies because of the way they cut up the stream and prevent trout from moving from one part of the water system to another.

We have seen any number of trout streams in the north country that have been changed by beaver dams. We recall one in northern Michigan with a beaver dam that flooded such a big area that it gave trout many acres of new feeding and breeding water. With no dam above this one, it was our belief this dam improved the fishing in the stream. At any rate, it was voted as a stream improvement by the fishermen who accompanied us on the trip.

On the other hand, we recall another trout stream we fished a few years ago that had five beaver dams in it. At least, we traveled up the stream far enough to count and portage over that many. There wasn't any doubt but what some of these dams acted as prison walls to many fish, keeping them in a small pool of water which could not have been suited for their food habits and spawning.

POLAND'S FIGHT CHAMPIONS OFF FOR HOME TODAY

Party to Sail Tomorrow from Montreal.

The eight amateur boxing champions of Poland, happy in the knowledge that they gave Chicagoland's strongest Golden Gloves squad some of its hardest competition in the fourth annual international bouts at the Stadium Wednesday, will entrain this morning at 12th street station on the first leg of their return trip to Warsaw and Poznan.

The boys yesterday ended their eventful ten day stay in Chicago with a trip which gave them a chance to see what they missed on earlier sight seeing cruises.

The foreign boxers will leave at 10:15 a. m. for Montreal, where they will board the steamer Montcalm for Europe tomorrow morning.

The outdoor boxing show scheduled at White City June 4 has been postponed until June 11. Leo Rodak, one of Chicago's most promising boxers, signed to meet Everett [Young] Rightmeier in the 10 round windup, but the Sioux City featherweight has withheld sending his acceptance. This may cause Promoter Johnny Coulon to substitute George van der Hayden, South Bend, Ind., against Rodak.

Pete Nebo, Key West, Fla., Indian junior welterweight, is scheduled to leave Kansas City, Mo., for Chicago after he goes through with a 10 round tussle with Joey Alcanter there next Friday. . . . Puggy Weinert, Brighton Park welterweight, and Meyer Grace, Indianapolis, Ind., boxed with partners yesterday for their eight round scrap at Midway arena Monday

Lou Terry, St. Louis, Mo., lightweight, and Art Donovan, Joliet, Ill., will meet in a five round semi-final to the main event between Solly Dukelsky and Hayden [Young] Stuhley at Western Stadium Tuesday. Four round encounters will bring together Bob La Monte and Midge Bennett, and King Dowdy and Mickey Misko.

Mickey O'Shea, north side welterweight, is training at Northwest gymnasium for his eight round feature combat at Marigold Gardens Monday. . . . More than 100 fans left last evening over the New York Central lines for New York to attend the welterweight title battle between Jimmy McLarnin and Barney Ross Monday night.

Three encounters at eight rounds each will head the first open air program at Mills stadium Friday. Billy Cepak, promoter, announced yesterday that Solly Dukelsky will fight Walter Jerz in one. Another is to bring together Frank Sigilio and Tommy Corbett. Jackie Sharkey, Minneapolis, and Paul Lee, Indianapolis, probably will clash in the other. Joey Kaufman will meet Mickey Joy for six rounds and Mickey Misko will oppose Chuck Roberts at four rounds. F. M.

Midlothian Club Starts Play in Golf Derby Today

A field of more than 150, which may mount to better than 200 by post time, will go to the barrier today in the 20th running of the Midlothian Country Club Derby, oldest and one of the most popular invitational golf events in the Chicago district. Eighteen holes will be played today and 18 tomorrow. Dave Johnson again is president of the big south side club.

The Chicago Junior Golfers' association, youngest of local golfing organizations, will hold its first event, an honor tournament, today at Chicago Meadows, 5850 South Cicero avenue. The tournament will be at 18 holes of medal play, with each boy being on his honor to score his round correctly. A trophy will be awarded to the winner. The event is open to all boy golfers in the Chicago district between the ages of 14 and 21. An entry fee of 25 cents will be charged all boys who are not regular members of the association, the president of which is Tom Murphy. Contestants may tee off any time from 6 a. m. until noon.

Two exhibition matches are on tomorrow's district schedule. Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr and Tommy Armour of Medinah will resume their rivalry with Horton Smith of Oak Park and Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, at Oak Park. Smith and Cooper won the opener of the series, while they finished all even in their last meeting, when Walsh ran down a great putt on the 18th green.

Bartlett Hills also will stage an exhibition match involving George and Warren Dawson of Glen Oak, John Van Nortwick of Chicago Golf, and C. E. Schatz, Bartlett Hills professional. The admission will be 50 cents, one half of the net proceeds going to the Shriners' Crippled Children hospital of Oak Park.

The short 140 yard fifth hole at Walnut Hills yesterday yielded its second ace of the season. Tom Troy, playing with Frank Winkelman and William Kehoe, was the lucky party. Dan Carlson had holed out of his tee shot on the same hole ten days previously. Executives and officers of the Continental Can company will hold a tournament at Walnut Hills today.

The Illinois professional and amateur championships conducted by the Chicago District Golf association, which will be held at the Illini Country club, Springfield, Ill., the week of June 25, is expected to draw the best field of pros in the history of the event. Among them are Horton Smith of Oak Park, Tommy Armour of Medinah, Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, Jim Foulis of Ruth Lake, Dick Metz of A. D. Lasker's Mill Road course, Bob MacDonald, Jock Hutchinson of Glen View, George Smith of Onwentsia, and Abe Espinosa of Chicago.

The pros will meet June 25 and 26, with the amateurs opening play on the 27th. Don Armstrong of Aurora, winner last year, will defend his title. The entry fee is $5, and should be sent to the Chicago District Golf association, 14 East Jackson boulevard.

Mrs. Lester T. Boe, chairman of the tournament committee of the women's club of the Techny Fields daily fee course, expects to be able to post, by tomorrow, the handicaps for a series of match play events which will start Memorial day. The trophy will be a special cup donated by Mrs. Mae Fullerton, new president of the club. Mrs. Fullerton also is seeking the assistance of various daily fee professionals throughout the district in arranging a series of mixed foursomes which she hopes to start about June 15. Contenders in these tournaments now are pupils in the regular morning classes of instruction conducted by Jock Anderson, Techny Fields' professional.

The Knights of Columbus Golf league has completed plans to hold the seventh annual K. of C. state tourney at Olympia Fields, Aug. 15. More than 500 members are expected to tee off. The tournament is sponsored by the K. of C. state athletic commission, headed by Thomas D. Griffin.

Hundreds Join Tribune's Golf School 1st Day

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

That first call for pupils in THE TRIBUNE'S second annual free golf school, as announced yesterday, apparently was all that the embryo divot diggers of the Chicago district needed. For weeks those who either took part in last year's school or who were interested in joining up this year have been asking professionals and managers of the eighteen member courses of the Chicagoland Daily Fee Golf association, sponsor of the project, when the school would start.

The eager ones got their answer with the publication of the coupon, which will appear in THE TRIBUNE until June 4, when the first general lesson will be given at all of the 18 courses. Becoming a pupil in the school is a simple matter. Select the course most convenient to you for taking lessons, check it on the coupon, and send it to the Golf Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, with your name, address, and age. The next step then is to appear at the course at which you plan to take your lessons on the evening of June 4. Bring a driver. If you don't own one, borrow one.

Coupons Pour in by Hundreds.

Hundreds of coupons, filled out by men, women, boys, and girls who wish to take advantage of the five free lessons, were pouring into THE TRIBUNE mail cage last night.

First to reach THE TRIBUNE office were the names of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo V. Smith of Wilmette, each 55 years old, who will take part in the couples' class, the new division of the school this year, introduced for the benefit of husbands and wives who were unable to take the lessons together last year. The Smiths were followed by Helen Bauer, 1929 Chase avenue, and Mildred Mayer, 2520 Farwell avenue. All of them registered at Elmgate, one of the north side courses. Ben Diamond, 3049 West 55th street, and James Jansky, 5705 South Paulina street, then came along, both signing up for Evergreen. Mid-City drew its first pupil in Carl E. Engstrom, 2242 Farragut avenue.

Five Lessons Besides Opener.

The plan of the school itself is as simple as joining it. The course consists of five lessons, in addition to the general educational meeting on June 4. The first class for men will be given on Tuesday, June 5; for women on Wednesday, June 6; for couples on Thursday, June 7, and for juniors, including all boys and girls less than 18 years old, on Friday, June 8. A number of the outlying courses, which will be announced later, plan to give Sunday lessons for all classes, commencing with June 10. The lessons will continue in this sequence for the duration of the class, Tuesdays for men, Wednesday for women, Thursdays for couples, and Friday for juniors.

Simplicity is also the keynote of the actual lessons. No effort will be made by the professionals in charge to make George Dunlaps or Virginia Van Wies out of their pupils. Fundamentals such as grip, stance, pivot, and the variations of the swing will be stressed.

Play 18 Hole Tournament.

At the conclusion of the regular lessons the professionals or brother pros upon whom they may call will choose their best pupils in each of the four classes. These then will meet in a final form competition at a course to be chosen later. The same number will then have a chance to prove their teachers' instructions in an 18 hole medal play tournament for all classes at a Daily Fee association course to be named later.

Prizes will be awarded to all winners by both THE TRIBUNE and the Daily Fee association. These range from golf clubs, bags, and balls to playing memberships at various courses in the association and silver trophies.

I wish to enroll in the

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: Lonsdale Green's recent 'Way Back When of the 1876 Chicago White Stockings brings up a subject which we "borrowed timers" love to recall. I well remember Al Spalding's straight arm pitching and the old team which was moved from 23d and Dearborn to the then new Lake Front park by President William Hulbert.

Jim White, catcher, was originator of the practice of gyping the batter on pseudo foul tips. In those days the catcher wore no protective paraphernalia and stood back taking the ball on the bound, except on third strike. Jim, with a powerful finger snap of his bare hand often tricked the umpire into calling the batter out on a supposed foul tip.

It was in 1878 they started playing on the lake front at Randolph street. I was office boy in the freight claim department of the C. B. & Q., whose offices were in the old Dole building, northeast corner Michigan and Randolph. Our third floor commanded a broadside view of the field. There was a little door on the east border for convenience of the right fielder because so many balls were hit over the fence into the railroad yards. The fielder went out and looked for the ball while the good natured fans waited.

As office boy, I turned into bookmaker and took 10 cent bets on the innings. Finally our freight claim agent, E. E. Fayerweather, called a halt by ordering window shades pulled up from the bottom instead of down from the top, allowing light but shutting off the view.

Chas. E. Graham.

I, too, attended the Clarke school, of which Helper Fred Ebersold writes, from 1873-'76. I also remember the Goodwillies who lived on Lytle street near the late Charles A. Comiskey, who used to play ball with us on the prairie.

The bus line spoken of ran from the south end of Clark street bridge to 12th street, then west to Center, now Racine avenue. There was quite a body of water at about Hoyne and 14th, then known as Mitchell street. Hunters found jacksnipe and wild pigeons there.

At the time of the big fire of 1871 we lived on Polk near Blue Island. Our Dore school, still in use on Harrison near Halsted, was used to shelter the homeless and we were shifted to the Skinner school at Jackson and Aberdeen.

Looting at this time was common, despite martial law. Two men were caught firing a packing house on Morgan, just north of Harrison. I saw them hanging from a lamp post on the corner as a warning to others on my way to school.

Richard W. Glasebrook.

I'm not afraid of the big bad wolf,
But I'm scared to death of a bunny!"

JOHNNY KINDER CARDS 67 ROUND IN RAINSTORM

Westfield, N. J., May 25.—(AP)—A 67 made during a rain storm by Johnny Kinder, 24 year old professional, and a 72 by the veteran Walter Hagen, featured the second round of the Metropolitan open golf tournament at the Echo Lake Country club today. Kinder equaled the course record, established by Wiffy Cox yesterday.

Hagen's 72, coupled with his 70 yesterday, put him a tie with Cox for the lead at the end of the first 36 holes of play, with a score of 142. Cox's performance in the first round was marred by a mediocre 75 today. The 67 of Kinder put the New Jersey youngster in third place with 144.

GAMES TODAY.

Senn vs. Lane Tech, Logan Square park, 3 p. m.
Lindblom vs. Phillips, Normal park, 1 p. m.
Bowen vs. Parker, Normal park, 3 p. m.
Harrison vs. Farragut, Sparta stadium, 3 p. m.

The second set of games in the round robin series for the Chicago Public High School league baseball championship will be played this afternoon. Champions in each of the four sections are pitted against the runners-up in today's contests. The final games in the series, from which will emerge the four semi-finalists, will be played next Tuesday afternoon.

Lane, Harrison Unbeaten.

Harrison Tech and Lane Tech still are undefeated in league competition and will be seeking their 12th consecutive victories. Harrison, champion of the west section, will meet Farragut at Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, and Lane Tech, defending league champion and holder of the north division title, encounters Senn at Logan Square park, Kedzie and Elston avenues.

Lindblom will oppose Phillips in part of a double header at Normal park, 61st street and Racine avenue. Lindblom holds the central section championship. In the other game Bowen will play Parker. The Lindblom-Phillips contest will start at 1 o'clock.

Pitches No Hit Game.

Lane Tech, Harrison Tech, Lindblom, and Phillips were victors in the opening round of games last Tuesday. Lindblom scored the most impressive victory and is favored against Phillips today. Lindblom won when Joe Marich pitched a no hit, no run game against Parker.

Poles to Try for Places on Track Squad

Men and women of Polish birth or extraction from all sections of the United States will compete in the trials for the Polish-American track and field team at Soldiers' field June 10. The winners will go to Warsaw to enter the Polish championship meet which is scheduled for Aug. 6.

The tryouts will be held in conjunction with the 33d annual Central A. A. U. outdoor meet. The trials, sponsored by the Polish Allied Organizations of Chicago, are expected to attract the leading Polish athletes in the country.

Nineteen events will be run off in the A. A. U. competition. They include the 1,600 meters relay, which will be held for the first time outdoors; 200 meters, 110 meter high hurdles, 1,500 meters, 200 meter low hurdles, 400 meter hurdles, 800 meter run, 10,000 meter run, pole vault, running high jump, running broad jump, 16 pound hammer throw, 16 pound shot put, discus throw, javelin throw, and the running hop, step and jump.

The Polish tryouts for men will consist of 15 events. Nine are scheduled in the women's competition.

YORK WINS WEST SUBURBAN TRACK AND FIELD TITLE

York High school, Elmhurst, won the 11th annual track and field championship of the West Suburban league yesterday at La Grange, scoring 40 points, one-half point more than Glenbard. Maine was third, with 30½, and La Grange was fourth, counting 21½ points.

Records were broken or tied by the following boys: Jack Risley of Maine won the 100 yard and 220 yard events; Charles Reisenstein of Glenbard won the javelin and discus; Bob McLeod of Glenbard took the 120 yard high hurdles and the 220 yard low hurdles.

White Sox Rely on Phil Gallivan Against Senators

Phil Gallivan will pitch the White Sox opener against the Washington Senators this afternoon. He will be in quest of his first victory of the season.

Ed Durham, Sox pitcher, has surrendered to his many aches and pains and has asked to be placed on the voluntary retired list. The Sox will use the roster vacancy to try out one Monte Stratton, who has been doing relief work for the Galveston club of the Texas league.

Babe Ruth was out of the Yankee lineup yesterday, suffering from a wrenched back. The accident happened while the big fellow was chasing Jimmy Dykes' triple in Thursday's game.

Zeke Bonura drove in his 32d run without the aid of his bat. In the third inning he walked with the bases full, "driving in" Earnshaw with the Sox first run of the game.

Indiana Track Team Bids for 3d State Title

Lafayette, Ind., May 25.—[Special.]—Records are expected to fly in the Ross-Ade stadium at Purdue university tomorrow afternoon as Indiana's track squad, depending on the individual brilliance of athletes who won seven first places in the Big Ten meet, makes its bid for its third consecutive Indiana intercollegiate track and field title. Notre Dame and Purdue, both with outstanding performers, will be the main challengers to Crimson superiority, and are expected to fight it out for the runnerup position.

Ten Schools Compete.

Marks that will better those registered in the Big Ten meet are expected in a number of events, as 152 athletes from 10 Hoosier schools compete for team and individual honors.

The greatest field, from the standpoint of national prominence, that ever has competed in a state meet assures a brand of competition capable of forcing new records in at least six events. Among the nationally known stars are Ivan Fuqua, 220 yard and 440 yard dash champion, and Charles Hornbostel, half mile and mile star, Indiana's pair of co-captains; Duane Purvis, Purdue's national collegiate javelin throw champion; Don Elser, Notre Dame shot putter; Ray Sears, Butler's national two mile champion; Capt. Charles Popejoy, Purdue, Big Ten two mile titleholder; Wes Busbee, Indiana, Big Ten discus champion; Kenneth Sandbach, Purdue, Big Ten high hurdle winner; Vincent Murphy, Notre Dame high jumper; Steve Divich, Indiana, Big Ten pole vault victor, and George Meagher, Notre Dame broad jumper.

Stars Must Step Fast.

Keen competition will force the stars to their best efforts in practically every event. In the quarter mile Fuqua will be pushed by McQueen, Purdue; Bernard, Notre Dame, and Fribley, De Pauw, all of whom have marks under 50 seconds. Hornbostel, although the class in the half mile, should be extended by Roberts, Notre Dame, and Crossman and Moore, Purdue.

One of the greatest races of the meet is expected in the mile, where Hornbostel will meet Sears, Popejoy, and Young, the Notre Dame leader.

Manush Breaks Hemsley's Mask; Hornsby to Bill Him

St. Louis, Mo., May 25.—(AP)—Heinie Manush, Washington outfielder, is due to be more unhappy than he was when he ended yesterday's game with the Browns by popping out. Manush slammed his bat down on Catcher Rollie Hemsley's mask, breaking it. Today Manager Rogers Hornsby of the Browns said he would send Manush a bill for $10, the cost of the mask.

Four Big Ten Track Teams Clash Today

Four Big Ten track teams will wind up the conference season this afternoon at Stagg field at the 11th running of the quadrangular outdoor meet among Chicago, Northwestern, Ohio State, and Wisconsin. The meet begins at 3 o'clock and no admission fee will be charged.

Ohio Looks Good.

Northwestern's squad finished in fourth place, ahead of the other three in the Big Ten meet at Dyche stadium last Saturday, but Ohio State is given a slight edge in today's affair. Ohio and Wisconsin were tied with Iowa for fifth in the conference meet, while Chicago finished ninth.

One of the best events this afternoon should be the 880 yard race between Capt. Bill Bloor, Ohio State, and Jack Fleming, Northwestern's star sophomore. Bloor and Fleming finished in that order on the heels of Charley Hornsbostel, Indiana, last Saturday. Today's race may crack the meet record at 1:55.9, made by Dale Letts, Chicago, in 1930. Bloor ran 1:54 last Saturday.

Berwanger in 8 Events.

Jay Berwanger, Chicago, and Ollie Duggins, Northwestern, also have an argument to renew. Duggins and Berwanger ran one-two in the Big Ten low hurdles, and the pair tied for third in the broad jump with leaps of 22 feet 11¼ inches. Berwanger also is entered in six other events.

Raymond Ickes, Chicago, son of the secretary of the interior, is entered in the mile and two mile races. If he runs it will be the fourth sport in which he has competed for the Maroons this year, the others being polo, swimming, and wrestling.

LAKE FOREST AND NORTH CENTRAL TO MEET TODAY

Lake Forest and North Central will play at Lake Forest this afternoon in the last game of the season for each team. North Central won the first of the series, and if Lake Forest wins today the two teams will tie for the Little 19 championship. Fred Drakeman and Sam Parsons, veteran Lake Forest battery, will play their last college game.

Indiana Rallies in 10th to Beat Michigan State

East Lansing, Mich., May 25.—(AP)—Indiana university went on a hitting spree in the tenth inning today to defeat Michigan State, 5 to 2. Score:

HARVARD LEADS QUALIFIERS FOR 4-A TRACK MEET

California, Stanford and Yale Appear Strong.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 25.—(AP)—Favorites skidded and tumbled with such regularity today at Franklin field during the qualifying trials of the 58th intercollegiate A. A. A. A. track and field meet that this ancient athletic carnival, which figured to find Stanford battling Yale for honors, developed into a four cornered struggle for the team trophy in tomorrow's finals.

Battle lines still were sharply drawn, however, for an east-west conflict. The University of California's stars swept into a contending position with Stanford, and Harvard, with a surprising, all around show of strength, joined Yale for the east's best stand since the Elis scored the last eastern triumph in 1924.

Harvard Leads Field.

Harvard led the field in today's preliminaries, designed to trim the entries to eleven of fifteen championship events by collecting ten places, including three of six qualifiers in the discus throw.

Stanford won eight places, while Yale qualified seven, and California six, the same number posted for New York university and Princeton. Pennsylvania collected five, while Cornell qualified four, along with Pittsburgh and Dartmouth. The ninety qualifiers were scattered among twenty-seven colleges, including William and Mary with three and Michigan State with two.

Lyman, Dunn Qualify.

The seven man squad from Stanford performed as expected in the weight events, with John Lyman and Gordon Dunn qualifying 1-2 in the shotput, and Dunn getting the pace for the discus throwers. Stanford adherents were shocked when Sam Klopstock, sophomore hurdler, fell in the 110 meter hurdles.

California's stock jumped as a result of the sensational performances of Dick Coe, who qualified easily in both hurdle events. Bob Kiesel, in breezing through his trials, justified predictions he will win both the 100 meter and 200 meter events. Bob Clark put himself far in front in the broad jump field with a leap of 24 feet 6¼ inches.

Place Three in Discus.

Harvard placed men in seven events, including Dick Hayes in both hurdles, and John Dean, the football star, in the shotput as well as the discus. The most impressive Harvard showing was the placing of three men—Healey, Millard, and Dean—in the discus.

Bill Bonthron, Princeton star, was content to run the 800 meters in 2 minutes in his only race today. He will seek his second straight double by running in the 1,500, in which Gene Venzke, Pennsylvania, is his outstanding rival.

RAIN POSTPONES DAVIS CUP PLAY; DOUBLES TODAY

Wilmington, Del., May 25.—[Special.]—Rain today forced the postponement of the doubles contest in the United States-Canada Davis cup match for the American zone championship. The cup committee announced that the match will be played tomorrow.

The United States swept the opening matches yesterday when Frank Shields and Lester Stoefen scored easy victories over Walter Martin and Marcel Rainville, Canada's star singles players.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 25.—Trading in listed bonds became more active yesterday and prices showed moderate recoveries in all groups except the foreign division. A factor which contributed to the better tone was the understanding which gained ground in Wall street, apparently with the approval of authoritative circles, that the treasury would not offer any large financing for at least six months.

This opinion disposed of various vague rumors of impending huge refunding operations which had been heard recently. The new understanding is that no financing over $1,000,000,000 is likely before late this year at the earliest. The action of the treasury in omitting any offering of discount bills this week further emphasized the comfortable cash position of the government.

Government Loans Higher.

Government issues listed on the stock exchange were higher with few exceptions. The gains ranged from 1-32 point to 8-32 point and dealings amounted to $4,925,000, compared with $1,972,600 on Thursday. Transactions in all classes of bonds amounted to $12,106,000, against $9,703,600 on Thursday.

Trading in Home Owners' Loan corporation 4s was unusually active and the issue closed with a net gain of 8-32 point at 101 15-32, which was the high for the day and new high since listing. The Home Owners' Loan 3s, while less active, were also 3-32 higher at 100 21-32. Federal Farm Mortgage 3¼s gained 5-32 point at 101 24-32.

Rails and Utilities Lead.

Many of the better grade railroad and utility issues sold up to or near their previous highs for the year. Gains of 1 to 3 points were recorded in some bonds of the Michigan Central, Louisville and Nashville, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, and Nickel Plate.

Second grade bonds showed no definite trend and the turnover in this class was small.

The foreign list was inclined to be soft, although German issues were stronger on the whole than they have been recently.

Hupp Motor Car.

Investors' Guide: Will you please send information regarding Hupp?—Mrs. Q. M. J.

Answer: Hupp Motor Car corporation is one of the smaller units in the automobile manufacturing industry. It produces medium priced cars. Both sales and earnings during recent years reflect the shift in demand toward cars in the low priced field. To counteract that Hupp lowered its base price to $795.

Early in 1932 production and assembly of models were concentrated in its Detroit plant in order to cut expenses. The Cleveland plant is used exclusively for body manufacturing.

Inability to obtain bodies as the result of strikes during the first quarter of 1934 held production under 900 cars. As a result sales were $712,000, less than half of sales of $1,576,000 for the first quarter of 1933. Net loss was $743,000, against loss of $523,000 for the three months to March 31, 1933. April production, however, is estimated at 1,200 cars, and May production, for which orders were on hand May 1, was scheduled at 2,500 cars, the limit of present tooling capacity.

The company shipped 7,316 cars in 1933, against 10,000 (approximate) in 1932, 17,396 in 1931, 23,177 (approximate) in 1930, and 50,577 in 1929. The four year record of earnings follows:

	Net sales.	Net loss.	Loss per share.
1933	$ 6,119,000	$1,778,000	$1.34
1932	8,751,000	4,515,000	3.40
1931	*	4,249,000	3.19
1930	23,445,000	923,000	.64

*Not reported.

Earnings in the previous eight years ranged from $1.77 to $8.12 per share.

On March 31, 1934, current assets were $4,708,000 and current liabilities were $1,283,000. Cash assets were $2,250,000. Working capital was $3,425,000, against $5,823,000 the year before. Profit and loss deficit was $507,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists solely of 1,329,129 shares of $10 par capital stock, on which nothing has been paid since Aug. 1, 1930. The stock is a speculation.

Optional Maturity.

Investors' Guide: Please explain the figures, "May and November, 1931-'41," appearing after the federal land bank bonds.—A. C.

Answer: The figures mean that the bond matures in 1941, but can be called by the issuer in 1931, or at any interest date thereafter at par and accrued interest.

TRADE SHAKING OFF LETHARGY, REVIEW ASSERTS

Dun & Bradstreet Report Gains in Last Week.

New York, May 25.—"Following the almost static condition of a week earlier, more signs of life are appearing in trade movements," says Dun & Bradstreet's weekly trade review. Wholesale and retail activity has expanded again, the review noted, with demand stronger in nearly all lines.

"Although fluctuations are more outstanding than a definite trend, the advantage still is on the upside, despite minor dips," the review continues. "The confusion arising from a number of developments appears to be fostering an attitude of pause to get bearings before making a fresh start. Everything is in readiness for a vigorous lunge forward as genuine and lasting recovery is being brought nearer than at any time in the last year.

Backward Step Not Expected.

"There has been no major recession since the new order of things started in March, 1933, and a backward step now seems beyond the realm of probability, in view of the acknowledged intention of the administration to offer substantial succor should the lag in business extend beyond a temporary period.

"With summer crowding out spring on many days of the week, distribution had difficulty in obtaining any strong momentum in either direction, but the volume of goods moved was larger than a week earlier, reports from all parts of the country placing average retail sales thus far in May at 8 to 20 per cent in excess of the corresponding figures of 1933. This was achieved in spite of the upward trend at that time, when merchandise was being accumulated in advance of rising prices.

Drouth Areas Less Active.

"Exception is made of those drouth-stricken areas, where trade has failed to be revived by the light showers, as devastation has been too widespread to permit any early betterment.

"General industrial operations, although maintained at a level 40 per cent higher than a year ago, have been prevented from advancing by seasonal recessions in many divisions and the inauguration of enforced production curtailment in a number of factories. Employment during the summer is expected to hold at the current level, which is the highest since 1930, despite the gathering of foreboding clouds of labor unrest."

FRENCH FLOUR MILLS CLOSE DOWN DUE TO BIG STOCKS ON HAND

PARIS, May 25.—(AP)—The huge flour mills at Corbeil, the greatest in France, were closed today with numerous others throughout the country. It is understood here that all the mills have enormous stocks of flour on hand, so that French farmers will have difficulty in selling the 1934 crop.

Decision of the mill owners to close was said to have brought to a head a French wheat problem having twofold significance—the international repercussions of any steps taken to deal with the local situation, and the vital problem of differences between internal and world price levels. A French wheat expert said such countries as Canada and Argentina should give up all hope of resuming wheat exports to France.

Since stabilization of the franc the internal price level of wheat has remained about the same as that of 1927, because as world prices sank French producers were protected by an increase in the tarif designed to keep foreign competitors off the domestic market. The wheat tarif was increased from 35 francs for each 200 pounds to 80 francs, or about $1.35 a bushel.

Despite the fact that at this level the tarif was almost twice that of the world market, foreign wheat sold in France at prices cheaper than the domestic product. Meanwhile, the protection, it was explained, induced farmers to sow a constantly increasing acreage. The average consumption of wheat in France is about 341,000,000 bushels a year, and the 1934 crop carryover is estimated by reliable authorities at 238,333,326 bushels.

MEXICO TO PAY U. S. CLAIMS DUE TO REVOLUTIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—A convention with Mexico arranging for the payment of about $411,000,000 in "special claims" to our nationals was reported favorably today by the senate foreign relations committee.

The action was taken after Ambassador Daniels had explained to the committee the details of the convention, which deals with claims growing out of Mexico's successive revolutions. It was signed in Mexico City April 24.

The "special claims" convention provides for the payment to our government of $500,000 annually in United States dollars, beginning next January. Interest of ¼ of 1 per cent on the remainder will be paid, beginning on that date, and increasing at the rate of ¼ of 1 per cent annually until the rate reaches 1 per cent, which will be paid as interest after Jan. 1, 1939.

NEW STRUCTURE IS PLANNED FOR NEAR NORTH SIDE

Murray Wolbach Sells Michigan-Grand Corner

BY AL CHASE.

Another good sized building improvement is scheduled for the near north side, probably within the next twelve months, as a result of Murray Wolbach yesterday selling the northeast corner of North Michigan avenue and East Grand avenue to an eastern financial concern for $711,500 cash.

Title was taken to the property by James G. Manchester of Scarsdale, N. Y., who represents the real buyer. It is known that the purchaser is a large eastern financial organization which has offices in Chicago.

New Building Planned.

According to Mr. Wolbach, the new owner contemplates erecting an office building of moderate height within the next year. The owner will enlarge the Chicago office staf, bringing out additional employés from New York, and will occupy several floors of the new structure. The remainder of the building will be rented.

Mr. Wolbach, who is one of the owners of the Michigan Square building and other near north side properties, began assembling the property just sold in 1913. It now fronts 128 feet on Michigan avenue and 150 feet on East Grand avenue.

Regarded as Large Deal.

Yesterday's purchase is one of the largest real estate cash transactions in many months, and is significant because of the rëentry of eastern capital into the local realty field on a large scale. The price disclosed on the deed establishes a front foot value of $5,558 on Michigan avenue and $4,743 on Grand avenue. There were no brokers in the deal, Mr. Wolbach representing himself. Leo Wormser was attorney.

The corner fronting 100 feet on Michigan and 75 feet on Grand is vacant. The north 28 feet on Michigan is improved with an old four story building which is completely rented. The east 75 feet on Grand avenue is occupied with old improvements.

HIDE FUTURES.

Hide futures closed 5 to 30 points higher in New York yesterday. Sales were 69 lots or 2,760,000 pounds. Closing bids—old contracts—June, 8.70c; September, 9.40c; December, 9.70c; March, 10.05c; standard contracts, September, 9.75c; December, 9.90c; March, 10.20c.

GRAINS SOAR ON DROUTH, RELIEF BUYING BY U. S.

Prices Highest Since Early in February.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Continued drouth over the American and Canadian northwest and expectations that government relief operations in the dry areas would result in the purchase of millions of bushels of feed grains swept the grain markets up yesterday to the highest levels in nearly four months. Not since early in February have present prices for wheat, corn, and oats been reached, and the strength was accompanied by a marked broadening in speculative trading.

Neither government nor other relief interests would confirm or deny the report widely circulated on Thursday that large purchases of corn futures by the Farmers National Grain corporation had been a reflection of relief operations, but those who should be in a position to know claimed there was little doubt as to the authenticity of the report.

Wheat Rises 3¼ Cents.

Wheat soared rapidly after a slow start and at the extreme showed an advance of 3⅛ to 3¼ cents over Thursday's finish, with the July touching 92⅛ cents. Profit taking was liberal on the upturn but only a minor recession followed, the close being at gains of 2¾ to 3⅛ cents.

Corn advanced 1 to 1⅜ cents for the day, although there was an absence of the buying by the coöperative which had been such a feature on Wednesday and Thursday. No. 2 yellow cash corn sold at 54½ cents per bushel in car lots and No. 2 white at 59¾ cents, both being new highs for the season. July finished at 54⅛ to 54¼ cents. Oats ran up 1¼ to 1⅝ cents on the broadest buying witnessed in weeks, July closing at 37⅛ to 37⅝ cents. Rye gained 1½ to 1¾ cents and barley ½ to 1⅛ cents.

Minneapolis Leads Upturn.

Minneapolis wheat led the advance and at one time was more than 4 cents above the close of the previous day. Prices at the close were 2¾ to 3⅜ cents higher. Winnipeg developed independent strength early and closed 2⅞ to 3 cents higher. Reports of dry weather and of the grasshopper situation becoming bad in the prairie provinces stimulated buying.

While there was no official confirmation of the amounts of grain bought by the government for relief purposes the aggregate was said by a man in close touch with government operations to run into millions of bushels, and it was strongly intimated present prospects are that many more millions of bushels will be bought during the next twelve months. Corn and oats are especially necessary for relief operations in the four northwestern states, particularly in the Dakotas, and considerable barley is also being bought. It is understood the relief operations must be continued until farmers can raise sufficient grain to supply their food and feed needs.

Relief Operations in Northwest.

Relief operations in the northwest, it is said, have been under way by the government for the last four or five months. Included in the purchases was some wheat taken to help smaller interior mills. Confirmation was secured yesterday from Minneapolis that 500,000 bushels of oats had been bought in that market on Thursday for shipment into the drouth areas.

It is expected the 4,000,000 bushels or more of corn futures bought by the coöperatives in the last few days will be exchanged for cash grain when the latter is needed for relief purposes.

No relief from the drouth in the west and northwest was indicated by the official weather forecast and there was no rain of consequence over night on either side of the international line, while temperatures were much higher. A flood of unfavorable crop comments came from a wide area, with considerable attention paid to the rapid increase in the reports regarding activities of chinch bugs and grasshoppers.

Sears' Sales in May 30.6% Over Year Ago

Sears, Roebuck & Co. yesterday reported that sales in its fourth period ended May 21 ran 30.6 per cent ahead of the corresponding period last year. At the same time a statement issued from the office of Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of the mail order and chain store house, said that the business of the company indicated that there has been no material letup in consumer buying as has been indicated from other sources.

Sales for the 4 week period ended May 21 amounted to $27,485,073 against $21,050,502 in the corresponding period last year, an increase of $6,434,571.

Year's Gain 35 Per Cent.

The May period volume lifted the aggregate business so far this year to $93,974,595, which compares with $69,612,587 in the same months last year. This represents a gain of $24,362,008, or 35 per cent.

The May period sales were 17.8 per cent above volume in the same period of 1932, but 9.6 per cent below 1931.

The company's statement said, "Our own experience does not bear out the opinion that there is any marked recession in consumer buying. Goods are moving into their hands at a higher rate than at any similar period since 1931.

"If consideration would be given to the difference in the price level of 1931 compared with the one of 1934 it could be safely said that merchandise is moving about the same as it was during the same period of 1931."

National Tea Sales Off.

Operating fewer stores the National Tea company grocery chain had sales loss of 3.79 per cent in the four week period ended May 18 compared with last year. Volume was $4,659,679 against $4,843,404, a decrease of $183,756. Compared with the preceding four weeks sales were 1.11 per cent higher.

The company was operating 1,249 stores on May 19 against 1,343 last year.

MORE CARRIERS REPORT GAINS OVER YEAR AGO

Railroad operating statements for April issued yesterday continued to reflect a highly satisfactory ratio of improvement over last year. In only two instances were declines registered.

Operating net of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad for the month sagged $178,473 under 1933 despite a slight increase in gross. The total stood at $321,992, against $500,465 last year. However, the figure for the first four months of 1934 at $1,872,661 continued well above the corresponding 1933 period when an operating deficit of $368,327 was suffered.

April operating net of the Pennsylvania was $4,959,172, against $3,621,668 last year, while the total for the first four months of 1934 was $19,638,708, against $12,501,737. The Western Pacific reported $122,172 for the month, against $1,545, and for the four months $232,274, compared with an operating deficit of $310,974.

The New Haven incurred a deficit after charges of $90,694, against a deficit of $713,648 last year. Operating net of the Reading was $962,700, compared with $687,956. The Missouri Pacific reported $501,910, compared with $55,633; Gulf Coast lines, $200,617, against $99,109; the Omaha, $13,558, against deficit of $39,504; the Wabash, $448,727, against a loss of $53,289; and the Seaboard Air Line, $390,936, compared with $500,530.

W. O. BATCHELDER ELECTED OFFICER OF GEN. ELECTRIC

W. O. Batchelder, since 1929 central district manager of the General Electric company, has been elected a commercial vice president of the company. Mr. Batchelder will continue to make his headquarters in Chicago in charge of activities in the greater part of fourteen middle western states.

Mr. Batchelder entered the company's employ shortly after his graduation from Harvard university in 1905. He served in turn in the commercial engineering division and the power and mining department in the general offices in Schenectady, N. Y. Later he served in the sales offices in Minneapolis, Chicago, and Butte, Mont., and as sales manager in Michigan.

Since 1917 he has been in the Chicago office in various capacities until his appointment as district manager in 1929.

CANADIAN ROADS' NET REVENUES SHOW INCREASE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., May 25.—An increase of $1,641,050 in net revenue of April, as compared with the same month of last year, is reported by the Canadian National railways. Total operating revenues were $13,447,004, an increase of $2,336,598. Operating expenses increased $695,548.

The Canadian Pacific railway today announced a continuance of its weekly gains over a year ago. For the week ended May 21 the road had earnings of $2,356,000, against $1,940,000 a year ago, an increase of $416,000.

HOLD TOBACCO TAX CUT WON'T HELP GROWERS

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—Department of agriculture officials today reiterated statements made to members of the house ways and means committee that enactment of the Vinson bill, making a horizontal reduction in tobacco taxes, would not work out for the best interests of tobacco growers.

They said a blanket reduction in taxes for all manufacturers probably would force out of business manufacturers of 10 cent cigarets and eliminate their demand for tobacco, which has helped maintain prices to producers in recent years.

Production of Wheat Usually Is Larger Than the May First Government Estimate

Jobs, Wages Rise in 7th Reserve Area

Three and four-tenths per cent more persons in the seventh federal reserve district had jobs on April 15, and 4.7 per cent more wages were paid out than one month earlier, the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago reported yesterday. The expansion was the fifth in succession and contrasted with a normal seasonal loss of 1 per cent in employment and practically no change in pay rolls.

In the manufacturing division the most pronounced improvement was enjoyed by the metals, vehicle, stone, clay, and glass industries. In the non-manufacturing division the construction industry experienced the first substantial increase in employment and pay rolls since last autumn.

Packers' Wages Rise.

In the packing industry of the United States, where production for April rose contra-seasonally over that for March, employment was 3½ per cent less than in the preceding month, but wage payments gained 1½ per cent.

The increases in employment and pay rolls for the Seventh district were somewhat less than in previous months of 1934, the bank points out. The current index for employment has reached the level prevailing at the close of 1930; that for pay rolls is still below the level of June, 1931.

"Total increases of 53 per cent in employment and 93 per cent in pay rolls have been effected during the last year," declares the bank.

The statistics were compiled by the bank on the basis of reports from 4,807 manufacturing and non-manufacturing groups were slightly larger than those for the non-manufacturing.

Changes by Classes.

In the period March 15-April 15, the number of wage earners employed in the metal products industry rose 5.5 per cent and their wages 7.4 per cent; in the vehicles industry, employment was augmented 4.2 per cent and wage payments 7.1 per cent. The stone, clay, and glass industry showed the seasonal spurt in its activity with gains of 10.7 per cent in employment and 13.1 in pay rolls.

The construction industry enjoyed gains of 24.8 per cent in employment and 33.9 in wage earnings. Coal mining retrenched both in the number of its workers and the aggregate wage disbursements, and public utilities lost slightly in pay rolls.

Production at slaughtering establishments of the United States was 4 per cent higher in April than in March and within one-half per cent of the 1924-1933 average, but it was nevertheless 4½ per cent below that of a year ago.

Butter Output Seasonally Low.

Manufacture of creamery butter in the district increased less than seasonally in April. Sales tonnage declined contra-seasonally, though it was slightly above that of the year before. United States output manifested a similar trend. Consumption was in more than usual excess of current production, and inventories in the country, accordingly, were reduced more than seasonally.

In the four weeks ended April 28, the output of American cheese in Wisconsin rose 11 per cent over that of the preceding period and 7 per cent over that of the same weeks in 1933. However, distribution from primary markets was 8½ per cent less than current production, and was substantially below distribution a year ago. Inventories in the United States showed a non-seasonal increase.

MIDLAND UNITED MEETING DELAYED UNTIL JUNE 14

The adjourned annual stockholders' meeting of the Midland United company scheduled for May 31 will be recessed again until June 14, it was announced following a meeting of directors yesterday. The delay was ordered to give directors an opportunity to study the audits of Arthur Andersen & Co., which are now being prepared.

Plans for reorganization of the company are under consideration. It is reported in financial quarters that the company will take advantage of the McKeown bankruptcy bill if the measure, which is now in conference, is passed by congress. The bill permits an industrial corporation to reorganize with the consent of two-thirds of the bondholders.

Arthur Andersen & Co. have been working on the audit for nearly three months. The complicated corporate system makes the job a difficult one. It is on the basis of this audit that the reorganization program will be made.

MONTGOMERY WARD TO PAY PART OF BACK DIVIDENDS ON CLASS A

Dividend accumulations on the class A stock of Montgomery Ward & Co. will be reduced to $7 July 2 through the declaration by directors yesterday of $1.75 a share. The disbursement is payable on that date, to stockholders of record June 19.

With this payment the company will have distributed $8.75 a share this year on the issue. On Feb. 2 $5.25 was paid and on April 2 $1.75 a share was disbursed.

Directors of the Borg Warner corporation yesterday authorized usual quarterly dividends on common and preferred stocks amounting to 25 cents and $1.75 a share, respectively. Both are payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 15.

Directors of Swift and company declared yesterday a quarterly dividend of 12½ cents per share on the capital stock, payable July 1 to holders of record June 9.

Curtis Publishing company declared $1.25 on accumlations on the preferred stock, payable July 2 to stock of record June 20. On April 2 a payment of 75 cents was made. On Jan. 23 a disbursement of 50 cents marked the resumption of dividends.

Directors of the General Electric company declared the usual quarterly dividend of 15 cents on the common stock, payable July 25 to stock of record June 29.

ARMOUR PLAN READY; BOARD MEETS MONDAY

The final draft of the capital reorganization plan of Armour & Co. is nearly completed and printed copies will be available for immediate distribution to shareholders if the program is approved by directors at their meeting Monday morning.

It is believed that the preferred stock to be issued in exchange for the present 7 per cent stock will bear a 6 per cent dividend rate. Originally the new preferred was to have carried a dividend rate of 5 per cent, but this brought protests from the senior shareholders. As originally proposed the $24.50 of back dividends on the preferred will be paid off with new common stock. Holders of A stock are expected to get two shares of new common and the B stockholders will get one-half share, it is reported.

Armour preferred was strong again on the New York market yesterday, closing a point higher at 70. The A and B shares were moderately lower.

CONTINENTAL LIFE CO. PLACED IN STATE HANDS

St. Louis, Mo., May 25.—(AP)—The Continental Life Insurance company, with nearly $100,000,000 of insurance in force, was placed in the hands of the state insurance department today by Circuit Judge O'Neill Ryan, who decided the bitterly contested dissolution suit filed last January by Insurance Superintendent R. E. O'Malley.

O'Malley alleged the company, headed by Ed Mays, was impaired to an extent rendering it insolvent and that it had been so grossly mismanaged that its continued operation by those in charge of it was hazardous to the 500,000 policy holders.

House and Senate Compromise on Stock Bill Expected Today

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—A compromise on the stock exchange control bill vesting regulatory power in a specially created commission is expected tomorrow by senate and house conferees.

To obtain such an agreement, the managers for the senate were virtually ready to accept house provisions on margins, including the opinion that normally the minimum should be 45 per cent.

These developments resulted from a day which saw two sessions of the conference committee, and many private discussions, including conferences with Senator Glass, author of the senate's amendment to set up the independent regulating board.

President For House Bill.

The house bill called for administration of the act by the federal trade commission, a course preferred but not insisted upon by President Roosevelt. Who should have charge and what the margin requirements should be, furnished the major questions before the conference.

Chairman Fletcher of the senate banking committee and head of the senate conferees said at the conclusion of today's sessions:

"We'll get a bill tomorrow without going back to the senate or the house either."

Late in the day Gov. Eugene Black of the federal reserve board entered the conference room, to leave a few minutes later occompanied by Barkley and Byrnes. They talked with Glass and the two senators returned.

Reserve Board to Rule.

The house bill provides that minimum margins for all classes of transactions shall be determined by the reserve board, with the remainder of the bill given over to the regulating commission.

Glas, however, had argued that the reserve system should be kept as aloof as possible from stock market speculation and had written into the bill an amendment restricting the reserve board's powers in this connection to determining maximum credit values for loans on securities by member banks.

Ickes Starts Fight on Oil Code Violators

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—Louis R. Glavis, chief of the interior department's investigation service, was dispatched today to the east Texas oil fields to start action against violators of the oil code and government regulations against "hot oil" [that produced in excess of quotas].

Secretary Ickes, as oil administrator, acted following reversal in the federal Circuit Court of Appeals in Louisiana of an east Texas oil decision which had tied the hands of the petroleum administrative board in its attempts to enforce the oil code. The code and the NRA had been held unconstitutional.

To Prosecute Relentlessly.

In announcing the departure of his investigator Secretary Ickes said:

"Mr. Glavis will gather around him all of our special agents in Texas. He will instruct these agents to prosecute relentlessly every producer and shipper of 'hot oil' who has flouted the code and endangered the stability of the oil industry. There will be criminal prosecutions whenever the facts warant.

"This group has blocked and hindered administration of the oil code for months. By insisting upon a free flow of the flush field in east Texas they have not only stolen the oil of their neighbors who have observed the oil code for the general good, but they have stolen their markets as well.

Hits Small Operators.

"Oversupply, of course, depresses prices, and the first to go under would be the small independent operators.

"It is my intention that these men shall feel the lash of the law which they have so long brazenly flouted."

Illegal output of eastern Texas wells has been estimated at 80,000 barrels daily.

The favorable Louisiana decision will not relax the administration's efforts to obtain a law giving the oil administrator power to control production of crude oil.

DOLLAR FIRMER AGAINST FRANC; POUND IS STEADY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 25.—The dollar gained further in quiet trading in the foreign exchange market today. It rose to a premium of 0.39 cent as a result of a fall in the franc of ½ point to 6.60¾ cents. Sterling kept within a narrow range and closed with no net change at $5.09½.

Dutch guilders and Belgian belgas were unchanged at 67.88 cents and 23.43 cents, respectively, while the Swiss franc cheapened 1 point to 32.56 cents. Canadian dollars rose 3-32 cent to a premium of ¼ cent. German marks were 5 points lower at 39.38 cents, and Italian lire dropped ½ point to 8.51½ cents.

The Federal Reserve bank of New York reported no gold transactions yesterday. Bar gold declined 2½ pence in the London open market to 136 shillings 6½ pence ($34.76), at which figure approximately $788,000 was purchased. A private shipment of $1,272,000 in gold arrived in London from New York, but failed to have any influence on the London market.

WEEK'S LUMBER ORDERS REVEAL LARGE INCREASE

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—The National Lumber Manufacturers' association today reported that orders received by 1,486 mills during the week ended May 19 increased more than 3,000,000 feet over the new business of the previous week. Orders for the week totaled 212,939,000 feet, compared with 209,763,000 feet for the previous week.

Despite this increase, the association said, unfilled orders at lumber mills were lower than for the corresponding week a year ago, the first time such a situation had occurred this year.

Shipments for the week totaled 168,676,000 feet, against 193,207,000 feet for the previous week, while production dropped to 205,646,000 feet from 220,553,000 feet.

PUBLIC SERVICE OF NO. ILLINOIS REPORTS GAIN

Despite an increase in gross revenues during April net income of the Public Service company of Northern Illinois rose only slightly, due to greater provisions for taxes, increased costs resulting from compliance with the national recovery act and expenses incurred in rate fights, the utility announced yesterday in connection with its monthly report to the Illinois commerce commission.

Net income totaled $274,204 after all charges. This compares with $242,627 after year-end adjustment in the same month last year. Gross aggregated $2,872,437 against $2,657,161.

Gross for the irst four months of 1933 amounted to $11,754,351, against $10,921,570 and net after charges was $1,358,852, compared with $1,295,280.

Gen. Electric Refrigerator Orders 300% Over May, '33

Even with all factories operating at maximum capacity, sales are far above production. More persons have been added to the pay rolls at General Electric factories in Schenectady, N. Y., Fort Wayne, Ind., and Erie, Pa. Production has been placed on a 24 hour basis.

Banks Ignore Federal Spur to Lend Money

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Despite all the talk in Washington about forcing the banks to lend money more generously and despite the ladling of Reconstruction Finance corporation millions into banks in exchange for preferred stock they are actually lending less money now than they were a year ago when they were just emerging from the big moratorium scare.

Statistics on the banks belonging to the federal reserve system in the 91 principal cities of the country are available weekly. These leading banks have gained about 2 billion 500 million dollars in deposits during the last twelve months, but their commercial loans are 134 millions less than they were a year ago and their loans on securities are 219 millions less.

* *

Instead of putting the money into business the banks have either stored it with the federal reserve system, packed it away in their vaults or lent it to the United States government.

Meanwhile the word battle goes on. The politicians in Washington insist that the banks lend more freely to industry and the bankers reply that they would gladly lend if business men would only ask for loans. And the business man whose credit is good says he doesn't need money, can't use what he has and won't need bank credit until the assurance of industrial profits becomes more definite.

What Price Morals? When Government Lends the Money.

The administration housing bill sets up a lending corporation which is charged with discouraging building which is held to be "socially undesirable or purely speculative."

Financial experts, who have watched the steady trend toward government control of banking and socialization of credit, point with alarm to this provision.

If the government expands its ownership and control of banks, they ask, will the "moral issue" become the prime consideration in alotting credit? Will a church which would lose money get a loan and a billiard hall or liquor store which would show a profit be turned down? And would a reformer sit at the elbow of each loaning officer?

Italian Pays Austrian to Take His Flour and Makes a Profit.

Here's a story about "planned economy" that has been coming east from Trieste, Italy, for some time. It is taken from the Journal of the Canadian Bankers' association, which got it from the London Times:

A merchant in Trieste offered to transport a quantity of wheat flour to the Austrian border and to present it free of charge to a certain Austrian importer, if the latter would pay the import duty and any subsequent transportation charges.

The Austrian declined, saying that because of the high Austrian import duty the proposition would not yield him a profit.

Then the Italian made a new offer. He said he would deliver the flour free at the Austrian border and in addition pay 15 to 20 lire per quintal toward the import duty.

* *

The Austrian importer found that on this basis it was possible for him to take the flour and make a slight profit selling it in his country at the prevailing market price. The Italian also found that the deal would yield him a slight profit because of the export bounty paid by the Italian government on exported flour.

"This situation, of which the above is an extreme example," says the Canadian journal, "is the result of definite economic policies pursued by the Austrian and Italian governments ostensibly for the national advantage. Surely it must be painfully obvious that no national advantage can accrue from a policy such as this, and yet there are many others which differ from it in results only by moderate degrees."

STEEL BUILDING INDUSTRY BEST FOR 18 MONTHS

New York, May 25.—(AP)—April business volume in the steel construction industry was the best reported during the last eighteen months, the American Institute of Steel Construction announced today.

Bookings amounted to 96,010 tons against 46,095 tons for April, 1933. In addition to the gain of more than 100 per cent as compared with last year, the figures were 46 per cent better than the average monthly bookings during the last quarter of 1933 and 33 per cent larger than the average during the first quarter of 1934.

April shipments at 65,233 tons were 31 per cent ahead of the same month last year.

AIR LINES' BIDS TO CARRY MAIL SET LOW RECORD

Range from 8 to 43½ Cents Per Mile.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—Bids that shattered old mail carrying rates and brought one offer to carry the mails for a fifth of the maximum rate set were among the sixty offers that were opened today at the postoffice department.

E. L. CORD.

Aviation men, who crowded the office in which the proposals were opened, whistled in amazement as one of the bids dipped to a new low of eight cents per airplane mile. The highest bid was 43½ cents. The maximum receivable is 45 cents. Pleased at the showing, Postmaster General Farley calculated the annual air mail costs for the new network set up since contracts were annulled in February would be about $6,299,762 lower than the appropriation of $14,000,000 for the fiscal year which ends June 30.

Average 27.9 Cents a Mile.

"The average air mail pay per mile on the new air mail system, comprising 28,548 miles, will be 27.9 cents, as compared with approximately 42 cents per airplane mile in the old system of 25,248 miles," Farley said. "The annual air mail pay for the new system with its 3,300 additional miles will be $7,700,238, as compared with $19,400,264 in the fiscal year 1933 and with approximately $14,000,000 for the present fiscal year which ends June 30.

"Three biddings have been held on the new air mail system. The per mile average mail pay for the first bids received was 28.8 cents. The per mile average mail rate for the second bidding was 38.5 cents. The combined average for the first two biddings was 35.7 cents. The average rate of mail pay for the 60 bids received in the third and last letting was 20.27 cents, which brought down the general average to 27.9 cents."

Cord's Line Bids Low.

American Airlines, Inc., reported to be controled by E. L. Cord, the motor magnate, bid eight cents per airplane mile for the Chicago-Fort Worth route and thirteen cents for the Newark-Fort Worth run.

American Airlines bid 39½ cents for that portion of the Newark-Fort Worth run which extends from Washington to Fort Worth. Postoffice officials have announced they intended to make a survey to determine whether better service would result from awarding the contract for the route as a whole or two contracts for portions having terminals in Washington.

"Some of the former companies, which had been reorganized, bid much lower than they had in the two previous biddings," said Farley. "Among the new bidders whose bids were the lowest on certain routes were the Delta Air corporation, the National Airways, Inc., the Varney Speed lines and a joint bid by D. K. Franklin and G. T. Baker.

Lines to Carry Passengers.

"With one exception passenger service is required on all of the 13 routes and the low bidder on this one route has announced his intention to operate passenger service thereon.

"All low bids are now being analyzed by the attorneys of the postoffice department and the department of justice and officials of the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce, and their financial responsibility is being checked by the controler of the postoffice department. As soon as low bids are approved contracts will be let."

John B. Kohler, president of the Kohler Aviation corporation, and C. Bedell Monro, executive vice president of Pennsylvania Airlines and Transport company, announced tonight that the assets and operating personnel of the Kohler corporation would be taken over by the Pennsylvania concern in the event that the latter company is awarded the Detroit-Milwaukee contract. Stock in the Pennsylvania organization would be distributed to the Kohler shareholders.

The Pennsylvania Airlines and Transport bid 38.9 cents per air plane mile as contrasted with the 43½ figure submitted by American Airlines, Inc., the only other bidder.

Kohler maintained the route from September, 1929, until the annulment of the contracts in February.

STOCK TRADING AT LOW EBB, BUT PRICES ADVANCE

Market Ignores Most News Influences.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 25.—Trading interest continued at a low ebb on the stock exchange today but prices worked higher, the gains running to as much as 2 points in some of the more nimble trading favorites. Brokers thought the improvement was due more to the market's oversold condition than to any buying incentive provided by the news.

The most important items of the day's news, the fresh rioting in the automotive industry and the threat of a serious strike in the steel industry, were of a bearish flavor, but aside from some selling in Electric Auto-Lite there was no evidence that they had any other effect than to emphasize the spirit of caution which has been holding operations in check for so long. The turnover was 535,470 shares.

Wheat's Gain Small Factor.

The pronounced strength in wheat, which rose 3 cents a bushel, may have influenced buying in the so-called agricurtural shares a trifle, although the group as a whole made no greater progress than some other sections of the list.

The latest statement of Secretary Morgenthau on silver was likewise without visible influence on the white metal or other so-called inflation stocks, and no attention apparently was paid to the optimistic assertions of some of the week-end trade reviews.

Tobacco shares were conspicuously active on the house committee's decision to recommend a cut of 40 per cent in cigaret taxes. American Tobacco B advanced 2 points as did both issues of Liggett & Myers. Reynolds moved up fractionally.

Oils continued to lag, held back by caution pending the outcome of the petroleum control legislation.

U. S. Steel Crosses 41.

Most of the standard industrials met fairly good demand. U. S. Steel crossed 41 for the first time in several days, but eased a point from its high in the final hour. American Can scored a net gain of about a point.

In the motors division General Motors ignored the labor troubles to advance a point, but Chrysler sold off fractionally. Auburn edged a little higher and Mack Truck a trifle lower.

The utilities were sluggish as usual. An exception was American Telephone, which rose a point on occasional buying orders.

Better railroad trafic figures for last week helped the carriers up the grade.

COTTON CLOSES AT DAY'S BEST WITH GRAIN, STOCKS

Cotton market was relatively inactive early, but turned strong later with grains and stocks, and the finish was around the best prices of the day. Chicago showed gains of .06 to .11 cents, and other markets .08 to .13 cents per pound.

The upturn was in the face of favorable crop comments from Texas and Oklahoma, and of a slow demand for textiles.

Spot cotton was generally .10 cents higher, with New York and Galveston, 11.50 cents, and New Orleans and Houston, 11.45 cents. Liverpool was closed and will not reopen until Monday. Prices:

OCTOBER EGGS ADVANCE ONE-FOURTH; BUTTER UP

October eggs closed ¼ cent higher on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday May storage packed eggs were ⅛ cent higher. November butter gained ⅛ cent for the day.

The recent break apparently eliminated weakly held lines of eggs, and scattered new buying yesterday disclosed a lack of aggressive selling. Investment buying and continued dry weather were responsible for the firm undertone in butter, and a decline of ¼ to ½ cent in the spot market was ignored.

WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, Mass., May 25.—Inquiries for wool are being received in the Boston market, but the actual trading is very limited. Buyers operating in bright fleece wool states are reporting that their bids are being rejected more freely. According to reports from members of the Boston wool trade prices to growers have advanced in some sections. Asking prices on spot wools here are showing no change on fleece or territory wools.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was more active and prices were easier today under increased liquidation and hedge selling, which seemed to center principally in the September position, with some months selling at new low records for the season. There was a partial rally from the lowest on covering influenced by the strength of grains, and the better tone to cotton, stocks, and lard. Final prices were 7 to 11 points net lower. Sales, 90 contracts. Bleachable spot, nominal; May closed, 4.90c; July, 5.05c; September, 5.23c; October, 5.32c; December, 5.48c.

REPUBLICANS FIGHT HASTY SILVER ACTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—Administration plans for perfunctory consideration and prompt approval of the silver bill by the ways and means committee met Republican opposition today when Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, an economic conservative, insisted that a nonadministration viewpoint be presented to the committee.

Specifically Mr. Treadway demanded that the committee invite Prof. Edwin W. Kemmerer of Princeton to explain the importance of increased use of silver.

Representative Doughton, chairman, and the Democratic members declined to request the Princeton professor to appear, but consented to hear him tomorrow morning if Representative Treadway could induce him to appear. Mr. Doughton insisted that the bill was perfectly clear to the majority, and the program was to report it to the house promptly.

Favor Start in House.

Congestion in the senate calendar has made it advisable, the Democratic leaders asserted, to start the silver legislation in the house to gain time.

Secretary Morgenthau, who testified today, was not asked to explain the policy of the bill or what it would accomplish in increasing the currency. He appeared only briefly, but told the committee that details would be elaborated upon by Herman Oliphant, treasury counsel.

Mr. Morgenthau testified that the bill had the approval of the administration and that it had been written by the treasury department to carry out an agreement reached by the President in conference with the senators representing the silver producing states.

He expressed hope that congress would pass it speedily and retain the tax on speculation in silver, saying: "I earnestly urge that the committee retain this 50 per cent levy. The administration is very anxious that this tax feature stay in the bill. The tax would affect only speculators who are operating in direct competition with the government on the silver market. A tax of 50 per cent is very modest and would probably produce in the first year a revenue of $25,000,000."

Desired by Administration.

Asked by Representative Cooper, Democrat of Tennessee, whether the administration was for the bill as presented, Mr. Morgenthau replied:

"Absolutely, and I hope congress will consider it favorably and pass it in this session."

Just before adjournment at the noon hour Representative Treadway offered a motion to summon experts opposed to the silver proposal. This was defeated by a vote of 14 to 10.

When Mr. Oliphant appeared minority members tried unsuccessfully for more than three hours to wring from him some expression as to the wisdom of the legislation and who was the actual author of the policy.

He replied to all such questions that he was there to explain the mechanics of the bill and what the various sections would do.

Weapons for Government.

"The specific change in policy," he said, "would simply be to increase the proportion of silver in monetary stocks from 12 to 25 per cent.

"The measure contains two reserve weapons which would enable the government to deal with any one who attempted to buy up huge quantities of silver. One section of the bill empowers the President or the secretary of the treasury to regulate the silver market.

"Another section gives the administration power to compel all holders of silver to deliver their metal to the government on payment of just compensation."

Radio Firms Agree to End Exclusive Foreign Pacts

Wilmington, Del. May 25.—(AP)—The radio trust suit of the feedral government against the Radio Corporation of America and others several years ago echoed in the federal court today when Judge John P. Nields signed a consent decree waiving features of exclusive licenses and sales arrangements made by the defendants with foreign companies. This issue of the anti-trust suit had been left pending in November, 1932, when a consent decree for the general features of the case was signed by Judge Nields.

Use of Fewer Big Bills, More Small Ones Good Trade Sign

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—Highly favorable signs of business improvement were noted in the federal reserve board's monthly bulletin issued today.

Particularly significant was a drop in the circulation of high denomination paper money and an increase in the amount of bills of $20 and less outstanding from the treasury and the federal reserve banks. This indicated the increased requirement of currency to finance normal commercial transactions. Bills of $50 and higher are not normally employed for business purposes.

"Industrial activity increased further in March, and in April there was a considerable growth in factory employment and pay rolls," the board said.

Some Commodities Sag.

"The general level of commodity prices at wholesale continued stable for the third consecutive month. In April there was a recession in prices of cotton, wheat, and other grains and increases in steel, automobile, rubber, and meats."

Member bank reserves continued to gain and at the end of April amounted to $3,750,000,000, about $1,700,000,000 in excess of the legal requirements, a new high record. The increase in reserves during April was $300,000,000 and reflected chiefly further imports of gold from abroad and additional expenditure by the treasury of funds previously held as cash and as balances with the reserve banks. The board said that there had been a decrease of currency held in hoard.

The report showed an increase in recent months in the number of member banks in active operation, reflecting the reorganization and reopening of more than 200 unlicensed member banks under old and new charters and the admission of about 75 nonmember state banks to the federal reserve system since the start of the year.

Licensed Banks Increase.

The number of licensed banks increased from 6,001 on Dec. 30, 1933, to 6,294 on April 25, while the number of unlicensed member banks declined from 512 at the end of 1933, with deposits of about $500,000,000, to 218 on April 25, with deposits of about $200,000,000.

During the same period the number of restricted and unlicensed nonmember banks, exclusive of mutual savings banks, had been reduced from about 1,400 with deposits of $650,000,000 to less than 850 with deposits of about $400,000,000.

Gold imports for April amounted to $50,000,000, as compared with $450,000,000 in February and $240,000,000 in March.

U. S. CREDITORS SEEK SHOWDOWN WITH GERMANY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 25.—After four weeks of bickering, the transfer conference still is sitting in Berlin with the American bankers and lawyers determined to remain until they have a definite and concrete reply from the Germans either guaranteeing payment or acknowledging default.

The world bankers had drafted a compromise solution. It was to provide a short financial reprieve for the Germans and token cash payments for creditors. When foreign representatives and members of the Reichsbank convened for the final signature, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht stated that "Germany cannot meet obligations on the Dawes and Young plan loans."

These obligations were not included in the recent negotiations because they were considered political debts. According to international agreement they take precedence over all other German obligations and Dr. Schacht's announcement made all other agreements worthless.

The Reichsbank today published its weekly report showing gold coverage down to 4.6 of money in circulation, leaving 147,000,000 marks gold in the treasury, the Reichsbank's lowest ebb since November, 1923, when Germany returned to gold currency after the inflation orgy.

TESTIFIES TITLE FIRM MADE LOANS TO ITS OFFICERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 25.—Testimony showing that the Westchester Title and Trust company made loans totaling $875,000 over a period of years to thirty of its own officers, directors, and employés was brought out today before Commissioner George W. Alger.

The testimony of Samuel R. Seller, first deputy superintendent of insurance, showed that the Westchester Title company was to all intents and purposes a subsidiary of the Title Guarantee and Trust company.

Thomas E. Foster, a vice president and secretary of Westchester Title and Trust company, was asked if his company ever made any loans to its officers, directors, or employés. Mr. Foster replied in the affirmative. Arthur W. Lawrence, a director, and his brother borrowed $575,000 between 1909 and 1930, all on mortgages. Thirty other directors, officers, and employés borrowed about $300,000 on the same type of security.

"Was it a regular thing for officers and directors to obtain loans in this manner?" was asked.

"Yes," replied Foster, "everybody did it."

Then he was asked if the officers and directors ever discussed a section of the insurance law which prohibits directors or officers of mortgage companies from having a pecuniary interest in any loan. He said they had not.

Foster further testified that the company lost $362,000 out of an investment of between $500,000 and $600,000 in an unsuccessful stock market venture begun in 1930.

The Chicago and North Western railway's tarif on cattle moving out of Wyoming and South Dakota destined to feeding points has been reduced 50 per cent, while reductions of 30 per cent have been ordered on hay entering these states as well as into Wisconsin, upper Michigan, and Minnesota.

BUSES OPERATE AT PROFIT IN FIRST QUARTER

The profit per bus operated during the first quarter of this year amounted to $79.87, compared with a loss of $64.40 the year before, Bus Transportation reports in its May issue.

Revenues from bus operation were 4 cents per bus mile higher on the average than in the corresponding quarter of 1933. Passenger revenue per bus mile exceeded that of any similar period in the last four years.

Revenue per bus mile runs from 22.69 cents for the city and suburban group to 24.92 cents for the intercity group. Operating expenses, exclusive of depreciation and property rents, account for 16.66 cents per bus mile. Accordingly about 7 cents is left for taxes, depreciation, rents, and interest charges on a bus mile basis.

STOP JUGGLING MONEY IS PLEA OF KEMMERER

Finance Expert Urges U. S. Avoid Inflation.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 25.—[Special.]—Discontinuance of "monetary experimentation" and of aggressive agitation for inflationary measures in congress, especially radical silver legislation, and a statutory stabilization of the currency on a definite and fixed gold bullion standard with convertibility on demand, or a free gold market and coöperation with other countries, were some of the suggestions made today by Prof. Edwin W. Kemmerer, financial expert.

E. W. KEMMERER.

He spoke on "Inflation and Stabilization" before a joint meeting of the Indiana sound money committee and the Indiana Bankers' association. The plank with reference to experimentation was one of eight which he suggested as embodying the hope of avoiding the breakdown of currency and a consequent serious inflation.

Urges Balanced Budget.

Other measures he advocated included:

An early balanced federal budget and a bona fide meeting of current expenses by current income.

Funding of a large part of the federal short term debt into long time bonds, issued on terms that will put and keep them in the strong boxes of the people rather than so largely in the banks.

Restoration of the federal reserve system to normal functioning, instead of the present policy of having it function chiefly as a fiscal agent of the government.

Repeal of the so-called permanent plan for guaranty of bank deposits.

Substantial reduction in tarifs and removal of other obstructions to international trade through bilateral or multilateral agreements with other countries.

Progressive and rapid withdrawal of the government from competition with private enterprise.

Reduction of wages on all government relief work to levels substantially below the fair market value in private industry of the labor concerned.

Thorpe Sees Revival Retarded.

Merle Thorpe, editor of the Nation's Business, said the effort to reform overnight has retarded recovery by destroying confidence. Pointing out that the government is being asked to go into business, he said political organizations are not fitted to handle business enterprises and never successfully have taken an economic step forward.

Belief that the current legislative procedure "is laying the foundation for the illusions of the past all over again" was expressed by C. B. Axford, editor of the American Banker. He described the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation and the stock exchange control bill as "new legislative cure-alls."

CAR ORDERS OF RAILROADS FAR ABOVE YEAR AGO

Class 1 railroads had on May 1 about ten times as many new freight cars on order as they had one year earlier, the car service division of the American Railway association reported yesterday. The total was 15,964, compared with 1,561 the year before and 2,812 two years ago.

The carriers also had 21 new steam locomotives and 107 electric locomotives on order May 1, compared with three steam locomotives on May 1, 1933, and 31 on the same day of 1932. No statistics are available for new electric locomotives on order in previous years.

Power Quiz Finishes Story of Doherty Utility Empire

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—The federal trade commission today completed its story of how Henry L. Doherty built up the Cities Service company to a billion dollar concern.

The story was told by Robert E. Healy, commission counsel, and A. E. Lundvall, commission investigator, who has spent two years tracing the growth and methods of the company from its inception in 1910 as a $36,000,000 property to its billion dollar status in 1930. Major items in Lundvall's report detailed writeups of nearly a quarter billion dollars and the creation of giant holding companies whose actual business functions were nominal. Commission experts term a writeup an appreciation of book value without additions to investment or plant.

Charges Meet Denial.

Exceptions to most of Lundvall's findings were taken by Robert Burns, cities service counsel, who denied there were any unfair valuation increases; endorsed the holding company method of financing and defended Doherty's control by pointing to the approval given his operations in stock holders' meetings. Lundvall reported the quarter billion of write-ups, cut down to $7,000,000 in the company's published financial statement, were retained as write-ups on the books of the subsidiary operating companies of the system.

In describing the creation of the system's holding companies and their control, Lundvall said Henry L. Doherty and company, entirely owned by Henry L. Doherty did most of the business functions for Cities Service company itself, the top holding company of the system, and other holding companies.

Lundvall also testified that the Ohio Public Service company, Cities Service subsidiary, failed to obey the Ohio public utilities commission in listing as an asset a bond discount of $1,600,000. He gave this testimony in describing the merger of the Sandusky Gas and Electric, Port Clinton Electric Light and Power, Northwestern Ohio Railway and Power and Central Ohio Gas companies with Ohio Public Service in 1924.

Lundvall said Ohio Public Service was ordered by the Ohio commission to sell preferred stock at not less than par and bonds at not less than 80 per cent of their principal amount in paying for the properties acquired. The Ohio commission further ordered that any discount sustained in the sale of bonds was to be cut down by charges of operations, but Lundvall said the company capitalized the bond discount thus making an asset item of it rather than reducing it by amortization.

Mohawk Hudson Case Up.

The Mohawk Hudson Power corporation was said to have paid approximately $32,000,000 more than the book value for the several companies it has acquired as a holding company in the Niagara Hudson Power corporation group.

The summary did not characterize this sum as a writeup. It explained that a portion of the increase was made with the permission of the New York state public service commission. The total book value of the securities acquired was $54,669,387 against a liquidation value of $86,963,429, so that the total consideration paid for the securities was $32,294,042 in excess of the book value.

UTILITY REPORTS SHARP RISE IN COSTS UNDER NRA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 25.—Subsidiaries of the Electric Power and Light coroporation increased their pay roll costs at the annual rate of $1,000,000 because of coöperation with the government's NRA program, according to the annual report of the company. The cost of materials and supplies, particularly of fuel, has been and is still increasing. Despite the added costs C. E. Groesbeck, chairman, and S. R. Inch, president, say in the report demands for rate reductions continue and have resulted in reduction of operating revenue at a time of increased expenses.

Output of electricity in 1933 was 2 per cent less than 1932, and aggregate natural gas sales also declined 2 per cent. Operating revenues were $67,544,465 or 8 per cent lower than in 1932. Expenses and taxes were $36,179,285, a decline of 1 per cent.

Some of the subsidiaries earned their preferred dividends by good margins while others earned only a part of the amounts to which their preferred stocks were entitled. Three of the principal operating companies paid only a part of the full preferred dividends, while four of the other principal subsidiaries paid full preferred dividends and three of them common dividends as well.

URGES NATIONAL HOUSING PLAN TO LET YOUTH WORK

A national housing scheme entailing an expenditure of from 40 to 50 billion dollars to replace some 17,000,000 homes which should be scrapped offers the only solution to economic restoration of the United States, Walter B. Pitkin, of the Columbia university school of journalism and an authority on consumer research, declared at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Federated Advertising clubs at the Hotel La Salle yesterday.

A start in this direction has been made in the billion dollar housing scheme of the government, Mr. Pitkin said. While he termed this a noble gesture, he declared it is ineffective and is an attempt to ladle the ocean with a tin dipper.

"We are at the start of the second century of progress," Pitkin asserted. "The start is not auspicious, as it neglects two highly important things. They are forgotten youth and forgotten factories. More than a third of our population is in the teens and twenties, and the employment situation in this group is deplorably bad.

"Department of labor statistics place the number of unemployed at 10 millions, but this ignores the youngsters under 20 who have never been on a pay roll. The figure should be 20 millions."

CREDITORS PUSH REORGANIZATION OF MIDDLE WEST

Banks and Note Holders Plan New Meeting.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Creditors of the Middle West Utilities company are expected to hold another meeting in the next few days in an effort to hasten the reorganization negotiations, which have been under way for several weeks, it was learned yesterday.

Representatives of the creditor banks and the note holders, with claims aggregating $67,000,000, have reached an agreement on a reorganization formula, but several factors are pressing for an early settlement. Charles A. McCulloch, receiver, is anxious to be relieved of his responsibilities. He has been prevailed upon to continue as receiver on the promise that the creditor groups will get together on a program which will allow a reorganization by July 1.

Thayer to Retire on July 1.

Eugene V. R. Thayer, receiver for the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company, has already given notice of his intention to retire on July 1. Mississippi Valley is a subsidiary investment company of Middle West and the affairs of the two companies are closely entwined. Retirement of the two receivers before a plan had been agreed upon would seriously retard the reorganization program, it is believed. The prospective retirements are spurring on the negotiations.

Mr. McCulloch is the only one of the three receivers originally picked by the federal court who is still with the company. Samuel Insull resigned under fire a few weeks after the receivership began. Edward N. Hurley died a few months ago and since that time McCulloch has carried on alone.

Plan New Holding Company.

Unless present plans are changed, it is believed the creditors will stick to their present intention of creating a new holding company with a single class of common stock and no funded debt. Despite the protests of the common and preferred stockholders of the present company, it is not believed they will get more than rights to purchase stock in the new company.

Creditor banks will turn over to the new company the Middle West collateral which they hold as security for their loans and in return will accept common stock in the new concern. Holders of the outstanding $40,000,000 of debentures will also take new common stock for their present claims. What the preferred and common stock holders get they will have to pay for unless present proposals go awry.

"The Chicago real estate market is on the eve of a reawakening! Those engaged in business should be alert to Opportunity! It is already knocking at the door. HOGS AVERAGE 5 CENTS HIGHER; TOP PRICE, $3.70

Heavy Grades Meet Best Demand; Cattle Strong.

Cooler weather and a slight let-up in receipts of live stock halted the decline in the hog market yesterday. Encouraging reports from the wholesale pork trade stimulated buying by most of the local interests, both large and small packers competing for numbers in the butcher grades at the start.

Advances of 5 to 10 cents were general during the forenoon and the strongest part of the market was in the butcher grades and lard type hogs weighing more than 250 pounds. These were cleared mostly on the early rounds at the upturn, but the lighter weights which were increasing in numbers on all markets weakened at the close and final sales in hogs under 200 pounds indicated that the advance had been erased in all but the best grades of butchers and sows.

Top Price Is $3.70.

The top for the day, $3.70, paid for 270 pound butchers, was 10 cents above the Thursday peak and the general average for the session at $3.50 showed 5 cents advance. Current prices for hogs, however, are not much above the low spot of the season and show declines of about $1.50 compared with a year ago, when there was no processing tax.

While there has been no noticeable effect of bootleg pork on the price of the regular commercial cuts of hogs, many of the smaller butchers have repeatedly complained of the influences of such pork on the price of underweights and pigs, particularly stock weighing under 100 pounds alive. Thus far, however, no real effort has been made to apprehend truckers and farmers dealing in such trafic.

Due both to the processing tax and the bootlegging of the lighter pork carcasses, city butchers and small local houses are not buying the lighter hogs and pigs and these have declined sharply in the last few days. The lightest pigs are selling at the lowest spot of the season, some good grades of 100 to 110 pound averages going around $2.00 to $2.25, while only the selected 130 pound averages are eligible to $3.00. Inferior kinds range down to $1.00 and under.

Cattle Prices Steady.

Considering the quality of the cattle in the yards yesterday prices were fully steady to strong. Compared with a week ago, however, the trade was uneven. Some of the best grades of steers with weight were closing strong to unevenly higher, the top for the week at $9.60 being a new high for the year. Most other classes of cattle were closing unevenly lower, declines ranging all the way from 25 cents to 60 cents compared with the recent high spot.

There has been a reduction of 50 cents or more in the stocker and feeder division, and this decline attracted enough country buying orders for replacement stock despite the drouth to move the bulk of the supply off the market.

Only a few lots of lambs were offered and these sold about steady, considering quality. Spring lambs sold at $11.25 downward, a few of the culls going at $8.00. Aged sheep were disposed of on a semi-demoralized market and at the lowest prices in many months. Light ewes brought $2.50 and most of the heavy ewes around $1.00. One load of shorn lambs sold steady at $8.65.

LARD SPURTS, BUT LOSES PART OF GAIN AT CLOSE

Strength in the grain markets yesterday was largely responsible for moderate commission house buying of lard futures, which advanced as much as 10 cents above Thursday's finish before selling pressure was encountered. The best level was not maintained, however, and the close was unchanged to 5 cents higher.

Bellies were nominally unchanged. A fairly good domestic demand for cash lard was reported, and cured and green meats are moving freely. Cash lard was 5 cents higher at $6.10, with loose up 5 cents at $5.50, while leaf was unchanged at $5.50. Bellies were quoted at $8.50, or the same as the previous day. Prices:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today at 2.75c. There was a sale of 4,000 bags of Porto Rican for June 11 shipment at 2.75c.

The inactivity in the spot market and the failure of anything definite from Washington on the quotas or processing tax, restricted trading in futures and price movements were narrow and unimportant with the market closing net unchanged to 1 point higher. Sales were only 2,000 tons. Prices:

SENATE LIMITS DEBATE TO PUSH TARIF MEASURE

Passage by Thursday Is Certain, Leaders Say.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—Senate Republicans and Democrats got together late today and agreed to limit debate on the tarif bill, thus removing the threat of a prolonged one man filibuster and assuring a final vote, in the opinion of Democratic leaders, by next Thursday at the latest.

After six more Republicans made opposition speeches, interrupted now and then by prolonged comment from Senator Long [Dem., La.], Senator Harrison [Dem., Miss.], in charge of the measure, proposed and it was unanimously agreed that debate should be restricted beginning at noon Wednesday.

Even Long Agrees.

Even Long agreed to the proposition, but not until he had obtained a concession to permit more liberal discussion of an amendment to exempt farm commodities from operation of the proposed trade reciprocity and tarif reduction agreements with foreign powers. Long had previously been charged with filibustering against the tarif bill, but had denied the allegation.

Under the debate limiting agreement, no senator could speak more than once nor longer than 15 minutes on each amendment and 20 minutes on the bill, except on the farm amendment. Speeches on that provision would be limited to one hour.

Senators Johnson [Rep., Cal.] and Overton [Dem., La.] have amendments pending to exempt farm products from tarif reductions and the opposition is basing its hope for changes on these proposed modifications.

Expects Little Change.

Senator Harrison, however, declares the bill will be passed without material change. He said tonight a final vote may be reached before the debate limitation takes effect.

Long, in capitulating, apparently realized the futility of bucking an overwhelming majority for the bill. Republican leaders refused to coöperate with his tactics, but insisted on full opportunity for legitimate speeches.

A brief session will be held tomorrow to permit Senator Hastings [Rep., Del.] to conclude a long opposition speech he began late today.
